NOTE HINTS SECRETS ON TARIFF BILL GOT TO MANUFACTURERS

Eyanson Fails to Recall at the Lobby Inquiry Memorandum on Shotgun Barrels.

HUBBARD BACKS BINGHAM

Head of Connecticut Group Defends Senator's Employment of Aide as Adviser.

CHARGE MADE ON FISH RATE

Bay State Witness Asserts Eyanson Blocked Him in Behalf of Association Member.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—A memorandum in the office of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association, which, according to Senator Walsh of Montana, suggested that information had been obtained on secret debates in the Senate Finance Committee on the tariff bill, figured in evidence today before the Senate committee investigating the activities of lobbyists.

A charge that Senator Bingham, at the instance of a corporation holding membership in the manufacturers' association of that State, had shown bias toward American interests importing fish from Canada when the tariff bill was being drafted was made by Edward A. Cooley, general manager of the Massachusetts Fisheries Association.

E. Kent Hubbard, president of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association, was another witness at the hearing today. The name of J. Henry Roraback, Republican National Committeeman from Connecticut, figured in a statement of Mr. Hubbard that the final conference with Senator Bingham which led to the assignment of C. L. Eyanson to the Senator's office as a tariff expert was held in Mr. Roraback's Hartford office.

The investigators directed attention to the relations of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad and the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association, bringing out that the railway is represented on the board in the person of Vice President Buckland, who makes his headquarters in New York, and that it also is the largest contributor to the association's treasury.

Examined on Memorandum.

Mr. Eyanson, assistant to the president of the association, whose employment by Senator Bingham has figured in much of the lobby inquiry testimony, was recalled as a witness in connection with the memorandum on the Finance Committee's tariff proceedings.

The notation, which was prepared by J. W. Wuichet of the association's Hartford office, stated that Senator Bingham had met with strong opposition in his attempts to keep a 10 per cent duty on bored shot-gun barrels, and that the Senator considered he had won a "decisive victory" in homing the rate in the Senate bill at 10 per cent against a movement to increase it to 20 per cent.

Mr. Eyanson said the Crescent Arms Company and the Davis & Warner company, which did not want the increase, were located in Connecticut, and that the Savage Arms Company, which favored the higher rate, was located in New York.

Senators Smoot, Reed and Edge were named as among those who advocated the higher duty. Mr. Eyanson testified that he did not recall receiving the memorandum. When Senator Walsh suggested it referred to debates in secret sessions of the Finance Committee the witness said he did not remember a debate over the duty, adding that the details of the bill had been made public on Aug. 19, some time before the memorandum was written.

"As a matter of fact, didn't you hand a number of such slips to Senator Bingham during the hearings before the Senate Finance Committee?" asked Senator Walsh.

Mr. Eyanson said he did not, but that he had handed to him notes written on pink paper supplied for the use of the Senators. Memoranda in the office of the association are usually on pink paper, however, he said.

Questioned on Phone Calls.

When Senator Walsh pressed his questions on whether the secret proceedings were permitted to get out, the witness replied:

"They were not broadcast, but I suppose members of the committee could tell their constituents about them after the bill had been made public."

Where did Mr. Wuichet get the information that Senator Bingham considered retention of the duty a decisive victory, Senator Walsh asked.

"I do not know where he could have gotten that information," was the reply.

Indian Summer Lingers Here But Rain Is Expected Today

The warmth of Indian Summer lingered in New York yesterday, while warnings of strong winds, overcast weather and rain were issued from Sandy Hook to Cape Hatteras.

Although rain is forecast for today, the average temperature yesterday was 63 degrees, which is 9 degrees above normal for Oct. 21, as shown by Weather Bureau records.

Seventy degrees, the high point for the day, was reached shortly after 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The lowest mark was 57 degrees at 6 A. M.

SENATE FIRMLY BARS FARM TARIFF LIMIT

Thomas's Recommittal Plan Lost, 64 to 10—Vote on Borah Motion Was 39-38.

SHIFTS DUE TO RATE ISSUES

Simmons, Norris, Borah and Others Now for Full Debate on Schedules, Up Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—By the overwhelming vote of 64 to 10 the Senate this afternoon refused to adopt the motion of Senator Thomas, Democrat, of Oklahoma, to limit tariff revision to the duties on farm products.

Only a handful of the members of the Democratic-Progressive coalition supported the Thomas motion. Just before the vote, Senator Simmons, ranking minority member of the Finance Committee, revealed that Democrats at least want the rates on industrial articles kept before the Senate because they wish to reduce not only the duties recommended by the committee but those in the existing Fordney-McCumber law.

After more than six weeks' debate, the administrative sections of the Smoot-Hawley bill were completed, and the Senate is ready to proceed with the rates tomorrow. The first item of the schedules was called up late in the day by Chairman Smoot, but the Democrats objected to his proposal that all Finance Committee amendments to the rate provisions be acted upon before other Senators offer amendments. This matter will probably be disposed of tomorrow and debate will begin on the chemical schedule, which heads the list.

The alleged influence of lobbyists in framing the tariff bill was alluded to by both Senator Simmons and Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader. Neither spoke specifically of the lobby investigation disclosures, but Mr. Simmons demanded that light be shed on the manner in which the bill was drawn up by the Finance Committee.

Final Administrative Amendments.

Two amendments to administrative sections of the bill were approved. One, by Senator Steiwer, Republican, of Oregon, would exempt masters and owners of vessels found to be illegally carrying opium from penalty, or the vessels themselves from seizure, if the masters or owners could prove in court they did not know the ships carried opium. The vote on the Steiwer motion was 43 to 34.

The other, by Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, would fix the salaries of tariff commissioners at $10,000 annually, instead of $12,000 as in the bill and $7,500 under existing law. It was adopted viva voce.

Senator Simmons emphatically denied tonight that the Democratic Senatorial conferees on the bill would be willing to "trade" either the export debenture amendment for the Simmons-Norris flexible tariff amendment or vice versa.

Senator Simmons's statement that the Democrats will seek to reduce the Fordney-McCumber act rates was made when he commented that he could not see that anything could be gained by adoption of the Thomas amendment.

"There will never be a better time than at this moment to discuss

ALL 7 CONVICTED AT GASTONIA TRIAL; FOUR GET 20 YEARS

One Is Sentenced to 15 Years and Two to 5 to 7 for Murder of Police Chief Aderholt.

COUNSEL ASSAIL VERDICT

Charge State Prejudiced Jury to Condemn in Hatred of Communism and Atheism.

JUDGE'S CHARGE PRAISED

But Defense Doubts Its Effect With Jury Out Only 57 Minutes—Bail Granted on Notice of Appeal.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 21.—Fred Erwin Beal, Communist strike organizer, and his six codefendants were found guilty today of murder in the second degree for the killing of Chief of Police O. F. Aderholt of Gastonia and on three other counts relating to the wounding of three policemen in a battle between union guards and the police on the night of June 7. Two of the additional counts were felonious assault and the third was assault with a deadly weapon.

The defendants were sentenced to various terms of imprisonment ranging from five to twenty years.

The jury deliberated only 57 minutes after listening to the charge of Judge M. V. Barnhill which consumed nearly two and a half hours. The case was before the court more than three weeks.

Beal Smiles While Sentenced.

Judge Barnhill imposed the sentences after examining personally three of the defendants and listening to final pleas for leniency from attorneys for the defense.

Fred Erwin Beal, Clarence Miller, George Carter and Joseph Harrison were sentenced to from seventeen to twenty years in the State prison.

W. M. McGinnis and Louis McLaughlin received sentences of from twelve to fifteen years, while the sentence of K. Y. Hendricks was from five to seven years.

Concurrent sentences of ten years each were imposed on Beal, Miller, Carter and Harrison and of five to seven years on McGinnis and McLaughlin for felonious assault on Policeman Tom Gilbert. Hendricks received a concurrent sentence of five years on the same count. Sentence on the other auxiliary counts was discontinued as to all the defendants.

The sentences were imposed before a hushed courtroom, crowded to capacity. All of the defendants with the exception of Beal, who wore a faint smile, took the sentences as a severe and to them an unexpected shock.

Because of the various forms of lighter verdicts possible, as outlined by Judge Barnhill in his long charge to the jury, the defendants and their attorneys had expected that the jury would differentiate as to the guilt of the individual defendants. To them and to many in the courtroom the sweeping verdict came as a surprise.

Defense Charges Prejudice.

In their pleas for leniency defense counsel charged that the defendants were victims of "popular hysteria" and blamed also the attorney for the prosecution for injecting the Communist and anti-religious issues into the trial, a circumstance they considered as having prejudiced the minds of the jury.

A statement issued tonight in behalf of the defendants by the International Labor Defense charged that the jury had brought in "a class verdict" and that "not the evidence of the State but our beliefs convicted us."

"Only by appealing to the prejudices, religious, racial and political,

Berry, Acutely Ill, Taken to Sanitarium; Stricken at Rally, but Condition Improves

Controller Charles W. Berry was hurriedly taken from his home, on the Romer Road, Dongan Hills, S. I., yesterday morning to a sanitarium in upper Manhattan, suffering acutely from a recurrence of a stomach ailment which has troubled him at times in recent years.

From friends and associates who called at the sanitarium last evening it was learned that the Controller was resting more easily but that there was no likelihood that he would be able to leave the sanitarium for three or four days at best. Mr. Berry's colleagues in the City Hall and in his office were reticent concerning the nature of the attack and its seriousness, but it was admitted that for this week he would be unable to be active in the campaign. He was scheduled to speak last night in Queens with Mayor Walker and Aldermanic President McKee, and was to have delivered an address in some part of the city every night this week.

The Controller was stricken with severe pain last Saturday night when he was one of the principal speakers in the Democratic campaign rally in the Bronx. He devoted his address on that occasion to a plea that the electorate vote "Yes" in answer to the question whether the city shall adopt a Department of Sanitation with enlarged and consolidated powers for safeguarding the public health.

He remained in his home on Sunday, hoping to throw off his illness, but his condition yesterday morning became so acute that it was thought best to provide immediate hospital care. There was surprise when Mr. Berry did not appear yesterday morning in his accustomed place in the Committee of the Whole of the Board of Estimate. In his absence, Deputy Controller Frank J. Frial acted for him.

Mr. Berry was forced to leave his desk for a considerable time last Summer to conserve his health, and about two weeks ago he returned from a brief vacation taken for the same purpose.

Pilot Saves Air Mail by Leap In Parachute With Bag in Arm

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 21 (AP).—Tucking his mail-bag under his arm, Harry Sievers, pilot of the Pittsburgh-Cleveland air mail route, leaped in his parachute 1,000 feet to safety as his plane crashed in a field near Beaver Falls early today.

Sievers was flying from Bettis Field, here, to Cleveland, when his motors stopped. Seizing the lone bag of mail, he leaped. The plane was demolished. Sievers took the mail to the postoffice in Beaver Falls and arrangements were made to transfer it to another plane.

Whalen Announces His New Secret Service Has Solved A. E. Frank & Co. Loss.

HE INVOLVES LAWYERS

Two Attorneys and Insurance Adjuster Questioned—One Man Under Arrest.

The solving by the recently organized secret service squad of the Police Department of the theft of $200,000 worth of bonds belonging to Arthur E. Frank & Co., brokers, of 100 Broadway, on Aug. 8, was announced last night by Police Commissioner Whalen.

At the same time the commissioner announced that a ring of lawyers and others implicated in the thefts had been brought to light and that indictments in the case were expected today.

One man, Irwin Knott, described as a salesman, of 1,328 Grand Concourse, the Bronx, is under arrest, Mr. Whalen said. Knott was held in Tombs Court last Sunday in $5,000 bail for examination on Oct. 28 on a charge of grand larceny. He was rearrested immediately afterward in connection with the fatal shooting on July 2 of Salvatore Sisto of 65 Mott Street.

Two Lawyers Questioned.

Two lawyers and an insurance adjuster for the United States Fidelity and Casualty Company of 16 Liberty Street have been questioned at length by the police. The lawyers are Capt. J. Lewis, with offices in the Knickerbocker Building at 152 West Forty-second Street, and Morris Lichtman, with offices at 58 West Forty-second Street. The insurance adjuster is Ferdinand Gillespie. The police said last night that Lewis and Lichtman had been taken as material witnesses and released in $1,000 bail.

The only one of the three who could be reached last night was Lichtman. He declined over the telephone from his residence at 2,085 Morris Avenue, the Bronx, to discuss the case.

Detectives have recovered $110,000 worth of the $200,000 bonds stolen from the Frank company, Mr. Whalen said.

Theft Was One of Boldest.

The theft of the Frank bonds was one of the boldest and the most baffling of a number of such depredations which have confronted the police in recent months. The bonds were in the care of a runner, James Weitz, 19 years old, of 42-31 Sixty-fourth Street, Woodside, Queens. He left them on the runners bench in his employer's office on the twelfth floor of the building at 100 Broadway while he went to get a drink of water. When he returned they were gone. He was questioned and exonerated.

Mr. Whalen announced the solution of the case at 7:45 o'clock last evening in a four-page typewritten statement, which was handed to reporters in his office. When reporters questioned him about points in the statement he replied:

"No questions. The statement is self-explanatory."

Then he hurried away from his office.

Says $75,000 Reward Was Sought.

The statement asserted that the first clue to the stolen bonds came from Gillespie about Aug. 24. Gillespie, according to Mr. Whalen, approached representatives of the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland and told them that he was in a position to recover the stolen bonds for a cash consideration of about $75,000. He said he had received a telephone call from an unknown person, whom he subsequently met at the information booth in the Grand Central Station, according to the commissioner's statement, and this unknown person offered to return the bonds for $75,000.

After considerable negotiation, according to the commissioner, Gillespie delivered approximately $110,000 worth of the bonds to representatives of the surety company at the Hotel Commodore and received in return $45,590.

Gillespie was unable to deliver any more of the bonds. Meanwhile he was kept under surveillance by detectives and finally taken to Police Headquarters and questioned by the police and Assistant District Attorney Garrison.

Soon after the two attorneys also were questioned and upon information they gave, according to Mr. Whalen, Knott was arrested.

STOCKS SLUMP AGAIN, BUT RALLY AT CLOSE ON STRONG SUPPORT

SOME ISSUES SHOW GAINS

Market Broadest in Its History With 920 Stocks Dealt In—Day's Sales 6,091,870.

CURB TRADING SETS RECORD

Washington Holds That Situation Is Sound — Exchanges in Other Cities See Heavy Losses.

Amid scenes of wild confusion and drastically lower prices, the stock market continued yesterday to pay the piper for its long dance of advancing and inflated prices. Organized support for pivotal stocks did not develop strongly until the last half hour of trading and after a day in which popular shares were jarred to their foundations by a tremendous volume of liquidation.

Losses on the day ranged from 2 to more than 10 points in the average active issues, with other losses in inactive stocks running up to 145 points. Bank stocks and many prominent over-the-counter issues were weak and considerably lower. On the other hand, in some important sections of the market there were gains of 1 to 11 points. Trading was so confused, the market was so big and broad, and the tape so late, that most traders in stocks had no idea where they stood at any particular time. At any rate in those stocks which reflected vulnerability, the losses of open market value ran into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Five Factors in Decline.

Five major factors are considered mainly responsible for the market's wide break, which now has lasted through three days of trade and has cut billions off open market values. These are:

The catching of a multitude of stop-loss orders also added to the confusion.

Foreign liquidation on a large scale, especially in the railroad stocks, as foreigners had to protect their interests at home.

The development of a wave of apprehension among stockholders, many of whom still had profits.

Market Broadest on Record.

Several records were broken in the day's trading. The total issues dealt in aggregated 920, the broadest on record. Sales on the Stock Exchange aggregated 6,091,870 shares, marking the second day this year when the volume has crossed the 6,000,000 mark. The biggest was the 8,246,742 shares of March 26, 1929. Sales on the Curb market were the greatest on record, being 3,715,400 shares.

The trading on both major Exchanges was greater than the facilities could handle. The tickers started to lag after the first ten minutes or so of trading. By noon they were an hour late. This was increased to 76 minutes in early afternoon and it was not until about 100 minutes after the close that the final transaction of active stocks was printed.

Many expedients were adopted in the attempt to acquaint the thousands of eager speculators with the market state of their stocks. Fre-

Old Park Reservoir Soon to Be Playground; Board to Provide $100,000 to Begin Work

On motion of Mayor Walker the Board of Estimate restored to the calendar yesterday for favorable action next Thursday a resolution to appropriate $100,000 for preliminary work in transforming the old south reservoir in Central Park into a parkland and a playground.

Plans and specifications for the conversion of the old reservoir were presented to Mayor Walker last July by Walter R. Herrick, Commissioner of Parks for Manhattan, who has estimated the approximate cost of the improvements at from $450,000 to $500,000. It was pointed out in a report yesterday that the cost probably could be materially reduced by utilizing for filling material excavated earth and stone taken from the new municipal west side subway.

By draining the reservoir and leveling its embankments, thirty-two acres would be restored as a typical part of Central Park. According to present plans, a bowling green, school garden and croquet field will be laid out along its northern boundary.

Provision also is to be made for a drive in the northern part of the area, affording a connection with the east and west drives of Central Park. The central part of the old reservoir area would be landscaped and traversed midway from north to south by a brook, spanned by a series of rustic bridges and feeding a large wading pool for children.

Immediately south of the wading pool, a play field has been incorporated in the tentative plans, including a shelter house and comfort station.

During the administration of Mayor Hylan an unsuccessful movement was begun to place on the site a memorial to the soldiers of New York who gave their lives in the World War.

EDISON RE-CREATES HIS ELECTRIC LAMP AS HOOVER LEADS IN TRIBUTE TO HIM; WORLD BY RADIO JOINS ANNIVERSARY FETE

Edison Accepts Honor As Paid to His Life Purpose, Advancing Human Understanding and Happiness

DEARBORN, Mich., Oct. 21.—After President Hoover and Owen D. Young had voiced mankind's gratitude to him and messages of homage from all over the world had been heard, it was Thomas Edison's turn to speak at the dinner in his honor here tonight. He accepted the universal tribute not so much for himself as for the cause to which he has dedicated his life—the advancement of humanity in understanding and happiness.

In his response Mr. Edison said:

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen: I am told that tonight my voice will reach out to the four corners of the world. It is an unusual opportunity for me to express my deep appreciation and thanks to you all for the countless evidences of your good-will. I thank you from the bottom of my heart.

I would be embarrassed at the honors that are being heaped on me on this unforgettable night were it not for the fact that in honoring me you are also honoring that vast army of thinkers and workers of the past, and those who are carrying on, without whom my work would have gone for nothing.

If I have spurred men to greater efforts and if our work has widened the horizon of man's understanding even a little and given a measure of happiness in the world, I am content.

This experience makes me realize as never before that Americans are sentimental, and this crowning event of light's golden jubilee fills me with gratitude. I thank our President and you all.

As to Henry Ford, words are inadequate to express my feelings. I can only say to you that, in the fullest and richest meaning of the term—he is my friend.

Good night.

Civic Groups Here and in New Jersey Give Dinners—Edison Pioneers Meet at Menlo.

New York acknowledged its debt to Thomas A. Edison and to his genius last night by flooding its avenues with unusual brilliance, by lighting its lofty towers when the day's work had ended and by writing its achievement in the sky with eager searchlight beams. The entire metropolitan area joined in the tribute.

Dinners were given in brilliantly lighted hotel ballrooms here, in Newark, Atlantic City, Jersey City and other communities in New Jersey, and at Menlo Park, where the incandescent lamp was perfected fifty years ago, the Edison pioneers assembled to listen to their chief by radio and speak again of him and their early triumphs.

More than 600 merchants and business men, members of the Broadway Association, celebrated the anniversary at a special luncheon in the Hotel Astor.

Golden Lights on Broadway.

Broadway, from Thirty-fourth Street to Columbus Circle, was transformed last night into a "golden way" by the New York Edison Company, while in Fifth Avenue also special gold lights commemorated the event. Merchants along these and other thoroughfares displayed special designs, placing banners, copies of the original lamp and other symbols of electric illumination.

A special outdoor display in honor of Edison, contributed by the General Outdoor Advertising Company in the form of a huge electric sign at Broadway and Forty-third Street, bearing the inscription: "Light's Golden Jubilee. 1879-1929," was switched on last night by Dr. John

EDISON SELLS PEACH TO HOOVER ON TRAIN

Inventor, Once Again a News Butcher, Relives the Days of His Youth.

SCHWAB SWIPES AN APPLE

Antique Train Takes Distinguished Party to Ford's Re-created Village at Dearborn.

From a Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

DEARBORN, Mich., Oct. 21.—A train out of the past pulled into the station at Smith's Creek today, the wood-burning locomotive puffing valiantly and the old-fashioned bell clanging loudly. It brought President Hoover, Thomas A. Edison, Henry Ford and their wives to a village called back from the long ago.

The village was the town of Greenfield built by Mr. Ford to re-establish the scenes of his boyhood, and rushed to completion in the last few months in order to serve as the locale of the tribute to Mr. Edison on the golden jubilee of his discovery of the incandescent lamp.

For some time the President, the inventor, the great automobile manufacturer and several hundred of the nation's leaders strolled through Greenfield and its reconstructed neighbor, Menlo Park, N. J.

Charles M. Schwab, passing through the rain-shattered windows of Elias A. Brown's country store, abstractedly put his hand in the apple barrel and picked out a fine green apple, a particularly fine apple for one seemingly chosen unconsciously. John D. Rockefeller jr., the collar of his raincoat about his ears, chatted with friends in the yard outside the cobbler's shop, while the rain dripped unnoticed from his hat brim.

Kahn Rides in "One-Hoss Shay."

Otto H. Kahn, patron of the arts, strolled through the postoffice, hugely enjoying the surroundings, and then went out to climb into a one-horse shay, one of the fifty vehicles of the dear, dead days which Mr. Ford had provided to give further authenticity to his resurrection and transplantation of a village of fifty years ago.

The President himself splashed through muddy clay brought from Mr. Edison's estate in New Jersey. Owen D. Young, far from war debts or reparations or world-weighty conferences, stepped from a shiny cab, drawn by a pair of spanking bays. The muffled and top-hatted drivers had imagination enough to call them spanking, and went into the Clinton Inn, built in 1832, where the dance floor is of the "spring" type, constructed to sway to the cadence of dancing feet.

A banker and an industrialist eating peanuts from Edison's store, looked retrospectively at the old time bar and its array of labelless bottles.

It was, however, the train itself that seemed to strike deepest into the past. Drawn by the Sam Hill, a locomotive turned out by the Rodgers Locomotive Works in Paterson, N. J., in 1860, the train was composed of three coaches, one a combination baggage and passenger car.

DEBT OF MANKIND VOICED

Young Speaks for Ford and Reads Messages From Prince of Wales and Hindenburg.

By BRUCE RAE.

Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

DEARBORN, Mich., Oct. 21.—Thomas Alva Edison, whose fingers magically woke the world to a new brilliance fifty years ago, stood tonight over the battered work table in the same laboratory in which he made his original experiments and with trembling hands reconstructed his incandescent lamp.

In 1879 he worked in obscurity, a tall and rangy figure with steel blue eyes that held the impassioned light which has survived, his 82 years. Tonight, on the golden jubilee of his triumph over the forces of nature, the President of the United States, Henry Ford, his oldest friend, and Francis Jehl, who aided him as a youth of 20, stood by while the world acclaimed the wizard of Menlo Park.

The dim yellow flame of the oil lamps illuminating a reconstructed Menlo Park leaped to a golden spray of dazzling amberes as the incandescent lamp flashed anew on a scientist grown silver-haired and frail in the laboratory which has given so many wonders to the world.

The miracle of light was described over a national hook-up and was rebroadcast on short waves to reach the remote corners of the globe, even going to faraway Antarctica so that Commander Byrd's men might listen in.

Gratitude of All Mankind.

Hailed by President Hoover as one to whom every American owed a debt "not alone a debt for great benefactions he has brought to mankind, but also a debt for the honor he has brought to our country," Mr. Edison received the tributes of men of affairs the world over.

Here, in old surroundings which Mr. Ford had resurrected from the past, a notable assembly of distinguished Americans paid personal tribute to the inventor at a dinner at which the President spoke.

Mr. Edison, by his own genius and effort rose from modest beginnings to membership among the leaders of men, said Mr. Hoover, turning toward the scientist whom he was honoring on behalf of the country at large. "His life gives renewed confidence that our institutions hold open the door of opportunity to all those who would enter."

Two distinguished fellow scientists were among those who honored him on the occasion of the golden jubilee arranged by Mr. Ford. The message of Albert Einstein was flashed to him across the Atlantic, with another touch of magic out of the laboratory of the twentieth century, and Mme. Marie Curie, a shrinking figure standing timorously in the background, was present at the ceremonies to honor a man whose name is known to the furthest ends of the earth.

Amid Scenes of 50 Years Ago.

Menlo Park, faithfully reconstructed by the meticulous Mr. Ford, even to the transference of topsoil from New Jersey to Dearborn so that Mr. Edison's feet might be planted in the original foundation, moved the great inventor to deep emotion throughout the day.

From the moment he stepped into an ornate train in the morning with the President—who had halted motor cars in the Middle West to pay a rare and unusual tribute to a private citizen—until the oil lamps of Menlo Park faded like a dream in the sudden crescendo of modern, high-voltage electricity, he was reliving the days of 1879.

Millions and the will to honor an old friend was marshaled Henry Ford and the Edison Pioneers, an organization of old Edison associates, to turn back the pages in Mr. Edison's life.

Round about Mr. Edison were the village shops of Menlo Park as they were a half century ago. The old boarding house where the inventor's staff of employes lived, the laboratory itself, the same elm stump in the front yard and, as he remarked, "the same damn Jersey clay."

Miracle Burns Upon Night Sky.

As he stood in the workshop tonight, the glow of his lamp uniting gave a distant and dim view of the vast River Rouge works of Mr. Ford. The little group, from whom for the moment fifty years had fallen away, could see the huge buildings lose their vague outlines as they were illuminated at a signal.

Nation Celebrates Edison's Feat in Golden Jubilee of Light

The shops, with their mass production of 8,000 cars a day, seemed to symbolize the industrial advances made since Mr. Edison's lamp began to challenge the night.

Edison Re-enacts Experiment.

The famous scientist left the dinner in his honor to re-enact the experiment which produced the lamp. He was accompanied only by his wife and President and Mrs. Hoover. Mr. Jehl had preceded the party to the red brick laboratory, dim in the misty rain and in the grounds, then lighted only by oil lamps.

As Mr. Edison walked through the front yard, the President a step behind him, the surroundings and the building itself were exactly as they were on that momentous night a half century ago.

The scientist led the way to his workshop on the second floor, a long room, lined with shelves filled with chemical bottles with yellowing labels.

What happened then was told to the world and to those at the dinner by radio. The reason for the exclusion of all save news agency representatives and the broadcasters was the cramped space of the laboratory.

Mr. Edison, his tall figure now somewhat stooped, walked to his table. The dim lights played over his strong, grave face and shimmered in his silvery hair.

The President, as though he, too, felt the drama deeply, stood watching beside the table. Mrs. Edison and Mrs. Hoover sat near by. Mr. Jehl, the scientist at the table, turned the pages of a notebook. It was the book in which he had written the reactions of previous and unsuccessful tests.

Assistant Plays His Rôle.

The assistant, as he had done fifty years ago, told Mr. Edison that the lamp under test had had a good vacuum. Adjustments of the wires were made and then the effort to force air from the lamp was begun.

The pump of an organ at the far end of the room, the silvered pipes standing out sharply against the yellow pine walls, was employed to withdraw the air.

Meanwhile, the distinguished company at the dinner and millions of others listened in over the radio in this country and abroad, following the scene in their minds.

A pause, and, then, to fill in the wait of a minute or two, Henry Ford's old-time orchestra played one of Mr. Edison's favorites, "Oh, Susanna."

The lively tune died away, and one new that the scientist had got up om the chair at the table to test e vacuum. Then he told his assiant to seal it. Slowly the party oved downstairs to the dynamo om. The crucial time had come.

They were in the room, the world ard, and then the incandescent mp burned. The world had witssed the fruition of a dream which as to remake it.

Thousands upon thousands of lights ashed up from the Ford land. reat golden bulbs, which had been oncealed up to the moment of chievement, thrust themselves out f the night. Vivid beams of light lashed the sky and dipped to cover he ground with clean white light.

The high beacon at the airport flashed into view, its outlines traced in powerful bulbs, and looking at a distance like the strands of a fiery necklace, loosely suspended from the heavens.

High in the tower of Independence Hall golden lights were turned on. The tower seemed sheathed in gold, and as the illumination gained volume and strength the Liberty bell in the cupola rang out sturdy notes.

Up from the airport and into dangerous flying conditions roared two airplanes. One, in white lights, circled high above the hall. The other, coated with red bulbs, drummed in a wider circle over Detroit, where the bells were rung and the whistles blown.

Fireworks whizzed into the air, burst, and sprinkled the background of night with multicolored fire spray. Aerial bombs snapped with loud reports, and at the height of the celebration Mr. Edison left his laboratory and with the President returned to the dinner.

When the experiment had been ended and the grounds had been flooded with modern lighting, Mr. Edison, escorted by the President, Mr. Ford and the others, returned to Independence Hall, a duplicate of the famous original in Philadelphia, where the dinner to Mr. Edison was held.

Although he had been up early and had gone through the full round of an exciting day, Mr. Edison still had his smile when his reappearance caused a demonstration of affection. The diners had followed the drama in the laboratory through loud-speakers installed in the dining hall.

Owen D. Young presided at the dinner, which marked not only the climax of the tribute to Mr. Edison but the dedication of the Edison Institute of Technology, founded by Mr. Ford.

As One Master Workman to Another

Mr. Young, in telling of Mr. Ford's share in the ceremonies, said that the tribute was "of one master workman to another."

"Mr. Edison," he said, "to express what is in the hearts and minds of all who hear my voice, my first word must be not one of appreciation of your great inventions or of the service which they have rendered, but rather one of congratulation on that vitality of spirit which makes you do what you do.

"You come to Greenfield village today adventuresome still, as if life lay all ahead of you and none behind. To be sure the passengers of your railway train took a little more notice of you than they did seventy years ago when you tried to sell them papers.

"The greeting at Smith's Creek depot was a little warmer than on that memorable day in 1861 when the railroad people dispensed with your services because you set fire to their cars with the same vitality of which I speak, aided by a little phosphorus.

"That was a great day for the electrical industry; one might say that that industry was largely born at Smith's Creek depot. The same unconquerable will and unquenchable fire which took you out of that depot and set you on your career brings you back to it today, defying the years that have since gone by.

"It was that vitality of spirit which forced your head to conceive and your hands to execute, which defied sleep as you now defy age.

"But it did not work alone on your mind and body, and that, I suspect, is the secret of your great success. It worked on and through your heart, and that I know is the secret of this meeting today.

"Your head and your body, driven to their utmost, could not alone have stood the strain. It needed one thing more, and that you had—a vital sympathy with and generosity toward men, your own assistants and associates.

"This drew around you at Menlo Park a group of young men, voluntarily worshiping at your shrine, now known as Edison Pioneers, but who might be known as the apostles of the electrical industry, attracted and held by your enthusiasm, coupled with all the things which make one man serve another.

Homage of World-Wide Millions.

"As you grew older, and projected that vitality in other fields, great leaders and millions of men, women and children have been attracted by it. All seek to do you honor. The President of the United States is here. Millions of people, not alone in your country but in others, celebrate with you tonight on the radio; and without your lamp as a forerunner the radio would have been impossible.

"Most conspicuous of the many is our host, Mr. Henry Ford. He has built the Edison Institute of Technology and Industrial Museum in your honor. Other men could have built an institute, but Mr. Ford has done something more.

"When certain materials are exposed to radium—and no greater honor could be done to Mr. Edison and to this company than the presence of Mme. Curie—when certain materials, as I said, are exposed to radium, the glow of that marvelous element continues for time and perhaps eternity. It lights the dark places, like the radium-exposed hands of our watches.

"And so Mr. Ford has brought to Greenfield Village not only every piece of apparatus which Mr. Edison used at Menlo Park, but every chair, brick and stone, and even earth, in order that these common things, once exposed to the personality of Thomas A. Edison, may still radiate from this museum for generations to come the vitality which was his.

"In the same group of buildings and a part of the same village is the court house touched by the personality of Lincoln, the cobbler shop in which Whittier mended shoes, the building in which Luther Burbank worked at Santa Rosa, and I am sure that Mr. Ford will pardon me for mentioning the schoolhouse in which Mr. Ford himself sat as a boy.

"Last, and perhaps loveliest of all, there is the church which was built from the bricks of Mrs. Ford's father's house, and carries the doors of that house, the opening or closing of which, in the years gone by, meant so much to Henry Ford.

"I cannot close what I have to say without congratulating Mr. Edsel Ford, joint host with his father on this occasion, on receiving such an inheritance, nor can I omit to congratulate Mr. Henry Ford on having such a worthy trustee to carry on.

"And now, ladies and gentlemen everywhere, I welcome you on this occasion, which is made great not only by the persons here, but principally, in my mind, because it is the tribute of one master workman to another."

Five Hundred Guests at Dinner.

The dining hall was decorated with laurel and palms, with here and there bunches of leaves gilded with gold dust. The guests, numbering more than 500, sat at long tables arranged in rows from the speakers' table.

With Mr. Edison and the President on the dais were the following:

Gerard B. Swope, George Eastman, John D. Rockefeller Jr., Mrs. Ford, Mme. Curie, Mr. Young, Mr. Ford, Mrs. Edison, Secretary of War Good, Mrs. Hoover, Charles Edison, son of the inventor; Mrs. Young, George Akerson, Secretary to the President, and W. S. Barstow of the Edison Pioneers, who spoke briefly.

Mr. Young read messages of congratulations sent by the Prince of Wales and by President von Hindenburg of Germany.

The Prince added to his congratulations his personal good wishes, saying that Mr. Edison by his work had enriched all mankind. President von Hindenburg said that Mr. Edison's name was as well known in Germany as it was throughout the remainder of the world.

Then the toastmaster sprang a surprise. He called upon Mr. Edison to make a speech. It had been understood that he would be spared this, for he dislikes speech-making very much. Before the scientist was called upon—and he responded with alacrity—Mr. Young said:

"Mr. Henry Ford will not speak." He asked Mr. Ford to rise. Mr. Ford did so and replied to the tumult of applause by bowing three times. Mr. Edison then read a prepared speech.

Mr. Ford declined to give an official list of the more than 500 guests he invited to participate in the tribute to Mr. Edison.

Text of President Hoover's Address at the Dearborn Fete

DEARBORN, Mich., Oct. 21.—President Hoover, in his address at the Edison anniversary exercises and dedication, said:

Fellow Countrymen and Women:

This ceremony is a part of the celebration of Mr. Edison's invention of the electric lamp. It is also the dedication of the Edison Institute of Technology, the gift of Mr. Ford. Both are, in fact, national tributes to Mr. Edison.

The multiplication of the amount of light in the world a thousandfold is worthy of celebration, for darkness is a forbidden human activities.

When Mr. Edison invented the electric lamp he may perhaps have thought just to produce plain light and more of it at less cost. I surmise that his wildest ambition was to relieve the human race from the curse of always cleaning oil lamps, scrubbing up candle drips, and everlastingly carrying one or the other of them about. He may have thought to add safety to Chicago against a second accident from an oil lamp.

But the electric lamp has found infinite variety of unexpected uses. It enables us to postpone our spectacles for a few years longer; it has made reading in bed infinitely more comfortable; by merely pushing a button we have introduced the element of surprise in dealing with burglars; the goblins that lived in dark cornera and under the bed have now been driven to the outdoors; evil deeds which inhabit the dark have been driven back into the farthest retreats of the night; it enables the doctor to peer into the recesses of our insides; it substitutes for the hot-water bottle in aches and pains; it enables our cities and towns to clothe themselves in gaiety by night, no matter how sad their appearance may be by day.

And by all its multiple uses it has lengthened the hours of our active lives, decreased our fears, replaced the dark with good cheer, increased our safety, decreased our toil, and enblade us to read the type in the telephone book. It has become the friend of man and child.

Modern Method of Invention.

In making this, as in his other great inventions, Mr. Edison gave an outstanding illustration of the value of the modern method and system of invention, by which highly equipped, definitely organized laboratory research transforms the raw material of scientific knowledge into new tools for the hand of man.

In earlier times mechanical invention had been the infrequent and haphazard product of genius in the woodshed. But science had become too sophisticated a thing to be wrecked in such surroundings. Now, more than a thousand applied science laboratories, supported by industries of our country, yearly produce a host of new inventions.

I can perhaps illustrate this modern method of invention. The fundamental natural laws of electricity were discovered three-quarters of a century ago by Faraday, Hertz, Maxwell and other great investigators in the realms of pure physics and mathematics. Faraday discovered that energy could be transformed into electricity through induction, the theory of the electrical generator. It was one of the momentous discoveries of history.

It is related that M. Gladstone was induced to visit Faraday's labratory to see this new scientific contraption. When Gladstone is said to have made the characteristic practical man's inquiry, "Will this ever be of use to mankind?" Faraday replied, "Some day you will collect taxes from it."

Mr. Edison, using organized systematic laboratory research, has been one of the great leaders who have converted the pure physics of electricity into a taxable product. Today the governments of the world levy upon upward of $60,000,000,000 of new wealth founded upon electricity.

But the taxes and new wealth are not the major accomplishments of the men of this genius. These are the rivers of sweat saved from the backs of men and the infinite drudgery relieved from the hands of women.

Research Leads to Progress.

I may emphasize that both scientific discovery and its practical application are the products of long and arduous research. Discovery and invention do not spring full grown from the brains of men. The labor of a host of men, great laboratories, long, patient, scientific experiment build up the structure of knowledge, not stone by stone, but particle by particle. This adding of fact to fact some days brings forth a revolutionary discovery, an illuminating hypothesis, a great generalization or a practical invention.

Research both in pure science and in its application to the arts is one of the most potent impulses to progress. For it is organized research that gives daily improvement in machines and processes, in methods of agriculture, in the protection of health and in understanding. From these we gain constantly in better standards of living, more stability of employment, lessened toil, lengthened human life and decreased suffering. In the end our leisure expands, our interest in life enlarges, our vision stretches. There is more joy in life.

It is the increasing productivity of men's labor through the tools given us by science that shattered the gloomy prophecies of Malthus. More than a century ago that student held that increasing population would outrun the food supply and starvation was to be the inevitable executioner of the overcrowded earth.

But since his day we have seen the paradox of the growth of population far beyond anything of which he ever dreamed, coupled at the same time with constantly increasing standards of living and ever-increasing surplus of food. Malthus was right except for a new contestant in the race with his principle: That was more scientific research, more discovery. And that race is still on. If we would have our country improve its standards of living and at the same time accommodate itself to increasing population we must maintain on an even more liberal scale than ever before our great laboratories of both pure and applied science.

Our scientists and inventors are among our most priceless national possessions. There is no sum that the world could not afford to pay these men who have that originality of mind, that devotion and industry to carry scientific thought forward in steps and strides until it spreads to the comfort of every home; not by all the profits of all the banks in the world can we measure the contribution which these men make to our progress.

Nation Honors Such.

And they are the least interested in the monetary results. Their satisfactions are in their accomplishment, in the contribution of some atom of knowledge which will become part of the great mechanism of progress. Their discoveries are not the material for headlines. Their names are usually known but to a few. But the nation owes them a great honor and is proud to demonstrate through Mr. Edison today that their efforts are not unappreciated. The country can well pay its tribute to the men of this genius by expanding the facilities for their labors. The nation today needs more support to research. It needs still more laboratories. To that Mr. Ford is making a generous contribution.

And in establishing this institute Mr. Ford is doing honor to Mr. Edison in a manner which appeals to a sense of fitness—that is, by founding an institution dedicated to education and scientific research.

And scientific research means more than its practical results in increased living comfort. The future of our nation is not merely a question of the development of our industries, of reducing the cost of living, of multiplying our harvests, or of larger leisure. We must constantly strengthen the fiber of national life by the inoculation of that veracity of thought which springs from the search for truth. From its pursuit we shall discover the unfolding of beauty, we shall stimulate the aspiration for knowledge, we shall ever widen human understanding.

Mr. Edison has given a long life to such service. Every American owes a debt to him. It is not alone a debt for great benefactions; he has a debt for the honor he has brought to our country. Mr. Edison by his own genius and effort rose from modest beginnings to membership among the leaders of men. His life gives renewed confidence that our institutions hold open the door of opportunity to all those who would enter.

Our civilization is much like a garden. It is to be appraised by the quality of its blooms. In degree as we fertilize its soil with liberty, as we maintain diligence in cultivation and guardianship against destructive forces, do we then produce those blossoms, the fragrance of whose lives stimulates renewed endeavor, gives to us the courage to renewed effort and confidence of the future.

CITY'S LIGHTS WRITE TRIBUTE IN THE SKY

A. Harris, president of the Broadway Association.

At the jubilee luncheon in the Astor, arranged by the Broadway Association, Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, delivered the principal address. The celebration was broadcast over the Columbia Broadcasting Company's network of fifty-four stations. Dr. Harriss presided and Police Commissioner Whalen spoke briefly, accepting on behalf of the city the large sign erected in Times Square.

Inventor Expresses Thanks.

Dr. Harriss read a letter he had received from Mr. Edison's secretary, expressing the inventor's gratification for being "thus honored" by the Broadway Association and other civic bodies participating in the celebration.

Will Oakland, who made the first Edison vocal record, "Silver Threads Among the Gold," sang the song again at the luncheon, accompanied by his orchestra, which played during the celebration. Among the orchestra selection was "The Miracle Man," a special song composed by George M. Cohan in honor of Edison.

The Rev. Dr. W. Russell Bowie, rector of Grace Church, pronounced the invocation at the luncheon.

In Jersey City more than 250 men and women assembled in the ballroom of the Hotel Plaza at a special Edison dinner arranged by the Jersey City Chamber of Commerce, the Kiwanis Club, the Rotary Club and the Lions Club. In a place of prominence, brilliantly lighted, was an Edison plaque and from loud speakers arranged about the room the diners heard the voice of Edison and of President Hoover as they spoke in Dearborn.

General William C. Heppenheimer, toastmaster at the dinner extolled Edison, the man, and his works and the meeting voted to draw up and forward to the inventor an illuminated resolution embracing most of the toastmaster's remarks. Former Governor A. Harry Moore addressed the diners.

In Newark a special Light's Golden Jubilee luncheon was given in the assembly hall of the Newark Chamber of Commerce, with John L. O'Toole, vice president of the Public Service Corporation, as principal speaker. He spoke of Mr. Edison as "a man who is symbolic of America."

Thomas A. Edison Jr. of Newark, William E. Edison of Wilmington, Del., and Marion Edison Oeser of Norwalk, Conn., three of Mr. Edison's children, attended the ceremonies at Menlo Park, the place where the incandescent lamp threw its first light. Former Governor George Silzer of New Jersey was the principal speaker.

Mr. Silzer said he regretted that Mr. Edison had not been able to remain in Menlo Park for the celebration and urged that the State of New Jersey begin a movement to erect an official monument on the spot.

Former United States Senator Frelinghuysen and United States Commissioner John A. Matthews of Newark also spoke.

At Roselle, N. J., where one of Mr. Edison's first "loop wire" lights was placed in operation over the parish house of the First Presbyterian Church, a celebration was held last night in front of the borough hall, with Mayor Delano as the principal speaker. In Elizabeth a jubilee dinner was given in the Winfield Scott Hotel.

By touching a button at Dearborn Mr. Edison threw into bright illumination at Menlo Park, a lamp of 300 individual lights, set on a 100-foot tower, and at the same time lighting a smaller lamp at the foot of the tower which is to burn perpetually. The watchers cheered as the light flashed on their faces.

In Atlantic City hundreds of persons attended a jubilee dinner in the Municipal Auditorium, heard the broadcast from Detroit and a speech by Mayor Ruffu.

All high schools in the Orange and Maplewood districts, near the Edison home, celebrated the anniversary last night with special exercises.

Edison Tries to Flee Dinner; Returns When Wife Insists

Press a Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

DEARBORN, Mich., Oct. 21.—Thomas A. Edison was profoundly moved by the world-wide tribute to him, and the depth of his feeling was shown by an incident tonight. He had carried out his demonstration of his perfection of the incandescent lamp, and with President Hoover returned to the banquet hall.

As the President preceded him into the hall, Mr. Edison sat down on a davenport just outside the door. He was plainly overwhelmed.

"I won't go in," he said to his wife.

"What's the matter?" she said.

"I can't go in," reiterated the scientist.

"You are the whole show, you know," urged Mrs. Edison. "Do come on. Shall I get you a glass of milk?"

Mr. Edison drank the milk and re-entered the room.

JAPAN HONORS EDISON.

Tokio Aglow, Press Pays Tribute, Cabinet at Jubilee Banquet.

TOKIO, Oct. 21 (AP).—Japan, where Thomas Edison's electric light bulbs did not arrive until 1885, tonight began its celebrations on a nation-wide scale of the jubilee of the invention of the incandescent light. Japan is today one of the world's largest users of electric light.

Tokio's main thoroughfares were especially illuminated this evening, flowering arches of light spanning the Ginza, Tokio's Broadway, at its intersections with other important streets.

Japanese newspapers, both morning and evening, prominently displayed Mr. Edison's portrait, following it with articles paying tribute to his achievements.

Members of the Cabinet and other prominent persons attended a jubilee banquet under the auspices of the Japanese Electrical Society. They sent a cablegram of congratulations to Menlo Park. There were similar celebrations in other large cities.

SENATE HONORS EDISON.

New Jersey Members Voice State's Pride in Inventor.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP).—Senators Edge and Kean voiced New Jersey's pride in Thomas A. Edison before the Senate today in seconding a resolution, introduced by Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, which was adopted, marking the fiftieth anniversary of the invention of the incandescent lamp.

"New Jersey joins with Michigan in full appreciation of the wonderful achievements of Mr. Edison," Senator Edge said. "It is with pride that New Jersey draws attention to the fact that practically all of Mr. Edison's active life, and his investigations and laboratory work, resulting in the epoch-making contributions whic hhe has made through his untiring energy to the welfare and comfort of the entire world, was spent in New Jersey."

Senator Kean recalled his boyhood remembrances of Menlo Park, where Mr. Edison brought forth the first lamp. Enumerating his many inventions, the Senator said that the monument placed on the site of Mr. Edison's laboratory was the tribute paid by the State that claims Edison as her own.

"The light that burst on the civilized world at Menlo Park may be compared with the light that burst from the cradle of the Saviour at Bethlehem," Senator Kean said.

ada Junction Railway, that Mr. and Mrs. Hoover, Mr. and Mrs. Edison and Mr. and Mrs. Ford rode for the short run from the junction, where the President left his special and boarded the ancient "special" of the '60s.

Mr. Edison, who had spent the night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ford, welcomed the President at the Junction. The party had driven by car to the spur track leading from the main line of the Michigan Central to the depot at Smith's Creek. Mr. Hoover and his party were escorted by Mr. Edison and Mr. Ford to the old train. Before boarding her the President, highly diverted, walked the length of the platform, admiring Sam Hill and the coaches.

The old engine put on a brave show. Clouds of wood smoke were pouring from her mushroom-like stack. Flags fluttered from either side of the tiny headlight. The boiler glistened in a coat of fresh paint, and the brass bands encircling the boiler shone like gold.

The tender, also gleaming, was piled high with great chunks of wood. In tall yellow letters on the side of the tender was the name of the line—Atlantic & Gulf Railroad, a system long since vanished in mergers.

Car Decorated With Wreath.

The first car was vivid in buff paint, with paintings on the side showing pastoral scenes. A coat of arms appeared where, on Pullmans, the car name appears. A pine stepup rested at the steep stairs leading to the old-type open platform of each car.

The first coach had been reclaimed from the C. D. & C. Junct. Ry.—to quote the inscription—he second was once part of the equipment of the Bangor & Arcoostook Railroad, and the third was a relic of the Michigan Central Rzelf.

After thoroughly inspecting the train, with Mr. Ford pointing out the reminders of the past, the President boarded the first car. Mr. Edison refused, for all his 82 years and recent bad health, to join the party on the wooden benches.

The seats ran down the sides of the car as they do in the Interborough. Oil lamps were on fixtures above the distinguished passengers' heads, and one was lighted as a concession to the rainy day.

In one corner a brass-bound water tank, with a capacious tin cup, gurgled as the train started. In another a medicine chest, crammed with dusty bottles, stood guard in case anybody might get hurt on the new-fangled steam railroad.

A news butcher welcomed the guests by crying his wares. He had a basket of apples, with a few oranges, a box of thin white chewing candy wrapped in waxed paper, and a package full of a once-famous brand of "broken candy."

The news butcher must have recalled to Mr. Edison the days when he, too, plied the same calling and, having taken to chemical experiments in the baggage car between rounds, was summarily put off at the Smith's Creek station—the identical station at which he arrived today—when he set the car afire.

As the elderly scientist observed the news butcher, he smiled broadly. Going over to the apples and the candy, he reassumed his old calling.

"Candy, bananas, peaches, apples!" he called, looking about expectantly.

"I'll take a peach," said the President, pretending to offer the "butcher" a quarter.

Mr. Edison produced a peach from his stock and handed it to the President. Apparently, however, the "news butcher" had forgotten some of the essentials of the job because he didn't take the quarter. For a minute or two he was kept busy "selling" the fruits, which were eaten on the spot with relish.

Produces Old "House Organ."

As the Sam Hill, with a couple of shrill toots on the whistle and a great groaning and straining, got under way, Mr. Edison yielded the job of vendor to the uniformed attendant.

A copy of The Herald, a one-sheet paper which Mr. Edison published when he was the 15-year-old news butcher on the the "mixed train" between Port Huron, Mich., and Detroit, was handed to the passengers. It contained this notice:

To Grand Trunk Agents — We would feel obliged to the several agents along the line of the Grand Trunk Railway if they would be kind enough to send their orders for The Herald to the newsboy (T. Edison), mixed train Detroit section. Inclose eight cents per month strictly in advance.

N. B.—All items gladly received.

While the President and the other members of the party were chuckling over The Herald and its high subscription rate, the good and sturdy Sam Hill was, strictly figuratively, eating up the half mile to Smith's Creek station. The group of distinguished men who had come here to pay their tribute to the scientist were waiting meanwhile in the rain on the depot platform.

The rain and the sea of mud surrounding the station appeared to be no discomfort to any of them. Comments indicated that to some the old depot had recalled the days of their youth when they used to be on hand to see the train come in.

Right on time, or thereabouts the train came chugging into the station. The station agent, spick and span in his uniform and gold-braided cap, got importantly out in front of the welcomers to make certain that the train came in with all ceremony.

He waved familiarly to the engineer and fireman, blue-denimed masters of the steam monster—who waved back a wave that suggested the wavers were fully aware of their station in the scheme of things at Smith's Creek.

There was a great hissing of steam as the engineer shut off the throttle and the tall wheels of Sam Hill, gripped by screeching brakes, came to rest.

A cheer went up as the station agent, hastily shoving a truck loaded with old portmanteaus out of his way, placed a platform at the door of the baggage car for the passengers to alight.

The President, laughing heartily, came out, his arm through Mr. Edison's. Mrs. Hoover and Mr. Ford came next, followed by Mrs. Ford, Mrs. Edison and Secretary of War Good.

"Here we are, all safe and sound," said Mr. Edison gayly as he and the President, momentarily detached from the others by a strategic movement of the camera brigade, walked to the head of Sam Hill for photographers. Mr. Ford, with something plainly on his mind, joined them a second later.

The Rocket Goes Through Its Paces.

The "something" soon came snorting into view. It was the Rocket, a locomotive of a vintage even earlier than the Sam Hill. The Rocket made several trips up and down the track before retiring.

Mr. Edison meanwhile had been contemplating the painted exterior of the wood-burner.

"The Commodore," he said to the President, referring to Commodore Vanderbilt of the New York Central, "painted 'em black to make 'em look more commercial."

Before the President could reply the photographers had got to work. After a series at a distance, they asked for a close-up.

"Go ahead," said Mr. Hoover. "Do your worst."

The rain had begun falling heavily by then. Some one moved an umbrella over to shield Mr. Edison, who had the collar of his well-worn black overcoat up.

"No, no," he said, waving the umbrella off, "I don't need that. It might spoil the picture."

After the pictures the President, Mr. Edison, Mr. Ford and their wives informally received the distinguished men who had greeted them. Then the tour of Greenfield began, the party dividing into groups, each in charge of a guide from the Ford plant.

Mr. Hoover and Mr. Edison joined Mr. Ford at the Ford Airport during the afternoon, and then they returned to Mr. Ford's home to await the re-enactment of the incandescent lamp experiment and the dinner in Mr. Ford's duplicate of Independence Hall, which closed the tribute to Mr. Edison.

While the President was in Detroit the other visitors inspected the Menlo Park laboratory. Others went back to the depot, with its telegraphic instruments of the same type used by Mr. Edison when he was studying telegraphy, and its old-style Western Union blanks and signs.

Close by the station a cobbler in a tiny shop worked diligently. His shop was the Whittier Toll House, which once stood on the banks of the Merrimac River, near West Newbury, Mass. Whittier referred to the cobbler who, finding trade dull, took on the collection of tolls over a bridge next to his shop. The Plymouth House, a country farm house 75 years old, stands opposite the cobbler's shop.

Next door was the postoffice, 126 years old, with a chemist's shop at one end. The shelves of the pharmacy had been stocked with old bottles, and shelves of old yellow prescriptions were on view. The postoffice building was removed intact from Phoenixville, Conn.

Ford's Home Town Reproduced.

Passing along the village streets, the visitors came to the Common, with Clinton Inn; a quaint old church with feathery spire; the old Scotch settlement school which Henry Ford attended; the town hall, and the Lincoln court house. A livery stable adjoins the Common, where are kept the horses which Mr. Ford bought to draw his old-fashioned vehicles.

However, it was the village store which drew the most attention.

On sale inside—warm from a great-bellied stove—was everything from dustless and bedstands to cure-alls and kegs of nails. A barrel of apples invited the visitors and another held peanuts.

Women's clothing of a design long forgotten dangled from hooks, while lithographs of narrow-waisted ladies, looking naively backward over a shoulder, attracted attention to the virtues of a certain pill, the use of which was guaranteed to give the taker what passed in years gone by for that schoolgirl complexion.

It was duck before the visitors had had their fill of the old village and hurried back to Detroit to dress for the dinner. Oil lamps were making squares of yellow on the many-paned windows and a pastoral quiet had fallen, broken only by the clatter of horses' hoofs, when the first of the motor cars carrying the diners to Independence Hall began to appear.

Mr. Edison, Mr. Firestone and several others of the distinguished guests remained at the Ford home for the night, and will return tomorrow.

Estimates of the cost of the celebration run as high as $2,800,000, practically all of which will be met by Mr. Ford.

BYRD HEARS IN ANTARCTICA

Announcers Give Graphic Recital of Reproduction of Scene When First Electric Bulb Glowed.

The fiftieth anniversary of the birth of Thomas A. Edison's best known brain child, the incandescent light, furnished last night a fitting, thrilling, emotion-stirring subject for the first international radio broadcast. Millions of listeners here, in Europe, even in the now sunlit ice fields of Antarctica, heard and easily visualized the re-enactment of the scene that took place in the little laboratory of the wizard of Menlo Park on Oct. 21, 1879.

Seated around radio sets, almost throughout the world, families listened with rapt attention, no doubt, to the voice of the President of the United States speaking in a far lighter vein than is his wont, despite the serious character of the occasion; they heard later the voice of President Von Hindenburg of the Republic of Germany sending Mr. Edison his congratulations from Berlin. They were even privileged to listen to the reading of a message to the inventor from Commander Richard E. Byrd, sent from Little America at "the bottom of the world," and to know that Commander Byrd and his little group in Antarctica were also enjoying the celebration at Dearborn of "Light's Golden Jubilee."

Over the greatest hook-up that radio has yet attempted came the voices of several of its best representatives in the announcing field, all apparently moved by the occasion to do their most brilliant work. And sandwiched in between the speaking voices were tunes of half a century ago, airs that Mr. Edison loves best, including his favorites, "Susanna," "Annie Laurie," "Over the Waves," "Down Brown's Body," "Camp Town Races," "Dixie" and others.

As Mr. Edison, President Hoover and their party moved from point to point in the reproduced Menlo Park, which Henry Ford created in honor of the inventor, his oldest friend, microphones seemed to be just ahead of them. It was not necessary for Graham McNamee, Philips Carlin or William S. Lynch, the announcers, to let their hearers know that the President was approaching, as his arrival at the various points from which celebrations were given was easily recognized by the strains of "Hail to the Chief."

Candles Illuminate Scene.

Mr. McNamee first took up the description of the scene, telling of the unusual darkness due to the fact that, when the celebration started, only oil lamps and candles were alight. Thousands of hand-dipped candles, he said, sent their flickering flare through the Institute of Technology, which is a replica of Independence Hall in Philadelphia. The gathering he described as an "animated Who's Who," on "all the people whom you have ever seen any place, come together in one place to honor one person."

He described the reproduction of Edison's old laboratory, in which the inventor actually produced the first incandescent light, which was at that time referred to as "a newfangled contraption." As it all came collectively over the air, one announcer following up another, then the first taking up the attractive story again, it seemed to the listener-in like this:

A silent group awaits in the dimly lighted laboratory the arrival of Mr. Edison, who is to make the final test of what he believes will be a wonderful invention, an incandescent light that will, in effect, snuff out forever the candles of the world and substitute for their flicker a steady, far brighter glow of dependable electricity.

A deeper hush falls, Mr. Edison is approaching with his party. With him is the President of the United States and they are arriving in a horse-drawn carriage, for it is no longer 1929, but fifty years before that time and there are neither automobiles nor electric lights. They have arrived. In the centre of the laboratory is a strange-looking vacuum pump. It resembles a trombone without the horn. Its work is the removal of air from an electric light bulb.

Go Over First Lamp Again.

With Mr. Edison and the President is Dr. Jehl, who was one of the inventor's assistants on the memorable night that is being lived over again. On a table behind the old vacuum pump is a record. It is there fifty years ago. Edison enters first. It is his night of nights and even the President remains behind him. The young-old inventor, a reminiscent twinkle in his still clear eye, goes to the table, looks at the record book, puts his hands in his pockets and smiles again.

Dr. Jehl looks at the pump and the bulb. He tells Edison the lamp has a good vacuum, in his opinion. He touches wires leading from a wet battery. He seems content. But Edison is not wholly satisfied. He is only 32 years old tonight, and, although the world has not yet acclaimed him, he must make sure that this, his first great discovery, is given the best possible test and chance. No, Edison is not yet ready for the great event. He tells Dr. Jehl that everything is as it should be, then he and his party leave the laboratory temporarily, for the dynamo room.

There is the wood-burning boiler, the one he used on the great night which magically has returned to him in the evening of his eventful life. The boiler furnishes power for the old bi-polar electric dynamo. All seems ready for the great moment. He is prepared now to make the final test. He returns to the laboratory. Neither within or without the buildings in Menlo Park are there other lights than candles and oil-burning lamps. The year 1929 seems to have stepped aside in order that 1879 may return for just a night.

The old electric lamp has been sealed at Edison's direction. He draws near to it, picks up the two wires that Dr. Jehl had touched earlier, and, with a look of utmost confidence on his face, touches them. Will it light? Or is the hope of his early manhood doomed to die in the flare of candles?

It lights! There is no flicker there. It is a steady glow and far brighter than the brightest candle at its best. Edison's face gives forth a light that almost equals that of his invention, but that is a light which even he cannot give to all mankind.

Einstein Sends Tribute From Berlin.

Professor Albert Einstein's tribute to the "Wizard of Menlo Park," though marred by interference, was brought to this country over the transoceanic radio telegraph system of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. He spoke in his Berlin home, the National Broadcasting Company reported, before a telephone linked by cable with a radio station in England, which in turn flashed the scientist's words to the Netcong, N. J., receiving station. The New Jersey receiver was connected by wire to the WEAF and WJZ transmitters, and sixty-four other broadcasters throughout the country. One station at Toronto, Canada, CKJC, also broadcast the event. In addition, at least four short-wave transmitters at Pittsburgh and Schenectady tranamitted simultaneously.

The entire facilities of the Columbia Broadcasting System, WABC and fifty-eight transmitters operating from coast to coast, broadcast the program with the exception of the address of Professor Einstein. The WABC chain was also linked with several short-wave transmitters. Engineers estimated that probably more than 130 transmitters in this country alone operated in unison. Reports had come previously from Germany that radio facilities there expected to rebroadcast the program to German radio listeners, if received with sufficient clarity after crossing the ocean, but this was unconfirmed.

The largest previous chain was 111 stations for former Governor Smith's acceptance address on Aug. 22, 1928. The next largest chain broadcast President Hoover's acceptance address on Aug. 11, 1928, embracing 107 stations.

The program started promptly at 7:30 o'clock and ended somewhat over its allotted period of one hour, as it was not declared officially ended until about 8:50 o'clock.

The British Broadcasting Company had notified the National Broadcasting Company that a rebroadcast of the celebration at Dearborn would not be undertaken in England, the National Broadcasting Company reported. Other reports had not been received by the company. It is expected that listeners in many foreign lands heard the words of Mr. Edison and his fellow-speakers, together with the vivid description of the happenings in the old laboratory and elsewhere, as told by the radio announcers.

EINSTEIN TALKS FROM BERLIN.

Scientist Nervous as He Broadcasts Tribute to Edison.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Tuesday, Oct. 22.—At 2 o'clock this morning, Professor Albert Einstein came from Caputh, a small place outside Berlin, to broadcast a tribute to Thomas A. Edison from the main telephone office here, across the Atlantic.

He waited half an hour until President Hoover had finished his speech and meanwhile paced the floor nervously with a prepared speech in his hands.

The microphone was placed in what the postoffice director called the "most secret room," where no inquisitive visitors could be admitted because many important secret appliances are tested there. When the air was cleared Einstein began in a very low voice but improved as he went on and the reception here was perfect.

Einstein was later induced to broadcast outside the "secret" room in the vestibule for photographers. He hesitatingly submitted himself to what was an obvious ordeal and as soon as the strain was over went straight home. He declared it was the second time he had broadcast in Germany, the first being when he spoke at Newton's anniversary.

DETROIT ACCLAIMS HOOVER IN RAIN

Bared to Downpour, He Rides Thronged Streets 2 Hours Amid an Ovation.

CHIMES PEAL 'AMERICA'

Greeted at City Hall by Governor—President and Wife Borrow Dry Wraps After Drenching.

DEARBORN, Mich., Oct. 21 (AP).—Here to participate in the fiftieth anniversary of Edison's creation of the electric lamp, President Hoover received a notable welcome from the people of Detroit and Dearborn today that doubtless will linger long in his memory.

Despite a biting, driving, disagreeable rain, the Chief Executive, with Mrs. Hoover, rode in an open automobile for nearly two hours between streets lined with cheering people who were greeting the first President they had seen in more than a decade.

The President and Mrs. Hoover were drenched before they reached the Detroit Plaza, where they were welcomed formally by Governor Green of Michigan, but after a change of overcoats Mr. Hoover insisted upon continuing the return ride to Dearborn in his open phaeton so that none of the thousands who turned out would fail to catch a glimpse of him.

Lusty Shouts of Welcome.

Doffing his hat almost continuously during the long ride, the President bared himself to the stinging rain with a smile for the thousands who cheered him, and they in turn, many under the superior protection of umbrellas and raincoats, repaid him with lusty shouts of welcome, waving of flags and the pealing of "America" from the chimes in church towers along the route.

Reaching the Detroit City Hall, Mr. Hoover was ushered to a covered stand which looked down upon a mighty throng wedged in between the tall buildings that form the plaza.

Governor Green stepped forward to the microphone, but it was more than a minute before he could make himself heard above the din.

"Owing to the generosity of Henry Ford," the Governor said, "we are privileged to celebrate an achievement of the greatest inventive genius of our time, Thomas A. Edison. He has come to spend a few days with us and to view again the places he visited in his youth.

"It is most fitting that at this celebration there should be brought together the builders of our age, and foremost among them is the good man we honor today, Herbert Hoover."

Pays Tribute to Edison.

Then President Hoover paid tribute to Edison and thanked the citizens for their welcome.

"I have thought it a fitting thing, as the Governor has said," Mr. Hoover stated, "for the President of the United States to take part in paying honor to one of our great Americans, Thomas A. Edison.

"Mr. Edison has brought to our country great distinction throughout the world. He has brought great benefaction to all of us, and it is but a small thing we may do to record the appreciation, esteem and honor in which the nation holds him.

"Detroit is fortunate that it is to be the point where the nation pays its tribute to Thomas A. Edison. I wish to thank you again for your cordialities and the courtesy of your welcome."

Commandeering a dry overcoat and a raincoat, Lieut. Commander Joel I. Boone, White House physician, replaced these for the rain-soaked garment in which the President had entered the City Hall. Likewise, Mrs. Hoover was wrapped in a warm dry coat loaned by Miss Gwinn Davis, a secretary in the Mayor's office.

Golden Lights in Streets.

Thus fortified, the first couple of the land proceeded up Woodward Avenue to Grand Boulevard in their open car, while the rain, now grown steadily worse, pelted them mercilessly. Both waved and smiled despite the trick the elements had played upon them.

Once the crowds had dwindled, the President's auto cavalcade took speed and rushed him to the home of Henry Ford, where a hot bath, a change of clothes and luncheon were provided.

Today was declared a holiday by the Detroit City Council in honor of the golden jubilee of light and all public schools closed for the day. Buildings in the downtown section are gay with flags, and pictures of the inventor are much in evidence. Special globes have been placed on street lights to shed golden light during the celebration.

HOOVER WILL UNVEIL OHIO MEMORIAL TODAY

CINCINNATI, Ohio., Oct. 21.—This city is prepared to welcome President Hoover tomorrow. Flags, dripping and limp from an all-day rain, are on the buildings; gaily decorated river boats of all descriptions are in the harbor, and high above the city is the single white shaft, the Ohio River Memorial, that he will dedicate and unveil.

Early tomorrow afternoon the President and his party will board the government boat Greenbrier. This will be followed down the river by about a dozen other craft, ranging from small government launches, through the packet boat Tom Greene, which won the renowned race of a year ago, up to the Cincinnati, perhaps the largest of the river.

The President's boat is painted white. It has recently been painted, and this afternoon it was carefully scrubbed. It has the usual river boat stern paddle wheel and in ordinary life it does little more prosaic than push barges around. Its captain, Leslie T. Hill, has been with the government service for about twenty years, and has been in charge of the Greenbrier all through its river life.

The President comes from Detroit on a train reaching Cincinnati at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

He will go to the Hotel Gibson for a few moments and then will be taken to Eden Park. The park is on a bight overlooking the Ohio and the city. Mayor Murray Seasongood will speak at the ceremony and will be followed by Governor Meyers Y. Cooper. Following Governor Cooper's address, the President will make a short talk and unveil the statue, which marks the completion of the river's improvement project.

Immediately after the Eden Hill ceremony, President Hoover will make a fifteen minute call on Nicholas Longworth, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, who lives on Grandin Road. Then he will return to the Gibson, and will be the guest of honor at a luncheon there. The start down the Ohio is scheduled for 2 o'clock.

According to the present plans the party will tie up at 10 o'clock at night at Dam 39, a mile above Markland, Ind. It will leave there the next morning, reaching Madison at about 8:30.

The President is scheduled to arrive at Louisville, where he will make the main address of his trip, at 3:30 in the afternoon. The address will be delivered from the Louisville levee at 8:30, Central Time—9:30 New York time.

The river pageant which is making the celebration trip from Pittsburgh to Cairo, Ill., and the Mississippi, arrived here at various times today. The Queen City, bearing the Allegheny County Commissioners, a jazz orchestra and a calliope that is the envy of the river, appeared first. It passed the Cincinnati, the flagship, shortly after the celebration at Huntington late last night.

At about 6 o'clock this morning Captain Tom Greene decided that he had taken enough of the Cincinnati's soot and despite the Greene's smaller size, and only after a bump between the two boats, managed to forge ahead. Then the Greene waited at the entrance of Cincinnati so that the flagship could get in first.

The third day out of Pittsburgh was much like the other two, save for the rain. There were crowds at the locks along the route, and at small country towns of Kentucky the school children had been freed long enough to stand along the river as the boats went by. Standing along the river meant wading through the sticky mud of its banks. They did not seem to mind.

MORROW RADIOS TRIBUTE.

Ambassador Addresses Speech to Edison in Mexico City Broadcast.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 21 (AP).—In honor of the fiftieth anniversary of the invention of the incandescent lamp by Thomas A. Edison, Ambassador Morrow broadcast a three-minute address at 10 o'clock tonight. Part of his talk was addressed directly to the inventor.

"Mr. Edison, we of your own time are too close to know you fully," he said. "While you are still living on this earth men from all lands pay you their homage. Our children's children will know and judge your work. As for us, we many only pray that we may use your work aright. 'For with thee is the fountain of life, in thy life shall we see light.'

"The friendly Mexican people join the people of the United States this evening in celebrating the work of a great American."

BYRD SENDS TRIBUTE ON BEACON TO EDISON

Tells in Message How Incandescent Light Saved Men's Lives in Antarctic.

DEARBORN, Mich., Oct. 21.—A message of congratulation that had traveled a long way was received here today by Thomas A. Edison. It came from Commander Richard E. Byrd at his base, Little America, on the Ross Barrier at the South Pole, and reads as follows:

One of the most distant places from you on the face of the earth that is inhabited by man is Little America. And yet even here at the bottom of the world there is rejoicing at this anniversary, for within the past few months we have had good reason to be grateful to you on more than one occasion.

The incandescent light of the beacon named after you has guided men to safety who had lost their way in the blizzards of the long Winter night, and so you have been a benefactor even to those at the very ends of the earth.

I send affectionate wishes for your continued good health, and all the inhabitants of Little America join with my friend Henry Ford and his guests and the nation in sincerest expressions of gratitude and heart greetings in which we wish to include that other radiant spirit, who along with you has earned the everlasting gratitude of mankind, Mme. Curie.

The message, relayed here by THE NEW YORK TIMES radio station, referred to a beacon which Commander Byrd had called Edison Beacon and which lighted the way for scouting and airplane parties in the Antarctic.

PARADE IN PHILADELPHIA.

Searchlights Flash Gold, Bands Play, Mackey Speaks.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21.—Philadelphia Parkway, from City Hall to the Art Museum, was a flood of light tonight, through which several thousand policemen and firemen paraded in this city's celebration of the golden jubilee of light.

Twelve 50,000-candlepower searchlights threw golden light upon the heroic fountain in Logan Circle, while further on, in front of the museum, ninety golden and ten silver searchlights were directed upon the paraders as they circled the Washington Monument.

More than twenty bands combined to give a concert at the museum, and Mayor Mackey spoke.

An airplane, decorated with lights and visible to thousands on the streets, took off from the municipal airport for an hour's flight over the central part of the city during the official ceremonies.

Major J. S. Owens, commander of the Pennsylvania National Guard Air Service, piloted the plane. The flight was featured by a fireworks display set off by Lieutenant Frank Franklin A. Johnson, observer who accompanied Major Owens.

CHICAGO 'ATTENDS' BY RADIO

Crowds Hear Hoover Speech in Park Ablaze With Light.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 21.—Grant Park was a blaze of light tonight as Chicago celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the invention of the incandescent lamp by Thomas A. Edison.

President Hoover's address at the replica of Independence Hall at Dearborn was amplified and brought to the crowds by forty loud-speakers, scattered through the park. Music was furnished by a sixty-piece band.

The central feature of the evening, however, was the electric lights, for which this Light's Golden Jubilee is being held. A huge electric sign, 500 feet long and 70 feet high, was the centre of the display. It showed an illuminated picture of the inventor, centred in a fiery outline of the first lamp and surrounded by blaze of light.

MILAN, OHIO, CELEBRATES.

Childhood Friends of Edison Are Honor Guests at Banquet.

MILAN, Ohio, Oct. 21 (AP).—Citizens of this community, the birthplace of Thomas Alva Edison, held a celebration all their own tonight in connection with the golden jubilee anniversary of Edison's creation of the incandescent electric light.

Hundreds of Milan persons banqueted at an Edison dinner, at which childhood friends of the inventor were the honored guests. Among these were George Mackey, 80, and his sister, Mrs. Margaret J. Driver, 78, who attended school with Edison, and Mrs. Marion Wheeler Page, whose grandmother was Mr. Edison's sister.

From windows in nearly every home in Milan smiled out a photographic likeness of the inventor, with a ribbon of gold attached to signify the occasion, but outdoor festivities were prevented by a heavy downpour of rain.

School children who had planned to visit the Edison birthplace to sing patriotic songs there were forced to postpone the visit until a later day.

CHILDREN HONOR INVENTOR.

Book of Signatures From Jersey Towns Presented to Edison.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 21.—A book containing the signatures of 15,463 school children of the Oranges and Maplewood was presented today to Thomas A. Edison at Dearborn, according to a telegram received by Edmund H. Williamson, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and Civics of the Oranges and Maplewood. The book, which was compiled in three days, was handed to the inventor by his 8-year-old grandson, John Sloan.

Several thousand residents of the Oranges gathered in five high schools tonight to hear the broadcast of the Edison ceremonies from Dearborn. Preceding the broadcast a pageant was presented in each of the schools.

MEDAL IS AWARDED FORD.

Charles M. Schwab Announces Honor by Pennsylvania Society.

DETROIT, Oct. 21 (AP).—In recognition of the significance of the establishment of the Edison Institute of Technology, dedicated tonight at Dearborn, the medal of the Pennsylvania Society of New York for 1929 has been awarded to Henry Ford.

Announcement of the award was made by Charles M. Schwab, steel master and president of the society, today. Mr. Schwab said the formal presentation will be made in New York City Dec. 14.

Not long ago, a congregation in New York built a new church. They did not have the title insured. In applying to a local savings bank for a mortgage loan, the bank's attorney insisted on a title insurance policy before granting the loan.
Examination disclosed that there existed a 3-foot strip of land extending through the center of the building, to which the church had no title due to the failure of the two lots comprising the church property to join.
A substantial payment was required to unite the "divided" church, which title insurance would have saved.

THOMAS OUTLINES BIG PARK PROGRAM

Would Spend $10,000,000 a Year on New Play Sites—Calls Walker Record "Bunk."

DR. POLING ENDORSES HIM

Marble Church Pastor Declines Bid by La Guardia and Lauds Socialist Candidate.

Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for Mayor, took as his target yesterday the record of the Walker Administration on parks and playgrounds. In two speeches last night in Manhattan and Brooklyn Mr. Thomas made five specific charges against the administration's park record, which he said required "debunking." New York is at the bottom of the list of the ten largest cities of the United States in the proportion of park space to population, and the city administration provides annually only one-twentieth of the sum needed for playgrounds, he declared. He also listed seven points in a Socialist program for park development.

Dr. Poling Endorses Thomas.

The endorsement of Mr. Thomas by the Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, who on Sunday announced his resignation as pastor of the Marble Collegiate Church, Fifth Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street, was made public yesterday by the Norman Thomas non-partisan committee.

Dr. Poling was one of a group of ministers who received letters from Arthur W. Little, chairman of the La Guardia Madison Square Garden meeting, asking their support for the Republican candidate. On Oct. 18 Dr. Poling wrote to Mr. Little declining the invitation in which he said:

"I am unable to support the candidacy of Major La Guardia. I shall support Norman Thomas. Not that I accept his theory of government, nor all the details of his program, for I do not, but because in personal character, in ability, and in fundamental patriotism, he represents those principles I would see accepted in politics and confirmed in the practice of the American people."

Mr. Thomas spoke last night at the Prospect Y. M. C. A., 357 Ninth Street, Brooklyn, and at the League of Mothers' Clubs, 331 East Seventieth Street, Manhattan. The recent "inadequate spurt" of the Walker Administration in providing parks, he said, does not alter the fact that New York, which has been almost continuously under Democratic rule, is "tragically far behind" other cities in its park development.

Makes Five Charges.

His attack included the five following charges:

"The statements of the Walker Administration about what it has done for parks and playgrounds are uncertain and need debunking. Controller Berry boasts that the administration has added 2,600 acres of park lands. The Citizens Committee gives the figures as 1,367 acres.

"New York stands at the bottom of the list of the ten largest cities in the United States as far as park space in reference to population is concerned.

"Not only has Tammany woefully neglected Manhattan and Kings, but even in Queens it has failed utterly to look forward. Queens has no future Central Park. Between 1900 and 1927 its population multiplied by five, but its park acreage only two and one-half times. What the city did was under terrific pressure of civic organizations and in haphazard fashion.

"The situation with regard to playgrounds is worse. By the very minimum standard, Manhattan has only 46.6 per cent adequate provision, Brooklyn 54.9 per cent and the Bronx 70.4 per cent.

"The boasted achievements of the present administration in the matter of playgrounds consists of providing $500,000 a year, or one-twentieth of the sum estimated by experts to be necessary. They make their own political appointments to pick the playground sites instead of consulting the civic agencies in the field. Only six playgrounds are contracted for at the present time."

Mr. Thomas's park program includes consolidation under one expert, advisory boards on parks and playgrounds, appropriations of $10,000,000 a year for the short period necessary to bring playground space up to what is needed, competent supervisors for playgrounds and cooperation for use by school children.

SAYS TAMMANY "FED" CRAIN

Former Supreme Court Justice Thomas C. T. Crain, Democratic candidate for District Attorney, has been "fed" by Tammany for forty-one years and hence is in no position to run the District Attorney's office without dictation from Tammany Hall, Frederic R. Coudert, Republican candidate for the office, said yesterday at a luncheon of the Magazine Club, an organization of magazine advertising men, at the Hotel Roosevelt.

The Republican candidate repeated his charges that Tammany was responsible for a situation in the District Attorney's office that has made New York "as lawless or more lawless than Chicago," and was responsible for a vast system of "racketeering."

Referring to Mayor Walker's statement that he would do no "mud slinging" in the current campaign, Harold C. Aaron, Republican candidate for Controller, said the Republicans were not "mud slinging" but "hitting straight." Apparently, he said, the Democrats think they are not subject to "honest criticism."

Irwin Kurtz, candidate for City Court Justice, attacked the city administration for using Times Square for Democratic campaign pictures. The projection machines are being run by "city current" and "city police who should be chasing gunmen" are being used to keep the crowds in order, he said. Bird S. Coler, Republican-Fusion candidate for Aldermanic President, also spoke.

BERTINI SWORN AS JUDGE.

Succeeds Mancuso on the Bench of General Sessions.

Amadeo A. Bertini of 37 Washington Square, who was appointed by Governor Roosevelt Judge of General Sessions to succeed Francis X. Mancuso, was sworn in yesterday morning by Judge Max S. Levine in the latter's chambers in the Criminal Courts Building.

Among those at the ceremony were Mrs. Margarita Bertini, mother of the judge; his wife; Mrs. Teresa Stefani, his sister; Max Hirson, his law partner, and George C. Norton, his campaign manager. After the oath of office had been administered Edward R. Carroll, chief clerk of General Sessions, introduced Judge Bertini to other judges of General Sessions.

The elder Mrs. Bertini told reporters that she had lived in the United States fifty-one years, that she had never registered until this year and had done so now in order to vote for Mayor Walker. She said she had not realized at the time that she would also be able to vote for her son, whose temporary appointment expires Dec. 31, and who is running for his new office on the Democratic ticket.

Socialist Endorses La Guardia.

F. H. La Guardia, Republican candidate for Mayor, will have the support of William Walling, economist and Socialist. The following telegram, received yesterday from Mr. Walling, was made public at La Guardia headquarters:

"Glad to cooperate in supporting one of the most eminent, militant and reliable of America's progressives. I believe he deserves the support of all progressives, whether Democratic, Republican or Progressive. His labor record as well as his progressive record is 100 per cent satisfactory."

GRAFT IS CITY-WIDE, LAGUARDIA CHARGES

It Is "Language of Tammany," He Tells Republican Women—Points to School Contracts.

ARON ATTACKS HIGH BUDGET

Sees It Approaching $1,000,000,000—Coudert Questions Crain Again on Chief Clerk.

Fiorello H. La Guardia, Republican candidate for Mayor, said yesterday morning at a meeting in support of the Republican-Fusion ticket at the Women's National Republican Club, 3 East Thirty-seventh Street, that he had to talk of graft, "because graft is the language of Tammany Hall."

"I charge," he said, "that graft goes way to the top of the present City Administration and ramifies downward.

"The Tammany Administration today has no regard for the proprieties of government. Every Tammany leader is involved in one or another of the many ramifications of the new system. In order to let contracts and make purchases all rules of expenditure have been ignored.

"I'm not insinuating, I'm giving you facts," he asserted, as he launched into charges against the conduct of the departments of Education, Street Cleaning and Markets. He said the city had "done nothing" on housing, and that "if graft were eliminated" from the purchase of schools and playgrounds, enough play space could be provided, along with the auxiliaries that could be put into use by opening the armories, "to keep children off the streets," where they are being killed by automobiles."

His address followed one by Harold G. Aron, Republican candidate for Controller who had given the following reasons why he is a candidate:

"Because as a banker I know that unless the city's financial affairs are better administered in the future than in the last twelve years, their condition is going to have a serious effect on the prosperity of the city; because if the moral tone of the city is not raised it will have a serious effect that will be felt by the very people who are not taking an interest in the campaign; and because if Tammany wins, it will mean that the cohesion of 500,000 people here will be able to coerce a majority of the voters of the entire State."

In the course of a summary of issues that included the Rothstein case, the Queens sewer scandal and an alleged violation of the City Charter by which he said the people had been deprived of knowledge of municipal finances, he asserted that the city budget was "approaching $1,000,000,000 a year." He asked the present Controller how he proposed to pay for Mayor Walker's projected city-wide subway system.

Frederic R. Coudert, Republican candidate for District Attorney, attacked the conduct of the office he seeks by its present incumbent and said that Judge Thomas C. T. Crain, Democratic candidate for the office might well be a good judge but was "parroting everything I have said I would do if elected." He questioned whether his opponent could be independent of Tammany since he "has been on the Tammany payroll since 1888." He said he had received no answer from him on a question as to what he would do about the Tammany district leader who is chief clerk of the District Attorney's office.

Mrs. Rosalie Loew Whitney, chairman of the club's city affairs committee, presided at the meeting, which was attended by several hundred women.

Speak at Neighborhood Houses.

Addresses by candidates for the Mayoralty will feature the first meeting of the season of the United Neighborhood Houses, to be held this morning at 11 o'clock at the Christ Church House, 324 West Thirty-sixth Street, it was announced yesterday. Dr. Cameron Hall, headworker of Christ Church House, will preside.

Uncle Sam takes his 6¢ tax on every package of cigarettes—no matter what you pay.

Here's how it works out:

	15 cents Cigarettes	MARLBOROS
You pay	$.15	$.20
U.S. Tax	.06	.06
You get in quality	$.09	$.14

The extra 5-cents-a-package gives Marlboros ¾ of a cent more quality in each cigarette. That's nearly 60% margin of safety and satisfaction!

That's why Marlboros appeal to successful men. And fastidious women. Marlboros are made for those who can afford 20 cents for the best. Naturally your friends prefer them.

GORDON ADMITS 'TIP' ON ROTHSTEIN CASE

Ex-Magistrate Asserts He Told Enright Second-Hand Story of Vanished Papers.

BUT NOT TO AID CAMPAIGN

Square Deal Nominee Charges Four Democratic Leaders in Brooklyn Befriend "Augie"—Three Deny It.

Harry A. Gordon, a former magistrate, admitted yesterday that he had passed on to Richard E. Enright information concerning the alleged disappearance of Arnold Rothstein's private papers under the eye of a high police official after he got it second hand from a "prominent and respected client," whose name he could not reveal.

Mr. Enright, former Police Commissioner and Mayoralty candidate of the Square Deal Party, left the Rothstein case alone yesterday and turned instead to new charges of Tammany protection of bootleggers, racketeers and slot-machine operators. He named four Brooklyn Democratic leaders as friends of Angelo Pisano, alias "Little Augie," whom he called the "successor to Frankie Yale and vice regent of Al Capone," the Chicago underworld king.

Mr. Enright asserted also that "Little Augie" is "a good friend of the Mayor," and charged that two Tammany leaders in Manhattan were "protecting" slot-machine operators. All these statements, contained in what purported to be a transcript of an interview with Mr. Enright, given out at his headquarters in the Hotel Imperial under the letterhead of the Square Deal Party, were denied by the men he named, except where efforts to locate the objects of his accusations were unsuccessful.

Gordon Is Indignant.

Former Magistrate Gordon was named by Mr. Enright as the source of his information regarding the transfer of Rothstein's confidential papers in a midtown apartment in the presence of James P. Sinnott, fifth deputy police commissioner and former secretary of the department, a few days after the gambler's murder. At the time Mr. Enright issued his statement, last Saturday, Mr. Gordon was out of town. He returned yesterday to his office at 300 Madison Avenue, indignant at what he apparently regarded as a breach of confidence by Mr. Enright. Barring a "few embroideries," the former magistrate said, Mr. Enright's version of the transaction was substantially as he related it to the former Police Commissioner "for investigation."

Mr. Gordon said:

"I am greatly upset over Mr. Enright's statement. I gave him the information, it is true, but not with any expectation that he would use it as campaign material, or use my name in its connection without verifying the facts. He is an old friend and client of mine and after the information was brought to me by a prominent and respected client, I passed it on to him in the hope that he would investigate it and perhaps regain the papers. I felt it was in the public interest to do so. I am not in politics and am not a supporter of Mr. Enright's campaign. If anything, my leanings are toward the Republican party.

"The story, as I say, came to me from a very well known client of mine. Professional ethics make it impossible for me to reveal his name but he is a man whom almost every one knows about. This man said he heard the story from one of the men involved while riding to New York on a Long Island Railroad train from Bayside, L. I.

Story Told by Client.

"The story was substantially as follows:

"A man named 'Lefty' Miller—his first name is George, I think—had a place in Bayside where my client was staying at the time. But a few days after Rothstein's murder this Miller had an apartment somewhere between Fiftieth and Sixtieth Streets. Now on this particular night—I can't say whether it was right after Rothstein was shot or right after he died—Miller was supposed to have had this police official, Sinnott, at his apartment for dinner. While Sinnott was there William Wellman, who was manager of Rothstein's real estate business, arrived in a taxicab with a lot of papers that were supposed to have belonged to Rothstein. When Sinnott heard the nature of the papers, he remarked it was 'no place' for him.

"That's all there was to the story. At the time I told it to Mr. Enright, I didn't place any significance on Sinnott's presence there. I have nothing against him, and as far as I know, he was not mixed up in it. I was led to believe, however, that Miller might still have the papers and I hoped they might be recovered and brought to light. That was my only interest."

Mr. Sinnott, at the time Mr. Enright issued his statement, denied that he knew "Josh" Miller—as the name was given out by Mr. Enright—and said he had never been in any apartment in the midtown section of the city where Rothstein's papers were taken.

New Charges by Enright.

Mr. Enright's latest charges of a link between politics and the underworld covered a wide variety of subjects. The Hotsy-Totsy Club shooting in which William Cassidy was killed, the murder of Frank Marlow and the slaying of Frank Yale, Brooklyn beer runner and racketeer, all figured indirectly in his statements.

Three of the four Brooklyn politicians the former Police Commissioner named as "close friends" of "Little Augie," who he said were wont to gather at the latter's headquarters at Union Street and Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, promptly denied any acquaintance with the gangster.

They are Thomas F. Wogan, Deputy Chief Register and Democratic leader of the Ninth Assembly District, Brooklyn; Michael J. Reilly, Transfer Tax Appraiser and leader of the Eighth Assembly District Regular Democratic Club in Brooklyn, and Michael Laura, Deputy Commissioner of Street Cleaning and leader of the Michael Laura Club of the First Assembly District in Brooklyn. The fourth man, Patrick J. Diamond, Deputy Commissioner of the Department of Licenses and former leader of Reilly's district, was not reached for comment.

Mayor Walker lost no time in denying that any link existed between him and "Little Augie," through Edward Kenny, whom Mr. Enright described as a "former bartender" of the Brooklyn rum ring and also a former chauffeur for the Mayor. Neither he nor his wife ever had employed a chauffeur named Kenny, the Mayor said.

Says Gang Smuggles Liquor.

Mr. Enright named as members of "Little Augie's" gang, Angelo Yale, a brother of Frank Yale; Joe Ciucci, Al Ciucci, Tony Ketchell, Tony Richards, Charlie Cheatin and Johnny Wilson, former prizefighter who was held as a material witness in the murder of Marlow, a Broadway racketeer, who, according to Mr. Enright, owed Frank Yale $40,000 and refused to pay it after the Brooklyn gangster was killed.

This gang, the former commissioner said, has two boats, the Isabella and the Betty III, from which it lands "booze in the vicinity of Southampton." The liquor, according to Mr. Enright, is transported to Brooklyn "in fleets of fast limousines," which have "first-class protection all along the line." Most of the liquor is run from "the army base around Fort Hamilton," Mr. Enright said.

"The encroachments of crime on civil life are growing," Mr. Enright said. "Take the slot machine racket for instance. Crooks from Chicago and other places are allowed to operate here under administration protection. Gunmen and other scoundrels run these machines with the countenance of Tammany politicians."

From the Battery to Fourteenth Street, the former commissioner's statement said, nearly 1,000 slot machines which "teach little children to gamble," are operated by "Joe the Wop" and "Ikey May." Edward Ahearn, leader of the Fourth Assembly District, Mr. Enright declared, "is interested and is said to protect" them.

"There was a fellow named Cassidy killed in the Hotsy-Totsy Club some time ago," Mr. Enright continued, "and since then the machines from Fourteenth Street to Eighty-sixth Street are run by Ham Wagner, Johnny Wilson and one Ross, booze runners formerly of Chicago. From Washington Heights down to Eighty-sixth Street a Frank Costello and Johnny Rayo have machines in every candy and cigar store, it is said." Mr. Enright alleged "protection" by "Jimmy Hines, whose Assemblyman is one Cantor, who was Rothstein's private attorney."

"In the Bronx," he declared, "a bum called Dutch, a former partner of Legs Diamond, is the machine boss. In Brooklyn, Al Capone, Leo Byke and The Spider."

Representative Maurice Cantor, at his home in Massapequa, declined to comment upon Mr. Enright's statement.

Mr. Hines, who is Tammany leader of the Eleventh District, vigorously denied that he sheltered slot machine operators.

"Anybody that says that I would tolerate slot machines in my district or that Tammany Hall would let me if I wanted to is a fool and a liar," he said.

Efforts to obtain comment from Mr. Ahearn were not successful.

WALKER IN QUEENS CITES TRANSIT AID

Says Credit for $223,000,000 Program Belongs Solely to His Administration.

STRESSES FARE FIGHT

Also Pledges Help to Residents in Getting Lower Light Rates—McKee Promises New Roads.

Credit for starting the construction of $100,000,000 worth of rapid transit lines in Queens and the announcement of a new Queens subway program to cost $123,000,000 more was claimed for his administration by Mayor Walker in a speech last night at Jamaica High School. It was the Mayor's second appearance in Queens with Joseph V. McKee, President of the Board of Aldermen. Controller Berry, who also was to have spoken, was prevented by illness.

Mayor Walker said that his participation in the development of a rapid transit program started before his election as Mayor, since he, as Democratic leader of the State Senate, introduced the bill to create the Board of Transportation under the home rule theory and established it as the agency of the city with full power to plan and build subways.

Would "Say It With Shovels."

"I always have been convinced that subways cannot be built by speeches or even by blue prints," the Mayor said. "I had preferred to dig subways with shovels and let the shovels speak for us.

"Early in 1926 and within a month after entering upon the duties of Mayor, I proposed and had introduced in the Legislature a bill permitting the city to borrow $300,000,000, exclusive of the constitutional debt limit, for the sole purpose of extending our rapid transit system in obedience to the demand of the people of this city for their health and comfort.

After an earnest campaign throughout the State this Constitutional amendment was adopted by the people, and it is indeed with no little pride that I call attention to this tremendous program of subway construction that we have entered upon without preventing the city from carrying on the greatest school building campaign that it has ever known, without preventing the great hospital program, and without interfering with the tremendous public improvements already begun."

Opposes Elevated Lines.

Mayor Walker also said that he agreed with the critics of elevated lines and did not like to see the structures in the streets.

Mayor Walker declared himself in favor of the construction of subways instead of elevated railroads, to which there is strong objection in Queens.

"There will not be a foot of elevated railroad built in this or any other county unless the people themselves want it that way," he said.

The Mayor declared that the success of the city administration in preserving the five-cent fare was well known to all residents of the city. With the same sincerity, he said, the city's Law Department with the Association of Long Island Commuters fought to prevent the Long Island Railroad from raising its commutation rates 20 per cent within the city.

He added that the Law Department also had opposed the applications of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company and the New York Telephone Company for increases in their rates, and had been trying to bring about a reduction of the electric rates.

"The crying need is for a reduction of electric rates for the ordinary household," he said. "The city has done and will do everything possible to bring about this reduction in the immediate future."

Pledges Aid to Home Owners.

Mr. McKee asserted that the present city administration was interested in aiding the small home owners in Queens, whom he characterized as pioneers.

Listing public improvements in Queens during the last four years, Mr. McKee said the city had spent $20,000,000 in school construction in the borough and had added more than 56,000 new school seats. More than 65 per cent of the appropriations for extensions of the Fire Department, he declared, went to Queens, where seventeen new fire companies have been established and the fire alarm system improved and extended.

After reviewing the progress made in providing land for new parks in Queens Mr. McKee assured his audience that the administration realized the need for more through highways in the borough. He declared that, if re-elected, he would favor continuation of the policy of assessing only a small part of the cost of arterial highways upon the local communities.

Cox Assails Rule by Politicians.

County Clerk Edward W. Cox, Democratic candidate for Borough President, declared that the political scandals in Queens had been due largely to the practice of the Borough Presidents also being political leaders.

Mayor Walker and Mr. McKee will continue their campaign today. In the evening the Mayor will speak at a meeting in Arcadia Hall, Brooklyn. Judge McKee will speak at that meeting and one at James Madison High School afterward.

Throughout the day the schedule calls for a busy day for the Mayor. At noon he will open the new traffic light system in Throop Avenue, Brooklyn. He then will dedicate a new fire house in Middagh Street. At 3:30 he is due at the dedication and opening exercises of Public School 96, Avenue P and West Twelfth Street, Brooklyn.

Before going to the Arcadia Hall meeting in the evening the Mayor will assist at Madison Square Garden in the award of prizes to winners in The Evening Journal's policemen's and firemen's contest.

McKee Headquarters Opened.

Ralph K. Jacobs, working in conjunction with the Brooklyn Democratic candidates, has opened headquarters for a committee sponsoring the re-election of Aldermanic President Joseph V. McKee, it was announced yesterday. The headquarters are in the Jefferson Building, 4 Court Square. Commissioner of Jurors David P. Germain, in charge of general campaign headquarters, will assist Mr. Jacobs.

ZONE LAW 'FAVORS' SEEN BY LA GUARDIA

Says Favoritism by Board of Standards and Appeals Is "Brazen and Rampant."

WOULD DISMISS MEMBERS

Some Should Be Indicted, He Declares—Names Three as Recipients of Privileges.

The Board of Standards and Appeals, whose members are appointed by the Mayor, who also has the power to remove them, was set up as a target for a heavy fusillade last night by Fiorello H. La Guardia, Republican-fusion candidate for Mayor. The first attack occurred at a meeting in the Erasmus Hall High School on Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn. It was repeated at two other Brooklyn meetings and at one in Manhattan.

Mr. La Guardia charged that favoritism shown by the board in the form of exceptions from the zoning law had virtually destroyed that statute and that all this had been done in the interest of a "small ring, backed by prominent Tammany politicians," which had profited hugely in a financial way in the process. The Republican nominee declared that, if elected, he not only would dismiss the entire board at once but would seek the indictment of individual members.

Says Three Received Favors.

Three men were mentioned by the Republican Mayoralty nominee as especially successful in their repeated appearances before the Board of Standards and Appeals, but he intimated that other names of greater prominence in Tammany would be brought out in his discussions as the campaign progressed. The three names mentioned in the speech last night were those of Dr. William F. Doyle, a former veterinary surgeon of the Fire Department; Senator John J. Dunnigan of the Bronx and Edward F. Croker, former chief of the Fire Department and a nephew of the late Richard Croker, for many years leader of Tammany Hall.

Mr. La Guardia called the conduct of the Board of Standards and Appeals one of the "disgraceful pages" of the record on which Mayor Walker is seeking re-election.

"Immediately upon taking office as Mayor," Mr. La Guparia said, "I shall dismiss the entire Board of Standards and Appeals. I will not only dismiss this entire board, but I have sufficient evidence now to render it unnecessary to invoke my Commissioner of Accounts. I shall transmit their entire records to the grand jury for a grand jury investigation.

"Their conduct has been so brazen, the impropriety of their actions so daring, their favoritism so rampant, that the whole purpose of the zoning law has been destroyed and the methods and practices existing in that board so questionable as to warrant the action I propose taking."

He said the function of the board was to create or do away with restriction as conditions changed, in order to prevent the invasion of garages and filling stations in residential or business sections of the city, and that it was never intended to become a tribunal to grant exceptions to existing zoning rules. But the board, he said, usurped that function in instances where applicants for exceptions first had made the "proper Tammany connection," with complete disregard for the legal requirement that there be a heavy preponderance of evidence that a neighborhood will be benefited by the erection of a garage or filling station.

Head of Board Hylan Nominee.

"That," he said, "is where the political ring enters the picture. The present chairman of the board is William E. Walsh. Walsh is a Hylan appointee, but for four years Walker stood for him. That is his responsibility. Walsh made the ring. That is his responsibility. The 'ring' consists of a very small group, backed by prominent Tammany politicians."

Mr. La Guardia said Dr. Doyle was the "grand mogul" of the highly profitable "fire exemption racket," that he handled 242 out of 1,027 applications presented by the "ring," and was successful in 178 cases. He said the favored few had their way with the board in 70 per cent of the cases they handled, while 50 per cent was the average for persons arguing applications on their merits.

Speaking over the radio from Station WPCH last night, Mr. La Guardia charged that in acquiring land for the new Jamaica High School, where the Mayor, Controller Charles W. Berry and Aldermanic President McKee were scheduled to speak last night, the city had paid as high as $1,920 a lot, while the same kind of land adjacent to the high school site was assessed by the city at $33 a lot and that Magistrate Benjamin Marvin, an appointee of Mayor Walker, had promoted the "grab" and stood to become a beneficiary from it.

The other night meetings addressed by Mr. La Guardia were at Public School 164 at Fourteenth Avenue and Forty-second Street, Brooklyn; the Men's Club of the Flatbush Congregational Church, Dorchester Road and Eighteenth Street, Brooklyn, and the Star Casino, 107th Street and Lexington Avenue, Manhattan.

Harold G. Aron, Republican-Fusion nominee for Controller, was to have spoken at some of the meetings addressed by the head of his ticket, but upon learning that Controller Berry had been taken ill suddenly and been removed to a hospital, he cancelled his speaking engagements for the evening.

SAY HARVEY IS LOSING VOTES IN HIS PARTY

Supporters of Opponent Assert Walker-Cox Republican Clubs Have 3,000 Membership.

Republican defection will cost Borough President George U. Harvey a great many votes in his campaign for re-election, according to statements made yesterday at headquarters of the Democratic Campaign Committee supporting his opponent, County Clerk Edward W. Cox.

It was said that the Walker-Cox Republican clubs formed by ex-Assemblyman D. Lacy Dayton and ex-Assistant District Attorney Robert Price Bell of Bayside, both last year members of the Harvey campaign committee, already had a combined membership of 3,000, and that the Cox Republican League, organized by Emil Welfrets, a former member of Mr. Harvey's Cabinet, had 500 members. It was recalled that two Republican clubs, the North Shore of College Point and the Arverne, had openly endorsed Mr. Cox.

L. C. Smith, former president of the Queensboro Chamber of Commerce, in a radio speech last night, declared that, in the face of Harvey's talk about the "old gang," the same contractors are bidding on city work and specifications inaugurated by a Democratic borough administration while Bernard M. Patten was borough head, are still being used.

According to announcement from Harvey's campaign headquarters, the Tomahawk Democratic Club of Bayside, had unanimously endorsed Mr. Harvey for re-election.

Mr. Harvey, addressing meetings in Rosedale, Springfield, South Jamaica and Elmhurst, told his audiences that through a thorough revision of specifications at least $100,000 had been saved in a year on orders placed for supplies in the open market.

Major John Holley Clark Jr., counsel for Mr. Harvey, announced last night that the Borough President's name would appear in three places on the voting machines, on the lines allotted to the Republican party, the Liberal party and the Independent Democratic party.

The CRITICS HAVE SPOKEN

DURING the Renaissance, art and artistry were sustained and supported by the Crown. During the era that followed, by the Church. With the coming of a stabilized international commerce, by the great merchant princes. This era is just passed. We believe that the next great patron of art will be industry. The new Stewart, to our mind, is a case in point. —ALON BEMENT, Director of the Art Center.

Stewart is to be congratulated on its new building. It is a brilliant piece of architecture thoroughly in keeping with the spirit of the day and is one of the greatest contributions to Fifth Avenue in years. Warren and Wetmore, the architects, cannot be praised too highly. —RAYMOND M. HOOD, President of the Architectural League of New York

I wish to congratulate Stewart upon their magnificent building. The originality and general character of the design reflect great credit upon the architects, Warren and Wetmore, and tend to show the fullest co-operation between the client and the architect. —KENNETH M. MURCHISON, Past President, Beaux Arts League.

The Public has spoken, too

Twenty thousand people who yesterday attended the formal opening of Stewart and as many more who attended previews of the shop have conveyed to Stewart in unmistakable language their appreciation of this new building and its interiors.

Yesterday was not only the opening of a fashion shop on Fifth Avenue, it was a brilliant social and fashion success and an evidence, and proof that New York appreciates and welcomes this new superlative shop.

DORNIER PLANE TAKES 169 PERSONS ALOFT

STAYS IN AIR AN HOUR

TO STUDY TWELVE MOTORS

Engineers Will Examine Them and Make Changes Before Rigid Tests in Rough Seas.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Oct. 21.—For the first time in the history of aviation a seaplane took off with a load of 169 persons when DO-X started today on a flight over Lake Constance with 159 passengers and a crew of ten. The flight lasted nearly an hour.

This achievement marks a new stage of development in aviation and is all the more remarkable in view of the fact that German and British dirigible airships have never carried more than half the number of passengers taken up on the DO-X, which, in addition, carried sufficient fuel to cover a distance of 750 miles. The total weight which the DO-X lifted today was fifty-two long tons, including seventeen long tons of useful load, and despite this enormous weight the seaplane effected a take-off in fifty seconds.

Incidentally, Dr. Claude Dornier, constructor of this giant seaplane, is convinced that its lifting capacity will be increased by two long tons when starting from sea level.

Passengers Packed on Plane.

The passengers, who included a number of prominent aeronautical experts, representatives of the press and members of the staff of the Dornier plant, were weighed before entering the ship. The DO-X is equipped with a number of extra basket benches and chairs on both upper decks, and on the trip today the passengers were packed like sardines, while several members of the Dornier staff were compelled to stand or to sit on ladders inside the wings, crowding every corner of the ship.

Ordinarily the flying boat is fitted with seventy-two comfortable seats, some of which can be transformed into sleeping accommodations, the same as on the Graf Zeppelin. In the bow of the seaplane there will be a comfortable smoking room.

At 10:30 A. M. the passengers were conveyed to the DO-X by motorboats. At 11:05 the first motor of the seaplane began to sing its noisy song and within a few minutes all twelve motors roared their thunder over the sunlit waves of Lake Constance. The ship started at 11:15 and in less than a minute it took off from the water and rose quickly to 700 feet, flying westward along the Swiss coast toward Constance and gradually rising to a height of 1,200 feet.

After circling all around Lake Constance along the German side over the cities of Meersburg, Friedrichshafen and Lindau and over the Austrian town of Bregenz and developing a speed of 110 miles an hour, the DO-X descended in front of the hangar at Altenrhine so smoothly that most of the passengers were unaware of the landing.

The ship was in the hands of Dr. Dornier's chief pilot, Richard Wagner, who was assisted by Air Captain Horst Merz, who later will pilot the ship after it has been taken over by the Lufthansa.

Calculations Prove Correct.

With today's flight the DO-X has completed nearly forty trips and, except for a few slight errors, Dr. Dornier's calculations, which more than a year ago were still doubted at a London meeting of aernautic experts, proved to be correct.

The twelve Siemens-Jupiter motors of 500 horsepower each will now be removed and taken to Berlin for minute examination. Some new appliances which were only recently invented by Siemens engineers will be added to the motors.

Meanwhile the exterior of the flying ship will be completed and fitted with furniture made of steel, as this material has proved to be even lighter than the lightest basket chair. After the motors have been reinstalled Chief Pilot Wagner intends to establish a number of world records and says he may break all existing records.

Then the DO-X will be flown to Travemuende-Luebeck, where the Lufthansa will take temporary possession of it and submit it to exhaustive tests on the Baltic, North Sea and later on the Atlantic Ocean, starting from the Spanish Coast. The tests will include long-distance flights over the North Sea, English Coast and Scandinavian seas, starting tests in rough weather, landing manoeuvres, riding at high seas and many others.

Then the ship will be taken to a Spanish port—Lisbon or Cadiz—and together with a Romar plane of the Rohrbach type will be flown to the Canary Islands, thence to the Cape Verde Islands and later probably to the island of Fernando de Noronha and Pernambuco, Brazil.

If the distance of the third stage proves too long for the DO-X the last two stages will be covered by Romar flying boats, which have a longer range.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Oct. 21 (AP).—Two sister ships of the DO-X—the DO-X2 and DO-X3—are now half compited on Italian orders. France has also shown interest in this type of craft for use across the Mediterranean between Marseilles and Algiers.

BRITAIN ORDERS PLANE AS LARGE AS THE DO-X

Will Have Three Wings and Twelve Motors—Speed Expected to Exceed That of German Craft.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Simultaneously with the report of the Dornier Do-X plane's great flight today, it was announced that the Air Ministry had placed an order with Short Brothers of Rochester, Kent, for a flying ship of practically the same dimensions as the Do-X.

The proposed new giant British plane has been designed for civil aviation purposes and twelve months will be required for building it. Some of the main spars for it already have been constructed, it is said, on the new girder principle employed in the design of the airship R-101. The plane will have three superimposed wings with twelve high-powered engines mounted between the lower and middle wings. By this means it is expected to obtain a higher speed than the German seaplane has.

British designers consider that the greatest weakness in the Do-X monoplane is her high alighting speed of nearly ninety miles an hour, which means that she must operate with a full load in comparatively sheltered waters.

The dirigible R-101 was hauled into her hangar from the mooring mast at Cardington tonight. Four hundred people were hastily summoned from surrounding villages and in the glare of searchlights its vast bulk was safely housed. The Air Ministry has announced that adjustments to her starting engines are necessary, which work is held to be more easily done indoors than at the masthead, particularly as gales are now expected.

Gets Nine Years in Killing on Ship.

Following his plea of guilty of manslaughter, William Davis, 27-year-old negro seaman, who was to have gone on trial for murder yesterday, was sentenced to nine years in State's prison by Judge Charles M. Egan in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, Jersey City. Davis fatally stabbed Frank Clark, 33-year-old negro employed on the same ship, the S. S. Jefferson of the Old Dominion Line, on June 1 last as they disputed over 75 cents.

MACDONALD FEARS ROMANCE OF WAR

Tells Canadians This Generation, Knowing Its Horrors, Must Pave Way to Peace.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO HOOVER

Praises Briand, Stresemann and Dawes.—Leaves for Seclusion of North Woods.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 21.—A plea to the peoples of North America to help outlaw war in this generation so that generations to come might not have to experience the horrors and pains of conflict in order to appreciate the "romance of sacrifice," was made by Prime Minister MacDonald before 1,500 Canadians, gathered as members and guests of the Canadian Club at the luncheon boards of the Windsor Hotel today.

"Ah, Mr. Speaker, we are dealing with a great fellowship," said the Prime Minister as he neared the close of his talk. "This generation is called upon to lay the foundations of peace. The next generation will not have our experience, and now by honoring our dead and holding them in great reverence there is just the danger that a new generation rising up, without the knowledge that we have of the pain, of the horror and of the sacrifice made by the dead, may translate what is in our hearts, 'the romance of sacrifice,' into what is not in our hearts, 'the romance of war.'

Praises Dawes's Informality.

"It is the duty of you and me, who have gone through those years between 1914 and 1918, to translate these moral obligations into political facts."

Mr. MacDonald paused to call his roll of modern workers for international accord.

"You, yourselves, have been doing a magnificent work," he said. "When your Prime Minister went to Paris to sign a pact of peace that was a great contribution made by Canada."

He praised next "an Ambassador from across the line," former United States Ambassador to Great Britain Alanson B. Houghton.

"And then General Dawes came," he said. "Those of you who know that genial and informal man and informal mind will understand what a breath of fresh air he brought into our heated rooms."

Here he took occasion to answer any suggestion that Great Britain and America were working exclusively of France.

Has Tribute for Stresemann.

He praised M. Briand and declared that the French Premier knew every purpose behind the discussion which he as Prime Minister of Great Britain had with President Hoover in Washington.

"And there is President Hoover himself," he said, "again I must say this and I say it without reserve and with the most absolute sincerity, it is a great blessing to the world that President Hoover presides over the destinies of one of the greatest peoples in existence at the present time."

The last remarks of the Prime Minister on his mission to this continent are expected to be made at Quebec Friday before he embarks on the steamer Duchess of York for his return to England.

An even larger crowd than welcomed him at the station were gathered on the campus of McGill University when the Prime Minister walked into Moyse Hall in a solemn procession of university professors to receive an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

His special pulled out tonight for Chicoutimi, where he goes for two days of seclusion in the Canadian woods before going on to Quebec.

Only his daughter and members of the close official party, including the Prime Minister's secretaries, Lord Arnold and Lieut. Col. E. C. Coghill, representing the Canadian Government, will accompany Mr. MacDonald to Chicoutimni.

They will be guests there for two days of Lieut. Col. John H. Price, lumber and paper manufacturer. All effort is being made to have this a complete relaxation before the Prime Minister starts homeward.

Students Haul Premier's Cab.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 21 (Canadian Press).—With manifestations of great enthusiasm, McGill University this afternoon honored Premier MacDonald by conferring upon him the degree of Doctor of Laws, at a special convocation.

Before the Premier had reached the historic gray university buildings, he was taken possession of by red and white clad students, who unhitched the horses from Mr. MacDonald's cab and themselves pulled him to the hall.

"No man can do any great work in the world, whether his lines be drawn to business, public life or elsewhere, without imagination," Mr. MacDonald told the students. "The necessity for imagination is upon us all. Don't let your studies crush out your imagination. In all your preparations for the future, he who cannot see visions or dream dreams is already old before he crosses the threshold of 30."

He counseled his listeners to substitute now and then for their medical volumes such books as "Rob Roy" or "Guy Mannering" or the "Antiquary." "Man does not live by bread alone, nor does he live by knowledge alone," said the British Premier.

Howard Sails for Tobago Today.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Oct. 21 (AP).—Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador ot the United States, will leave Bermuda for Tobago Island, British West Indies, tomorrow. While in Bermuda he was a guest at Government House and of Admiral Sir Cyril Fuller. He made no public appearances. While in Tobago he will visit his planter-partner, Thurleigh Orde.

REYNOLDS TO HEAD THE WORLD BANK

New Yorker Said to Be Willing to Accept Offer From Organizers at Baden-Baden.

DIRECTORS TO FILL OFFICE

But Committee Which Is Laying Base of Institution Will Recommend American as President.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BADEN-BADEN, Oct. 21.—Jackson E. Reynolds, president of the First National Bank of New York, is understood to have an offer of the presidency of the Bank for International Settlements from the organizing committee of experts in session here, and is said to be willing to accept the post.

Mr. Reynolds is chairman of the committee which is preparing the rules for the bank.

When and in what manner Germany will make reparations payments to the bank are questions blocking the progress of the trustee subcommittee.

It is the old battle of the annuities, which was fought so stubbornly in Paris when the Young plan was formulated. This time the quarrel has been revived over the details of the general principles agreed upon at Paris, and the German delegates are showing reluctance to be specific upon the payment schedule.

The primary function of the bank will consist in handling reparations funds with the purpose of removing the reparations question from the realm of politics to a commercial basis. It is essential that these payments shall be ordered specifically, and the bank be bound to administer them in the same way as an ordinary bank administers any trust.

The basis of the conflict in the subcommittee which is discussing the trust agreement is the fact that the French are anxious to create this trust deed as a document which will bind Germany to a definite scale of payments. The Germans are anxious to have the terms broadened with liberty left to the bank to alter conditions in the future, hoping to leave room for an eventual radical reduction in the sum paid over to the bank.

What Owen D. Young accomplished in Paris, Melvin A. Traylor of Chicago may yet accomplish at Baden-Baden, but at the present stage an agreement appears distant.

The German delegates have been somewhat hampered here by the violent campaign at home against ratification of the Young plan. All here agree that the plan is not seriously endangered.

Will Have Great Powers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—It is altogether probable that an American will be chosen to head the new International Bank for Settlements provided for in the Young reparations plan. The experts now meeting at Baden-Baden have devoted a great deal of study to the choice of what the plan calls the "chief executive officer" of the bank, or the president, as he in all likelihood will be known.

Some consideration has been given to one candidate from a Scandinavian country and to another from Holland, but it is reported now that the consensus of opinion favors an American, and it is possible the interested governments are being sounded on this probable choice. It is rumored the choice may fall on an official of a well-known New York bank with principal offices in lower Broadway.

The position of president of the International Bank for Settlements will be one of great power and responsibility. Not only will he select the officers of the institution, as provided by the Young plan, but the experts will give to him very large powers in guiding the bank's policy. While on decisions of large moment he will be responsible to the board of directors, in the ordinary running of the bank he will have a very free hand.

Although the president will be chosen by the directors after they are in office, which would not be until after the governments had finally put the Young plan in operation, the experts expect to include the nomination in their report to the governments. They will provide that the president be chosen for three or five years and be eligible for re-election. Associated with the American president would be the general manager, probably a Frenchman to begin with, since France has the largest interest in reparations.

Thus we man have a picture of an American supervising the great institution, starting out with the principal job of supervising German payments and routing them to the United States to meet the allied war debt payments to Washington. He will, in other words, be supervising liaison between reparations and war debts, which his government has always declared could never exist. Incidentally, the American Government, because of its refusal to have official connection with the bank, has no say in the negotiations proceeding at Baden-Baden nor will it have anything to say about putting the bank experts' plan into operation.

Jackson Ell Reynolds used the law, both in practice and as a lecturer in university class rooms, as the stepping stone to his high position in the financial world.

George F. Baker was credited as his "discoverer." Mr. Reynolds, who had practiced his profession in New York since 1901, was attorney for the Central Railroad of New Jersey and was devoting part of his time to lecturing on law at Columbia University in 1917. At Mr. Baker's invitation he went to a vice president's desk in the First National Bank. On Jan. 10, 1922, he entered the presidency vacated by Francis L. Hine.

He is a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, Lehigh-Wilkes-Barre Coal Company, Lehigh-Wilkes-Barre Corporation, National Biscuit Company and several railroads. He has homes in New York and Locust Valley. His favorite recreation is said to be fishing.

Mr. Reynolds was born in Woodstock, Ill., Jan. 20, 1873. He attended local schools and worked on neighboring farms. After obtaining an A. B. degree at Stanford University in California he attended Columbia University Law School, from which he was graduated in 1899. He spent the following two years at Stanford as an assistant professor of law.

Returning to New York in 1901, Mr. Reynolds began the practice of law. From 1903 to 1906, and from 1913 to 1917, he was connected with Columbia as a lecturer and associate professor of law. Columbia recognized his services by making him a trustee for life.

Mr. Reynolds married Miss Marion D. Taylor of Livermore, Cal., in 1903. He is a member of the Century, University, Recess, Downtown, India House, Piping Rock and Creek Clubs.

Madison Av. Church Order Vacated.

Supreme Court Justice McCook granted yesterday an application by Judson Hyatt, an assistant corporation counsel and a former trustee of the Madison Avenue Baptist Church to vacate the order signed recently permitting the church to lease its property at Madison Avenue and Thirty-first Street to the Bradmore Realties, Inc., for a modern building housing the church, on the ground that his name was used without his authority.

REICH MATCH LOAN BRINGS $125,000,000

LOAN TO RUN FOR 50 YEARS

Rate Is 6 Per Cent—Soviet Regards Embargo on Russian Matches as a "Hostile Act."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—Germany's ailing budget received a stimulant today in the shape of a $125,000,000 loan from Ivar Kreuger, the Swedish match king, in return for permitting a complete reorganization of the Reich match industry in which Swedish interests already have a 65 per cent control. The loan will run for fifty years at 6 per cent.

The transaction was concluded without the intervention of bankers or other intermediaries, and the conditions under which it has been obtained suggest a favorable stroke of business for the Reich. Its proceeds will suffice to cover the deficit of the extraordinary budget and will enable Minister of Finance Hilferding to carry out his program of financial reforms.

Soviet Protests Scheme.

Negotiations for the loan have been under way for several months and many complications have delayed its final consummation. One of the chief was the protest of the Soviet Government, which charged that the concessions it was proposed to accord to M. Kreuger represented a discrimination against Soviet matches. The German industry said Soviet matches were being dumped on the market and constituted a disturbing competitive factor. The Soviet Government has lost no time in venting its feelings in the matter and an official communiqué, issued by its Trade Commissioner in Berlin tonight, charges the German Government with favoring a foreign private concern at the expense of Russo-German trade relations. It brands the embargo on Russian matches as a "hostile act."

By the terms of the agreement the German Match Syndicate, organized several years ago through the participation of the Reich, will have complete control of the sale, import and export of matches. The entire German industry will now be linked up with the Swedish majority holdings, although the board of eleven directors will comprise six Germans and five Swedes. The German Government will retain the exclusive right to determine retail prices and will also exercise far-reaching control over the activities of the monopoly in other directions.

Repayment Starts in Ten Years.

By eliminating the effects of injurious foreign competition the struggling German producers hope to be able to improve methods of production by modernizing their plants, with a further prospect of being in a position to guarantee steady dividends to their local shareholders.

According to the contract the repayment of the loan by Germany will begin after a lapse of ten years and will then continue for forty-one years at the annual rate of 12,000,000 marks (about $2,880,000). If, after the expiration of the decade, international interest rates should show a decline, the German Government will be entitled to a commensurate reduction or to repay the entire loan at an earlier date than the fifty-year period.

The Swedish interests have demanded no specific guarantees for the loan and will receive debentures from the Reich which it will only be permitted to market after a lapse of several years. It may then dispose of them in limited volume to insurance companies, savings banks and other quasi public institutions or corporations.

One of the first financial reforms Dr. Hilferding proposes to inaugurate as a result of his match loan will be a general overhaul and reduction of taxes which should win popular approval for the transaction which met with considerable public misgiving when it was first broached.

Reich Must Accept Young Plan.

The long term loan to the German Government has been signed by the Swedish Match Company and the International Match Corporation, with the provision that the match companies will have the sole right to sell, export and import matches over a period of fifty years. The contract has been signed contingent upon Germany's ratification of the Young plan.

The Kreuger & Toll Company, the largest single stockholder in the Swedish Match Company, will participate in the execution of the contracts as it has done in contract with other European governments.

Germany, under the contract, will grant the sole right to sell, export and import matches to the Deutsche Zundholz-Verkaufs-A.G., in which the Swedish Match Company and the International Match Corporation will hold 50 per cent of the stock. The other 50 per cent will be held by the German Government and certain German match interests.

The loan is a direct obligation of the German Government and will be repayable at par after ten years. The Swedish and International Companies will pay 93 for the bonds. The retail price of matches will be raised from 25 to 30 pfennig per package of ten boxes.

ITALY SENDS PROTEST ON YUGOSLAV RIOTS

Demonstrations Following the Execution of Croat at Pola Bring Sharp Note.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELGRADE, Oct. 21.—A diplomatic note couched in unusually sharp terms was handed to the Acting Foreign Minister, Alexander Jeftitch, today by the Italian Minister, Signor Galli, protesting against Yugoslavian anti-Italian demonstrations in connection with the execution of the Croat student Vladimir Gortan at Pola for high treason.

The note refers to anti-Italian demonstrations in Zagreb, Laibach, Uskub, Spalato, Ragusa and other places, and particularly emphasizes that Yugoslavia is expected to offer compensation for the wounding of two Italian sailors at Ragusa Sunday night. Italy also demands the cessation of the press campaign against her and complains that the verbal representations of her Minister last Friday and Saturday were without effect.

The Yugoslav press has not been allowed to print this note, and, owing to the existence of the dictatorship, it is unlikely that it will arouse anti-Italian feeling to the extent otherwise to be expected.

CHENGCHOW FALLS TO CHINESE REBELS

Important Railway Junction Seized—Strategical Move, Says Nanking.

PLANES SENT TO YANGTSE

Chiang Orders Concentration at Front—Washington Hears Wuhu Foreigners Are Safe.

By HALLETT ABEND.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 21.—With the fall of Chengchow in Honan Province into the hands of the rebels, the anti-government forces seem to have achieved an important victory, for Chengchow is at the junction of the Peking-Hankow and the east to west Lunghai Railways.

A Nanking spokesman declares that the evacuation of Chengchow is merely a strategical move to shorten the lines. The rigid censorship, the fact that there are no foreign observers in the conflict zone and the extravagant claims of the government opposition, obscure the situation.

Chiang Orders Planes to Yangtse.

CANTON, Oct. 21 (AP).—General Chiang Kai Shek, President of the Nanking Nationalist Government, today ordered the government of Kwangtung, in which this city is located, to dispatch all available airplanes to the Yangtse Kiang Valley to participate in the campaign there. Eight machines are expected to leave Tuesday for Nanking.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Troops of the Chinese garrison at Wuhu, who revolted last week, have now withdrawn and all foreigners are safe, according to a brief message received by the State Department today through the American Legation at Peking.

The revolt was not of anti-foreign character, but women and children of the foreign settlement were taken on a British man-of-war and a Japanese vessel for protection during the fighting.

POINCARE UNDERGOES SECOND OPERATION

Former President Suffers no Unfavorable Effects—Appreciates Surgeon's Quickness.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 21.—The second part of the surgical operation which former President Poincare has been forced to undergo was successfully performed this morning. The veteran statesman was declared tonight to be free from unfavorable after effects and to be without fever.

Before taking the anesthetic, M. Poincaré, with his usual punctiliousness, noted the time, and on regaining consciousness his first remark expressed his appreciation of the quickness with which the operation had been performed.

Dr. Marion performed the operation with three other doctors in attendance. Afterward a short communique was issued stating that the operation had been performed "in good conditions."

The former Premier had wished his operation to be kept secret until after it was all over, and yesterday he caused it to be announced that it would not take place until later in the week.

M. Poincaré spent yesterday afternoon in his garden, and it was not until evening that he went to the c[illegible] in the Rue de la Chaise.

It is expected his convalescence will take some time and the patient will, it is understood, spend part of the Winter in the South of France.

ARGENTINE RIVER PORT IS ISOLATED BY FLOOD

3,000 Families Are Homeless at Concordia as Uruguay Still Rises —Railroad Submerged.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONCORDIA, Argentina, Oct. 21.—This important up-river port and railroad centre, where the commerce of Argentina, Brazil, Paraguay and Uruguay converges, is completely surrounded by water and 3,000 families are homeless as a result of the overflowing of the Uruguay River.

It is the biggest flood here since 1898 and follows the tremendous rains in the Northern and Northeastern sections of Argentina, which have been pouring down almost incessantly since the recent termination of the long drought.

The Argentine Northeastern Railway, which connects with Paraguay, is covered by five feet of water over a section ten miles long north of Concordia. The flood waters have almost reached the spot where in 1898 a river steamer was moored to a residence eight blocks from the river bank. Food is being brought into the city in rowboats, but the scarcity is already being felt.

Concepcion del Uruguay, Colon, Monte Caseros and other river ports are flooded and the river is still rising.

UNDERTHINGS for CHILDREN

Here's a little pink slip of a girl in a little pink slip from France. The small garment is of crepe de chine, deliciously hand-embroidered and priced at $4.64.

A silk waist ($2.24) and panties ($3.24) slightly touched with lace, came from Paris the other day, and here they are ready to collaborate with a party dress.

This little girl and likewise the slip are domestic products par excellence. If you can provide the little girl we can furnish the small pink silk slip for $4.74.

Here's a young lady who doesn't insist on silk. She does, however, stipulate that her combination be hand-embroidered. In spite of which it is fortunately only $2.39.

A silk and wool vest like the one on the sparsely gowned child herewith costs $2.24. Babies to match come so much higher that we have decided not to carry them at all.

You can see to the left something simple but useful,—a cambric waist at 46¢ busy holding up a pair of cotton training drawers (Petit Bateau, 54¢).

Even their toes get a little privacy when ensconced in Macy's knit sleepers. Which constitutes a decided relief for a baby after a hard day's work amusing mama. 69¢ to $1.09, depending on size.

The early bird caught in the act is neatly embroidered with his own personal worm on the front of this nightie. Other equally charming rural scenes on hand-made gowns, 89¢ each.

We know of babies who scream horribly if their mothers even look at baby clothes anywhere but at Macy's. Smart babies, that's what they are. They want to save their mothers time as well as money and they can do both by coming headlong to Macy's where assortments are always large and prices are always small. The illustrations show only a few of our preparations for the discriminating baby of from 2 to 6 years old.

Nothing fancy, just a neat good-looking all-wool union suit from Merrie England. And what could be nicer for brisk autumn weather, when the sun isn't equal to the situation? $4.24.

This handsome flannel bathrobe is $8.94, and if you haven't a baby to fit it you're only depriving yourself of a lot of very worth while bother, and you know it.

ITALIANS THRILLED BY ROYAL MATCH

Marriage of Humbert and Marie Jose Will Be Climax of Savoy-Belgian Friendship.

TALK OF CEREMONY BY POPE

But Cardinal Is Regarded as More Likely Celebrant — Prince Going to Brussels.

By ARNALDO CORTESI.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Oct. 21.—On Thursday, when Italy will celebrate the thirty-third anniversary of the wedding of her King and Queen the official announcement will be made of the engagement between Prince Humbert, heir to the Italian throne, and Princess Marie José, only daughter of King Albert of the Belgians and Queen Elizabeth.

The wedding, it is understood, will be celebrated about a month later. Owing to the Italo-Vatican conciliation, the old practice of celebrating the civil rite in the seclusion of the royal palace will be abandoned and only a religious ceremony will be performed.

All Italians certainly regard the Crown Prince's engagement with the deepest satisfaction. Italy and Belgium are bound by ancient ties of comradeship which the victorious war, fought side by side, served to strengthen. King Albert is an old and trusted friend of Italy as well as a close personal friend of the Italian royal family. He has been decorated with the Collar of the Annunziata, which gives him the rank of a cousin of the Italian King, and his deep attachment to Italian art has earned him honorary membership of the Academy of St. Luke.

Princess Knows Italy Well.

The Belgian rulers have been frequent visitors to Italy, both in an official capacity and incognito. They have often spent the Summer at an Italian seaside resort.

Far outweighing all these considerations, in the estimation of Italians, is the fact that Princess Marie José, even before she had any idea of marrying into the Italian royal family, chose Italy as her second mother country. She only attended a school at Flo for three years, but continued Italian studies in Belgium, when she had an Italian governess. She speaks Italian fluently, with a decided Florentine accent. The princess has always displayed a special love for Italian music, art and archaeology, which she has studied deeply. She has visited Italy frequently and has never missed an opportunity of spending her Summer vacations at Italian resorts. She will certainly find it easy to acquire the habits and mentality of her adopted country.

Prince Humbert is a handsome man of slim build. Princess Marie José is above medium height and has a slight, elegant figure. The Prince is very dark, with sleek, glossy hair, and the Princess is very fair, with an abundance of curly hair. The Prince is 25 years of age and the Princess is two years his junior. He is athletic and fond of riding, tennis and shooting. She also loves riding, tennis and Winter sports, though her inclination for sport is tempered by her predilection for music and art. When they eventually ascend the throne they should make one of the most handsome reigning couples in the world.

Following the example of his two older sisters, Yolanda and Mafalda, who in choosing husbands followed the dictates of their hearts instead of entering into matrimonial alliances for political reasons, Prince Humbert is also making a love match. He met Princess Marie José for the first time when he was hardly in his teens and started a friendship which gradually ripened into love. They were playmates together when children, then dance partners in youth, and finally friendly competitors on the tennis court or on horseback.

Cardinal Likely to Officiate.

War was raging when they first met in 1917. As the Italian and Belgian royal families continued after the war to maintain a cordial and intimate friendship, the pair were in each other's company. Their first meeting occurred at Florence when the Princess was attending school at the age of eleven. Shortly afterwards they again met at Venice where King Albert had gone for an important war conference.

The conviction that these frequent contacts would ultimately end in a wedding was so widespread that both when the Italian sovereigns visited Brussels in 1922 and when the Princess was the guest of the Italian Queen Mother at Bordighera in 1926, the engagement was announced by some newspapers as an accomplished fact.

It has been suggested by some newspapers that the ceremony will probably be performed by the Pope himself. Though no details are yet available of the arrangements being made for the wedding, this report seems improbable. It is remarked, in fact, that neither Premier Mussolini nor the King has yet been to the Vatican to pay an official visit to the Pontiff. Obviously these formalities must necessarily precede the wedding ceremony if it is to be performed by the Pope.

There is, of course, ample time for the King and Signor Mussolini to make their calls in the month intervening between now and the wedding, but this would entail such a rush and hurry that it is not likely to be attempted. More probably, the wedding will be celebrated by one of the Cardinals.

Prince to Visit Brussels.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 21 (AP).—Crown Prince Humbert will pay a visit incognito to Brussels and will be present when his engagement to Princess Marie José is officially announced.

Although the Prince is traveling incognito, his suite will number thirty persons, not including Prince Cito, who is accompanying him as a personal friend. General Celrici, the Crown Prince's aide-de-camp, two orderly officers and a private secretary will be in the group.

On Sunday the Italian Ambassador, on behalf of the Prince, sent a beautiful bouquet to the Princess, at the same time announcing the Prince's coming visit. A great reception has been planned at the royal palace in celebrate the betrothal, which will probably be formally announced on Thursday.

All but One Are Freed After Anti-Young Plan Outburst.

BERLIN, Oct. 21 (AP).—An attempt of German Nationalists yesterday to stage street demonstrations protesting against adoption of the Young reparations plan brought about a series of clashes between demonstrators and police in various parts of the city.

The police, who had forbidden the demonstrations, arrested 120 persons, 119 of whom were released today upon establishing their identities. The one detained was charged with resisting the police. A number of minor injuries were incurred when the constabulary used clubs to disperse the manifestants.

The biggest clash of the day took place in North Berlin when 300 members of the "Stahlhelm," or "steel helmets" organization, after a meeting in the Lustgarten, attempted to march toward a synagogue, not heeding the order to disperse. Mounted police used their clubs freely.

Another clash occurred in Potsdamerstrasse, where large groups of National Socialists attempted to break through the police cordon to Potsdamerplatz. The police quickly cleared the streets of the Steel Helmets, who gathered around a nearby restaurant where the Republicans had assembled. All were dispersed.

A number of Communist demonstrations in the suburbs were broken up by the police, who arrested several for carrying blackjacks and knives.

SAYS INTEREST IN INDIA IS GROWING IN AMERICA

S. K. Ratcliffe Tells Audience in London We Realize Britains Difficulties With Colony.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Samuel K. Ratcliffe, who was introduced to the audience by H. Wickham Steed, publisher and editor, as a journalist well versed in the affairs of both India and the United States, told a gathering of the East India Association today of America's awakening interest in India.

"It is not unreasonable to hope," said Mr. Ratcliffe, "that there is a larger recognition now among educated Americans, of the immense difficulties of the British position in India.

"The view of the American public upon Indian political questions has been influenced to no small extent by the active work of Indian writers and speakers, the majority of whom are identified with a more extreme position. This influence has been counteracted in some measure by Miss Katherine Mayo's highly controversial book, 'Mother India.' While regarded with suspicion by anti-imperialist sections, the book had a strong influence among American women and churchgoers. They welcomed it as providing evidence to prove the superiority of Western, over Oriental civilization."

Mr. Ratcliffe anticipated that considerable comment adverse to Great Britain will follow the publication of the Simon commission's report.

Sir Albion Banerji, prominent Kashmir official, appealed for the wide publication of uncolored information for American readers.

LAUDS SCOTS' PART IN MAKING AMERICA

Dr. J. H. Finley in Edinburgh Lecture Says They Were Among Foremost Early Settlers.

IMPROVED PURITAN STOCK

After the Coming of Ulster Scots New England Developed Her Distinctive Traits, He Asserts.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

EDINBURGH, Oct. 21.—The influence of Ulster Scots on the development of New England was described today by Dr. John H. Finley, associate editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES, to a distinguished gathering at Edinburgh University.

Dr. Finley, giving the first course of six lectures on "The Predestinating of America," arranged by the Sulgrave Manor Board, in administration of the Watson Chair of American History, Literature and Institutions, said that his purpose in showing the part which Scottish people, whether from Scotland or Ulster, had in the marvelous development of America, was not to discredit the part of the others, but "to give recognition to the contribution made by the Puritans, who went out to the New World, not via Holland, or direct from the south of England, but straight out beyond 'the far islands,' and who had been without historians to tell of their collective and individual heroism."

In the first act of the American drama, Dr. Finley explained, the Scot did not appear, except as a member of an English group. "But one might infer from the names that Scotsmen were among the foremost of those adventurers," he said. "Some appeared under other names than those suggesting Scottish origin. For instance, Sander Leendertsen, who received the ground brief from the Dutch Governor of what is now New York, was none other than Alexander Lindesay of the Glen, and was one of the original settlers of Schenectady.

"Except for what was regarded as a clear indication of Providence, it might well have been that the little company of 140 Presbyterian Puritans who set out from Lough Belfast in 1636 in the little ship Eagle Wing, would have been as celebrated in founding America, as the smaller company of 102 that landed in New England a few years earlier. The persistence of contrary winds was taken as a sign that Providence was against the emigration to America."

The social, political and religious experiences of the Puritans in New England, in Dr. Finley's view, occupied a place in American history quite out of proportion to their numbers. The estimated arrivals up to 1640 were 21,200 men, women and children.

"Thereafter, until the Ulster Scots began to come, more Puritans left New England than arrived, and according to the highest authority it was not until after the coming of the Ulster Scots and the extensive infusion of their blood that New England developed traits that have given her distinction."

These Presbyterian Scots moved out to the frontier, where they were the chief defense against the Indians, said Dr. Finley, who, after reciting a long list of their most famous descendants, concluded: "It might thus be said that it was the descendants of Scotland who, by grafting, brought the hardy Puritan plant into more beauteous flower and more precious fruit.

"The Puritans of New England made it difficult to love them, because they took life so coldly, treated the sinner so severely and assumed so confidently their own election, which they struggled against an inferiority complex and fleshy appetite to make sure. But with it all they set an example of self-discipline which was essential to the highest liberty and gave the background without which no picture of America could faithfully be painted."

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—With the idea of vastly increasing the speed of passenger transport between big cities, there is being constructed near Glasgow an experimental overhead railway on which cars driven by airplane-type propellers will be suspended from a monorail.

The new system, called the George Bennie railplane, is the invention of a Glasgow man and is designed to carry passengers 120 miles an hour overhead. The monorail is being constructed over the Northeastern Railway Company's track at Milngavie, near Glasgow.

A cigar-shaped carriage driven by two airplane propellers, fore and aft, is being built by the William Beardmore Company. The coach is designed to carry fifty passengers and a quantity of light freight.

PARAGUAYANS FETE AMERICAN MINISTER

Give Testimonial to Envoy and Mrs. George Kreeck at Banquet on Eve of Return on Leave.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Oct. 21.—A demonstration of unusual proportions and cordiality was extended to George Kreeck, American Minister, and Mrs. Kreeck at a banquet at the Union Club Sunday night on the eve of their departure for the United States on leave of absence.

As an evidence of the esteem in which they are held by Paraguayans, a huge parchment testimonial, bearing the signatures of 600 leaders in the political and social life of the Paraguayan capital, was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Kreeck.

Mr. Kreeck has been unusually successful among American diplomatic representatives in South America in winning the confidence and goodwill of the people. The newspaper El Diario published his photograph on its front page with a laudatory editorial, which said:

"By his indisputable personal merits as well as his brilliant prestige as an able but quiet and unpresuming diplomat, Minister Kreeck has won the general esteem and appreciation of our country, which sees in the efficient performance of his delicate task not a diplomat who confines his activities to giving formal receptions, but rather an efficient and hard-working official who at the same time is a cordial, sincere and real friend of our country.

"In his efforts to point out ways of improving our country he has never hesitated to show us our errors, but in a manner which shows that his love for Paraguay is that of a real Paraguayan."

FARM BOARD AIDS COTTON PRODUCERS

Offers to Lend Cooperatives $100,000,000 to Assist "Orderly Marketing."

GROWERS TO GET FULL PRICE

Board Announces That It Is Prepared to Take Similar Action for Wheat Later.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—The Federal Farm Board declared today that it believed the present prices for cotton were too low and that it was prepared to loan $100,000,000 or more, under certain restrictions, to aid in more orderly marketing of this crop. The board said that it had nearly $100,000,000 available and, if necessary, was willing to ask Congress to appropriate more. It also announced that it was prepared to take similar action on wheat and that it would make known its plan in detail later.

"The total supply of American cotton is less than last year," the board said. "Consumption continues at a world rate equal to that of last year, unfilled orders and actual sales of cotton goods are more and stocks are smaller than last year, yet the price of the raw product is less. The board believes that this unsatisfactory price level is chiefly due to the open Fall weather which, in most of the Southern States, has led to exceptionally rapid marketing by producers in amounts much greater than the markets of the world can temporarily absorb. This, in turn, has led to lack of confidence in cotton values.

"The board believes that the remedy lies in more orderly marketing. In order to assist cotton farmers to hold back their crop and at the same time have money with which to pay their obligations, the board proposes to lend to cotton cooperatives, qualified as borrowers under the Capper-Volstead act, sums sufficient to bring the total amount borrowed from all sources by such associations to 16 cents per pound on graded and classed cotton, basis middling 7/8-inch staple, less proper deductions to cover freight to port concentration points."

Loan to Be Based on Spot Prices.

In the ten designated Southern spot markets the board said the loan per pound will be as follows:

Norfolk, 16.54 cents; Augusta, 16.35 cents; Savannah, 16.28 cents; Montgomery, 15.64 cents; New Orleans, 16.59 cents; Memphis, 15.39 cents; Little Rock, 15.41 cents; Dallas, 15.34 cents; Houston, 16.19 cents; Galveston, 16.39 cents, and at all other concentration points on the same basis, less proper freight and other expense adjustments.

The board said that the cotton cooperatives are now borrowing certain sums for advances to members from commercial banks, the Federal intermediate credit banks and the Federal Farm Board, and that it was ready to make supplemental loans to the cooperatives in amounts sufficient to make the average total loan with differentials as stated, 16 cents a pound for the entire cotton belt.

"In many sections of the South," the statement read, "the board believes that the net advances which cotton cooperatives can make to their members under this loan plan will almost, if not quite, equal the amounts which are being paid by speculators and others on actual purchases from farmers.

"There is a cotton cooperative in every cotton State. It is open to the membership of every cotton farmer. The farmer may join, ship his cotton to a designated concentration point where it will be graded and classed, and draw his advance.

"The cooperative will market the cotton in orderly fashion through the year and will finally settle with the farmer on the basis of the final price obtained.

Board Holds Plan Is Safe.

"The board is confident that, considering the soundness of underlying conditions which affect the price of cotton, the plan described above furnishes a completely safe basis for the making of loans from the board's revolving fund. The board places no limit on the amount of government money to be loaned. Nearly $100,000,000 is available for the purpose, and, if necessary, the board will also ask Congress to appropriate more."

In another announcement the Farm Board said it had adopted a resolution that facilities loans shall be limited to cooperative associations belonging to national or regional sales organizations or when such loans will serve to encourage the establishment of such central sales agencies.

Exceptions will be made, it stated, only in emergency cases where necessary to protect the cooperative movement from the loss of facilities.

"Applications for facilities loans are so numerous," the board said, "that if the board were to grant all of them there would be little of the revolving fund left for commodity loans to the various cooperative associations and marketing advances to the national or regional sales organizations. While there is no limitation in the agricultural marketing act, the board is of the opinion that the congressional intent as evidenced by committee hearings, conference reports and the debates in the House and Senate, was that not a large part of the fund should be used for facilities loans."

LIQUOR LAW 'LIFER' RELEASED ON BOND

Freed in Michigan Pending New Ruling on Supreme Court's Order for New Trial.

FLINT, Mich., Oct. 21 (AP).—Channie Tripp, sentenced to life imprisonment under a former clause of the Michigan habitual criminal act for four liquor law violations, was freed under $500 bond today pending a decision on whether a new trial ordered by the last Legislature supplanted that portion of the habitual criminal act which dealt with liquor law violations, removing the penalty of life imprisonment.

The Supreme Court ruled recently that the new law nullified the former clause because it contained no saving clause whereby cases then pending could be disposed of.

It is believed the new trial cannot be held because the new law was passed while Tripp was in prison, long after the offense which resulted in his life sentence.

TARIFF SECRETS GOT TO MANUFACTURERS

tion relating to the sending to Washington of a representative to aid Senator Bingham.

"Do you now think that you were not a representative of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association when you came to Washington to help Senator Bingham?" the Senator asked.

"After I reported to Senator Bingham I was not a representative of the Manufacturers' Association," the witness replied.

"But they all considered they were going to pay for sending a representative to Washington?" said Senator Walsh.

"Yes," said the witness, "but it was to respond to a request made by Senator Bingham."

Senator Blaine questioned Mr. Evanson at length about long-distance telephone calls while he was serving as an assistant to Senator Bingham. The witness said that he had answered many calls coming through the Senator's office.

"Don't you recall a very important telephone call some time between July 23 and 27 in regard to the work of the committee?" asked Senator Blaine.

"I sincerely wish I could inform you," said the witness, "but I have no recollection of it."

Cooley a Surprise Witness.

Mr. Cooley, of the Massachusetts Fisheries Association, was a surprise witness. The Atlantic Coast Fisheries Corporation, 16 Exchange Place, New York City, Mr. Cooley testified, had been instrumental in reducing the House rates on fish by reason, he thought, of its membership in the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association and contacts it had made through that agency with Senator Bingham and Mr. Evanson. The company had large interests in Canadian fisheries, the witness said.

Both Mr. Hubbard and Mr. Evanson testified they did not know Frank W. Bryce, president of the Atlantic Coast Fisheries Company.

Mr. Cooley testified that the House bill had carried rates on fish which were fairly satisfactory to the American industry as a whole, but that they had been reduced by the Finance Committee, of which Senator Bingham is a member. Mr. Bryce had called him on the telephone, the witness testified, and told him that if the Senate committee's rates on fish were not permitted to stand he would "go to the bat" and try to have fish put on the free list.

According to Mr. Cooley, Mr. Bryce's company had engaged Frederick H. Meisnest, a former employe of the Tariff Commission, who told him that if he could win over Senator Bingham and "sell" his idea to Mr. Evanson, all would be well for those who wanted rates on fish higher than those recommended by the Senate committee. Mr. Cooley said he called at Senator Bingham's office and was referred to Mr. Evanson, but could make no headway with him.

Hubbard Tells of Arrangement.

President Hubbard of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association was examined as to the circumstances under which Mr. Evanson was defailed to act as Senator Bingham's tariff adviser.

"It was the understanding," he stated, "that Evanson was to work solely under Senator Bingham's orders without regard to instructions from any other quarter."

Senator Walsh asked the witness what he meant by a statement, in one of his letters to Mr. Evanson, that in the arrangement with Senator Bingham "we had gained far more than we had bargained for," and that "the results would be far-reaching."

The witness explained that "bargained for" was a New England term, that it did not imply anything of a collusive character, and that it merely referred to negotiations with Senator Bingham concerning Evanson's employment in Washington, and talks with Evanson on the subject.

Met in Roraback's Office.

Senator Walsh introduced a letter, written by Senator Bingham in April in which he informed Mr. Hubbard he was about to visit Hartford, and suggested that Hubbard get in touch with him through "J. Henry," who, it developed, was Mr. Roraback.

"Who is J. Henry?" asked Mr. Walsh.

"That is our Republican State leader," the witness replied.

"Is he not the Republican boss?" asked Senator Walsh.

Mr. Hubbard insisted that Mr. Roraback was a "leader, not a boss," and added:

"He has been a leader for many years and I hope he will continue in that position for many years to come."

Senator Bingham and Mr. Hubbard met in Mr. Roraback's office, it was brought out, Mr. Walsh asking why that place was chosen for the conference.

"I suppose merely for the sake of convenience," Mr. Hubbard replied.

"What did 'J. Henry' have to do about this?" the Senator asked.

"He did not have anything to do about it," Mr. Hubbard replied. "Senator Bingham was an over-night guest at Roraback's residence, and I supose he thought it would be convenient for us to meet in Roraback's office."

Mr. Roraback was not present at the conference, the witness said. At that meeting it was finally decided that the association should send a man to assist Mr. Bingham in his tariff labors, and the choice fell on Mr. Evanson.

Approves Bingham's Course.

Senator Caraway asked if Mr. Hubbard approved of Mr. Evanson's name having been carried on the Senate pay-roll. The witness replied that he approved anything Senator Bingham did in conection with Evanson's employment as a tariff adviser.

"Do you approve of carrying an employe on the Senate rolls in order that he may, in an official guise, gain access to secret committee meetings?" Mr. Caraway pressed.

"I approve of Senator Bingham 100 per cent and our association is back of Senator Bingham in everything that he has done in this matter," Mr. Hubbard declared with emphasis. "There was no concealment or collusion; everything was above board."

Senator Caraway asked him if he approved of the manner in which Mr. Evanson was introduced into "secret" committee meetings, and to reply yes or no. Mr. Hubbard insisted that the question could not be so answered.

"Do not quibble," Mr. Caraway said.

"I am not quibbling," the witness asserted.

Senator Robinson of Indiana described the swearing in of Evanson as a Senate clerk, and his transfer of the money he received from the job to another person in Senator Bingham's office as "a rather devious way around." The witness did not agree.

Robert C. Buell, secretary-treasurer of the Manufacturers' Association, who was briefly examined, said the income of the organization this year was about $96,000 and that Mr. Evanson's salary and expenses while he was in Washington at work on the tariff bill came out of current funds. The witness' answers did not satisfy Senator Caraway, who declared that it seemed to be the habit of everybody representing the Connecticut association to advance arguments instead of giving facts.

FALL PLEA DRAWS TEARS OF JUROR

Woman Is Affected by Mention of Doheny's "Good Bless You" in Letter to Ex-Secretary.

PATHETIC FIGURE STRESSED

But Pomerene, Demanding Conviction, Scores Motives of Both Men in Oil Transaction.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—The final drive in the battle involving the freedom of Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, on trial in the Supreme Court in the District of Columbia charged with leasing to Edward L. Doheny, in consideration of a bribe of $100,000, the oil lands of the Elk Hills Naval Oil Reserve, began this morning.

It was the beginning of at least two days of argument and the indications tonight are that the case will not go to the jury until Wednesday afternoon.

The court room was jammed to the doors when former Senator Atlee Pomerene opened for the government with a plea for a verdict of guilty.

It was late in the afternoon when Mr. Pomerene finished and Frank T. Hogan, chief counsel for the defense, began his speech for Fall, which is expected to last through most of tomorrow's two sessions.

Mr. Hogan, in the thirty minutes he held the floor, did not refer once to the evidence. Instead he made a plea to the sympathies of the jury for Fall, whom he pictured as "a tragic figure slumped in yonder chair" as the "shattered and broken man" whom the government seeks to punish.

Woman Juror Wipes Her Eyes.

Mr. Hogan drew "first tears." Mrs. Ollie O. Walker, a 59-year-old housewife, who is No. 8 in the jury box, shed them. This was taken as a happy omen by friends of Fall.

At the time Mr. Hogan was quoting from a personal letter written by Mr. Doheny to the defendant in the first year of the Harding Administration and closing with the words: "God bless you. Adios."

"Do you think that a man who could say to an old friend of dear old days 'God go with you' would try to ruin that man?" Mr. Hogan asked.

Mrs. Walker, the oldest person on the jury, dabbed her eyes with her handkerchief. She soon regained control of herself and for the rest of Mr. Hogan's speech there was no sign of "tears" among the jury of eight men and four women.

Mr. Fall, "slumped," as Mr. Hogan said, in the big morris chair that he has used since the beginning of the trial, kept his eyes focused on his chief counsel. So did Edward L. Doheny, who had left his seat in the audience for one next to Mr. Fall. The outcome of the trial is almost as important to Mr. Doheny as it is to Mr. Fall, for if the latter be convicted the government will bring Mr. Doheny to trial on an indictment charging the bribery of Fall.

Pomerene Assails Motives in Deal.

Mr. Pomerene, in his opening for the government, did not varnish his words describing the Fall-Doheny transactions. He declared that Mr. Doheny had given false testimony, adding that the evidence was that somebody was doing something for Mr. Doheny but that no one was apparently interested, at the time, in the United States.

"There is not a man or woman on this jury," said Mr. Pomerene, "who will fail to realize the impropriety of a business man dealing with a government official, loaning that official money, when he is seeking through that official to get lands held in trust for the people."

Mr. Pomerene recalled Mr. Doheny's testimony before the Senate committee when he said he expected to make $100,000,000 out of the Elk Hills lease.

"That wise old man," added Mr. Pomerene, "never blurted out anything without being certain as to what he was saying."

The $100,000 that went from Mr. Doheny to Mr. Fall, said Senator Pomerene, was only "a drop in the bucket" so far as Mr. Doheny was concerned, but "it meant much to Mr. Fall," he added.

Clash Over Samuel Johnson.

When Senator Pomerene concluded Mr. Hogan almost leaped into position in front of the jury. Mr. Pomerene had quoted Dr. Samuel Johnson's "patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel," referring to the defense's contention that "patriotism" was the guiding motive in the lease transaction involving the Elk Hills reserve.

Mr. Hogan began with a denunciation of Dr. Johnson as one who had slandered George Washington and vilified the Revolutionary Army.

Mr. Hogan is expected to take up the evidence in the case tomorrow. It will probably be Wednesday before Owen J. Roberts begins the final plea for conviction.

Chicago Street Cleaners Strike.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21 (AP).—Street cleaners and garbage collectors were on strike today, contending their pay was too small and that they were not given enough work. Realizing the menace to the city's health, efforts were being made at conferences today to effect an immediate settlement.

A Correction.

In a report of the death of Benjamin A. Armstrong, silk manufacturer, at New London, Conn. Mr. Armstrong was incorrectly identified in THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday, as Benjamin L. Armstrong. The latter name is that of a surviving son of Mr. Armstrong.

rates," he continued. "There is an opportunity to deal not only with the rates of the House and the Finance Committee but with the many excessive, exorbitant, horribly unjust rates of the Fordney-McCumber bill. We want to go behind them in many instances and reduce the present Fordney-McCumber rates."

Thomas Argues for His Plan.

The Thomas amendment would have had the Senate recommit the tariff bill to the Finance Committee, with instruction to rewrite it so that no rate revisions would remain except those on farm products, cotton and tobacco.

Arguing for his plan, Mr. Thomas said that the Borah resolution, to virtually the same effect, was defeated last Spring by just one vote, and that there were eighteen Senators unrecorded. He called attention to the fact that under his motion independent amendments could be presented to aid whatever industries were in actual distress.

On the roll-call, however, the only Senators favoring the Thomas motion were Frazier and Nye of North Dakota, Howell of Nebraska, McMaster of South Dakota, Pine of Oklahoma, Schall of Minnesota and Waterman of Colorado, Republicans, and Harris of Georgia, Sheppard of Texas and Thomas of Oklahoma, Democrats.

Thirty-seven Republicans, seven of these insurgents, and twenty-seven Democrats opposed the motion, although many of the opponents had voted for the Borah resolution last Spring. Mr. Borah, himself, voted negatively.

Simmons for Completing Labors.

Senator Simmons, leading the attack against the Thomas program, asserted that as the opponents of the tariff bill controlled the Senate situation it would be poor policy to forfeit all the hard labor that had been done on the rates.

Mr. Simmons regretted that President Hoover had made even a casual reference to rates on industries in his message calling the special session. But, Mr. Simmons continued, that could not be helped, and therefore it would be best to proceed to debate the various schedules.

"If we do not go ahead and finish the bill now, there will be no action for a year," he remarked. "Then in the last session of this Congress there will be initiated another general revision and we will have to go over all the same ground on rates again."

"I think the country has heard enough and seen enough of what has gone on in the Finance Committee in framing the bill. I want to have all the light the Senate can throw on this situation and the rates scrutinized, discussed and exposed."

Senator Norris opposed the motion for much the same reasons Mr. Simmons did.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, asserting that action to reduce certain industrial rates might benefit the farmer more than slight increases in the agricultural schedules, said:

"I think the best method is to go ahead and fight out the issues in these rates. Many events have occurred to discredit this bill. The circumstances strongly support changing the policy pursued for many years, of treating the tariff as so exclusively political in nature that minority committee members cannot even be present while bills are framed.

"The proceedings of the Senate during the last sixty days have demonstrated the fact that the power is here to make these rates justly reflect the sentiment of the Senate, in spite of the action of the majority members of the Finance Committee."

Blease Assails Vote Shifts.

Senator Blease in a fiery speech assailed the switching of votes in the tariff action as "one of the biggest farces" he ever saw and demanded that the Democrats break off relations with the insurgent Republicans.

"The Democratic party will always be defeated unless she changes her leadership," he said. "Why come here one time with the coalition and without it the next time?

"Why, Mr. Hoover won't sign this bill like it is now. You know how much use I have for him, but I don't think he's a fool. We might just as well adjourn tomorrow and let these Western Senators go home and collect their mileage."

Senator Hawes, Democrat, of Missouri, commenting on a statement by Secretary of Agriculture Hyde that there "seems to be a studied effort to create confusion in the minds of our people" on the subject of the flexible tariff, denied that the Senate opposed the flexible principle.

"There is a difference of opinion," he said, "as to whether or not the President of the United States should select and appoint a commission and then raise or lower tariff rates upon the recommendation of a commission which he himself has selected and appointed."

PERJURY CHARGED IN BASEBALL POOL

J. J. Otto, Sentenced to Atlanta in Fraud, Is Indicted by the Federal Grand Jury.

WAS VAGUE ABOUT PROFITS

Brought Here Last Winter, Prisoner Gave Negative Testimony on Backing by Politicians.

James J. Otto, who was sentenced last year to the Atlanta Penitentiary for a year and a day for mail fraud in connection with the operation of the Albany baseball and stock market pool, was indicted by the Federal grand jury yesterday for perjury. Otto was brought here from the penitentiary last February and questioned before the grand jury in an effort by Federal Prosecutor Thomas T. Cooke to discover what truth there was in rumors that influential politicians were backing the pool and were sharing in its profits.

Otto gave little information and the indictment charges that in seeking to evade answers he perjured himself. The present indictment supersedes one found and sealed by the grand jury last March. Otto was asked if Daniel P. O'Connell or the latter's brother, Edward, Democratic leaders in Albany, shared in the profits of the pool and whether he had ever talked with them about the pool. Otto answered "No" to both questions.

Responding to other questions, Otto swore that he did not know whether the profits of the pool in 1928 were $1,000 or $1,000,000, and that he had no idea what part of the losses of the pool in 1926 he paid himself, and could not say whether this payment was $5,000 or $50,000. Otto was credited with being one of the three owners of the pool, the others being William J. Pringle and Walter J. Kane. Testimony during the trial of Pringle indicated that the profits of the pool in 1927 amounted to $120,000, which was evenly divided between the three. The evidence at that time disclosed that during that year the gross receipts totaled $4,066,401.

Kane, who was sentenced with Otto and Pringle, was also sent to Atlanta for a year and a day. Pringle was sentenced to eighteen months.

DENTAL UNION TO STRIKE.

1,200 Mechanics Here Ordered to Quit Jobs Tomorrow.

A strike call ordering 1,200 dental mechanics working in 325 dental laboratories in New York to leave their employment tomorrow was issued yesterday by M. J. Shalkman, general organizer of the Dental Laboratory Workers Union, 96 Fifth Avenue. A mass meeting has been called for Irving Plaza Hall, Fifteenth Street and Irving Place, for tomorrow morning.

According to Mr. Shalkman, the strike will be ordered for the following objectives: an eight-hour day and forty-four hour week, a minimum wage scale, time and a half for overtime, recognition of the union and sanitary shops. The specific wage demand calls for $18 a week for apprentices and pay scaling up to $75 a week for mechanics.

HOLDS RUM BUYER GUILTY.

Federal Judge Tells Missouri Jury Purchaser Violates Law.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 21 (AP).—Purchases of liquor are equally guilty with the seller, Federal Judge A. L. Reeves of Kansas City said here today in charging a Federal grand jury.

The judge said the same penalty, probably, would not apply to all classes, but the buyer was a violator of the law. In his charge the judge did not urge indictment of purchasers of liquor.

ALL 7 CONVICTED AT GASTONIA TRIAL

of the jury, were the mill owner's lawyers able to obtain a conviction, the statement declared. "This is a clear case of prejudice and of class justice."

Two Ballots on Murder Case."

The jury made four round trips to and from the courtroom before its verdict was finally established. The visits were for instructions as to lesser counts in the indictments.

As the jury was being polled, each of the jurors had to give his verdict on each of the four counts as it affected each of the seven defendants. The replies to the total of 156 questions relating as to the specific guilt of the individual defendants consumed nearly two hours before the poll was completed.

It was learned that two ballots were taken by the jury on the major indictment and that on the first ballot the jury stood 11 to 1 for conviction.

Immediately upon dismissal of the jury, J. Frank Flowers for the defense moved that the verdict be set aside on various technical grounds, including the customary grounds of lack of evidence and error.

The motions were overruled, as was one by Mr. Flowers that the verdict be set aside because of "the emotional and prejudicial" appeal made to the jury in his summation by Solicitor John G. Carpenter.

Mr. Flowers charged that the "performance" staged by Mr. Carpenter in enacting the Aderholt death scene before the jury and denouncing the defendants for their beliefs and personal conduct constituted an act unfair and highly prejudicial to the accused.

Judge Examines Three Prisoners.

Following Solicitor Carpenter's "prayer for judgment," Judge Barnhill summoned McGinnis, McLaughlin and Harrison before him with the admonition that he was giving them an opportunity to "make a frank statement" before sentence was imposed upon them.

"I shot toward the police car," McLaughlin declared. "I shot when I heard someone cry 'turn him loose, turn him loose'". McLaughlin maintained that he believed he fired in self-defense.

McGinnis made no reference to the shooting but pleaded that he had never been "in trouble before."

"You got shot, didn't you?" asked Judge Barnhill as Harrison took the chair before him. Harrison, who had been wounded in the fight with the police, exhibited some of the gunshot marks on his body to the judge, who carefully examined them.

"I took no part in the shooting," Harrison told the judge. "I did not fire a shot."

"Did you have a gun?" demanded Judge Barnhill from Harrison.

"I never had a gun," was the reply. "I never fired one in my life. I wouldn't know how to use one."

The sentences were dictated by Judge Barnhill to the court stenographer after Mr. Flowers, Colonel J. E. McCall and Thaddeus A. Adams made their final pleas for leniency, in which they again briefly reviewed the evidence and once more declared that their clients were the victims of popular prejudice.

"The whole State has been on fire and inflamed against these defendants, not because of the crime committed, but because of their beliefs," Mr. McCall declared. "I am satisfied that it was impossible for these defendants to get a fair trial, in this part of the State at least, because of the extraneous issues injected."

Like Mr. Flowers, Mr. McCall assailed Mr. Carpenter's summation before the jury and his effort to "inflame the jury's mind" against the defendants because of their political and anti-religious views.

"The solicitor's performance was a good sample of the sentiment prevailing in this community," Mr. McCall told the court.

"He gave us this sample when he characterized the strikers' tent colony as 'a cross-section of hell.' I never knew where hell was located, but I found out from John Carpenter's speech that it was located in Gastonia."

"I know that this jury would have found them guilty of anything under the sun," Mr. McCall asserted as he attacked the summation speech of Jake Newell for the prosecution and Mr. Newell's cross-examination of Mrs. Edith Saunders Miller, Clarence Miller's wife, on the legality of her marriage and her Communist and atheist beliefs and teachings.

"When Mr. Newell got that stuff before that jury I said to my associates that we had lost this case," Mr. McCall said. "It struck me that a most unfair advantage had been taken of these defendants."

Judge Mentions His Efforts.

"I might call your attention to the fact," Judge Barnhill interposed, "that as hard as I tried to keep the word communism out of this case, counsel for the defense referred to it no less than three times in their summations."

In his charge to the jury Judge Barnhill had cautioned them not to permit the political and religious beliefs of the defendants or witnesses to prejudice them, and at the same time declared that the atheist views of Mrs. Miller were not to be held against her, except in so far as in the jury's mind they might seem to affect her credibility. In the charge Judge Barnhill devoted twice as much time to the defense as to the prosecution.

Jury's Verdict Laid to Hate.

"In my judgment, these boys were convicted because the jury were made to hate their beliefs," Mr. Flowers told the court. "I think that the only reason Hendricks and these other boys were convicted is the simple fact that they were indicted. That was enough with this jury.

"If Hendricks had been indicted and tried separately he would not have been convicted. It is entirely possible that due to the rapidity of the verdict the jury did not consider the case of each of the defendants individually."

"They had two days to consider the evidence," interjected Judge Barnhill, referring to the interim of Saturday and Sunday.

"Yes," replied Mr. Flowers, "but could they have considered it properly before hearing your Honor's charge?

"I say again, these boys were found guilty not solely because the jury believed they committed murder but because of prejudice, which warps our conceptions and obscures our judgment. It is impossible to look fairly and impartially at a man whom you hate."

Defense Commends Judge's Charge.

Counsel for the defense took occasion, however, to commend Judge Barnhill's conduct of the trial and the fairness of his charge. In his charge Judge Barnhill was careful to differentiate between the degrees of possible guilt of each of the defendants and to dwell at length on the meaning of reasonable doubt in each case.

Under the charge the jury could have found some of the defendants guilty only of assault and others on more serious grounds, if at all. The case for the defense was embodied in the charge on notes supplied by counsel for the defense.

Following the imposition of sentence the defense filed notice of appeal and Judge Barnhill admitted the defendants to bail. Beal, Miller, Carter and Harrison were held in $5,000 each, McGinnis and McLaughlin in $2,500 and Hendricks in $2,000. Judge Barnhill rejected a motion by the prosecution to increase these amounts.

According to the International Labor Defense, bail will be provided tomorrow.

Verdict Is Denounced Here.

J. Louis Engdahl, on behalf of the International Labor Defense, issued a statement yesterday that the Gastonia case would be carried to the highest courts.

An immediate appeal will be taken to the Supreme Court and finally to the Supreme Court "to fight against the vicious rulings of Judge Barnhill, that strike organizers and leaders who do not believe in God and punishments hereafter can have no standing in the employers' courts, that they cannot be given the same consideration as so-called 'loyal citizens' of North Carolina."

The verdict was allaged by Mr. Engdahl to be part of "the lynch law that swept through the textile counties of North Carolina, taking the life of Ella May Wiggins and inspiring the massacre of five strikers and the wounding of more than a score at Marion."

The American Civil Liberties Union, in a statement issued by Roger N. Baldwin, its director, characterized the verdict as "amazing and unjust," and attributed it to Judge Barnhill's admission of evidence regarding political and religious views, "transforming a murder trial into one for heresy." The union promised that "from now on, in whatever steps are taken, we will participate to the fullest extent of our ability."

CZECHS ACQUIT SLAYER AS AVENGER OF INSULT

Jury Decides Epithet by Austrian Falsely Accused of Spying, Applied to Entire Nation.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PRAGUE, Oct. 21.—Franz Rudolf, a Czechoslovak who killed an Austrian who called him a "Bohemian dog," was acquitted today on the ground that the Austrian had insulted the entire Czechoslovak nation.

Norbert Boehm, the Austrian, photographed the railway station at Maerisch-Neusatz when on a honeymoon trip. As a result of the wave of spy mania which is sweeping over the Balkans, particularly in Czechoslovakia, he was jailed with his fiancée.

At the end of six months, on the eve of his release after the espionage accusation against them had collapsed, Boehm quarreled with Rudolf, a Czechoslovak prisoner, and is alleged to have called him a Bohemian dog. Rudolf attacked him and inflicted injuries from which he died.

A lawyer appointed by the Austrian Government to represent the dead man's father asked a death sentence at the trial today, saying the outside world was waiting to see justice done.

The defense counsel, however, argued that Boehm had insulted the whole nation and the jury promptly acquitted him.

As Grete Steindel, the dead man's fiancée, had said she would execute justice on Rudolf if the court did not, special precautions were taken to prevent a court-room attack.

Supreme Court Decides Agents May Raid Without Warrant, Under State Law.

VAN SWERINGENS WIN CASE

COURT SETS SPEED RECORD

Decides 195 Cases in Day, Including Several Which Involve New Yorkers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—The Supreme Court today established a precedent relative to obtaining evidence of Volstead act violation when it sustained a decision of the Supreme Court of Iowa, which held that a search warrant was not necessary, under Iowa law, to invade a man's home to obtain evidence of violation of the prohibition law.

The high court placed its approval on the Iowa Supreme Court's decision by refusing to review the case of A. C. Bamsey of Creston, Iowa.

Bamsey, a World War veteran, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1,000 and committed to jail for 300 days until the fine was paid, on evidence obtained by officers in his home without a search warrant.

The Van Sweringen Railroad interests won a victory today when the court refused to review the case of the Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railway, petitioner against the Wheeling & Lake Erie Company and other respondents.

The petitioners, stockholders in the Wheeling & Lake Erie company, sought to restrain the latter and its directors from authorizing the execution of an agreement for the abandonment of the Wheeling's passenger station site in Cleveland, and the granting to the Cleveland Union Terminals the right to use the station site to build a new station.

The Van Sweringens paid the Wheeling & Lake Erie $1,600,000 for the Ontario passenger station, which was abandoned.

The court declined to grant the application for review filed by Myles Kukunage, a Japanese youth, under death sentence in Hawaii for the kidnapping and murder last September of George Gill Jamieson, 10-year-old son of F. W. Jamieson, a Hawaiian banker. The contention by counsel for the petitioner was that he had not received a fair trial.

Court Decides 195 Cases.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP).—The Supreme Court today cleaned up the cases filed during its Summer recess and, incidentally, set a new record.

It acted on 195 cases, the largest number ever reached at a single sitting. Last week it acted on eighty, thus giving it a record of having acted on 275 cases during the first two weeks of its present term.

Of the cases in which the court issued orders today, thirty-six granted reviews, while 159 petitions for review were thrown out.

The International Typographical Union was refused a review to test its right to amend its constitution so as to abolish trade district unions.

The right of the union was challenged by the Mailers Trade District Union, which was sustained by the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals on the ground that the proposed amendment was unreasonable and discriminatory.

The court consented to review the decision of lower Federal courts, holding shipbuilding firms had the right to sue the Shipping Board, in the name of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, under contracts made by the corporation during the World War. The government has taken the position that the Fleet Corporation could not be sued by ship companies on war contracts, because it was acting merely as an agent of the United States.

Farm relief legislation was argued today in the Supreme Court, that tribunal being called upon to decide what Congress could do, through the Hoch-Smith resolution of 1925, to relieve depressed agriculture by reducing railroad rates.

About 400 railroads joined in a vigorous attack on the construction placed by the Interstate Commerce Commission on the resolution, when it ordered a decrease in the rates on deciduous fruits shipped out of California. The railroads broadly took the position that the reduced rates were unreasonably low, and therefore invalid.

Solicitor General Hughes appeared for the government in his first argument before the court. He pointed out that the Hoch-Smith resolution was clearly within the powers of Congress in its control over interstate commerce. He denied that the rates fixed were confiscatory.

Cases decided by the court involving persons and corporations in New York were as follows:

The Swedish State Railways was refused a review of its claim that as an agency of the Swedish Government it was exempt from suit in the courts of this country brought without its consent.

Charles L. Apfel, a New York lawyer, and others were refused a review by the court of the refusal of the Federal Reserve Board to approve the organization of the United States Foreign Financing Corporation. Apfel and seven associates filed articles of the association which they had organized to engage in international or foreign banking and other financial operations, but the board withheld its approval because it was not satisfied that the organizers would be able to make a success of the proposed corporation.

Isaac L. Rosenstein, Louis Marcus, John Palmer and Morris Gielt were refused a review of their conviction in New York City under the bankruptcy act, following the failure of the Star Furniture and Carpet Company. The men were sentenced to Atlanta on charges of aiding and abetting the concealment of assets and of concealing assets.

To Test Section of Revenue Act.

The court consented to pass on the constitutionality of the section of the revenue act of 1924, taxing the income from revocable trusts, which was challenged by Charles A. Corliss of New York. The taxes were assessed on securities which Corliss had placed in trust for his wife, with the provision that at her death the principal was to go to his children. Corliss reserved the right, however, to "modify or alter in any manner or revoke in whole or in part," the trust thus made.

Irving Kaye Davis Exonerated.

Irving Kaye Davis, playwright, was discharged for lack of evidence by Magistrate Brodsky in West Side Court yesterday when arraigned on a grand larceny complaint. George Stevenson of 19 West Thirty-fifth Street, accused Mr. Davis of giving him a worthless check for $130. Magistrate Brodsky held the evidence showed no larcenous intent.

LIVINGSTON WINS AS AIR TOUR ENDS

40 Fliers Land in the Rain at Detroit After 5,000-Mile Trip for Ford Trophy.

LANCASTER FORCED DOWN

Motor Trouble Keeps Him From Finishing, but He Is to Cross Line Today.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 21.—John Livingston of Aurora, Ill., landed at the Ford airport here this afternoon at 4:14 o'clock in a Whirlwind-powered Waco biplane, establishing a total of 45,672 points for efficiency and reliability, to win the fifth annual competition for the Edsel Ford reliability trophy and the national air tour.

Livingston was led across the finish line by Arthur Davis, a team-mate, in a similar plane, who captured second prize in the tour.

The fleet of forty airplanes, which have been touring the country for the last sixteen days, flew the last leg from Kalamazoo through a driving rain against a stiff cross headwind and with visibility which kept the pilots skimming over the treetops most of the way.

The entire assembly of planes, the largest ever to gather for one tour, landed safely, however, and only one, Captain Newton Lancaster, failed to arrive in time. Just before arriving at the close of this morning's leg Lancaster was forced down with a stalled motor and nosed up in a small field. He is having his plane repaired and will cross the finish line as soon as possible.

A Ford, the first large transport plane ever to take a high prize in the tour, finished third, piloted by M. E. Zeller. Fourth place went to J. W. Crosswell in the largest licensed passenger transport in America, the Curtiss Condor.

The personnel of the tour was given a dinner by the Ford Motor Company in one of the hangars as Henry Ford entertained President Hoover and staged the Edison Golden Jubilee in one of the adjoining buildings.

As the dinner progressed the fliers heard the ceremony of the jubilee through a special microphone connected with the new museum.

At the close of the dinner the Reliability Trophy, a large silver globe with an airplane held aloft in the hands of a goddess mounted on it, was presented to the winner. The cash awards to the finishing pilots will be presented tomorrow at a luncheon.

Name and Plane.	Points Scored.
John Livingston, Whirlwind-Waco	45,772
Art Davis, Whirlwind-Waco	41,106
M. E. Zeller, Whirlwind-Wasp Ford	39,484
J. W. Crosswell, Curtis-Condor	32,796
George Haldeman, Whirlwind-Bellanca	32,277
R. A. Nagle, Whirlwind-Bellanca	31,696
J. C. Cone, Challenger-Commandaire	28,711
Mrs. Keith Miller, Whirlwind-Fairchild	28,504
William Wellborn, Whirlwind-Sparton	28,311
B. S. Warner, Tri-Wasp-Ford	28,090

Mrs. Keith Miller was the only one of the three women contestants whose plane carried her into the select ten. Miss Mae Haizlip, the other woman to finish, was well down the list because of the low speed of her plane.

Secretary Stimson and Others Take Part in R. C. A. Communications Ceremony at Capital.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Messages of felicitation and congratulation upon the success of the international expositions at Seville and Barcelona were exchanged between President Hoover and King Alfonso of Spain today when the new direct radio telegraph circuit between New York and Madrid was officially opened with ceremonies here, at New York and at Madrid.

The message of President Hoover was released with the pressing of the key in the offices of the Radio Corporation of America here by Señor Mariano Amoedo, Charge d'Affaires of the Spanish Embassy.

King Alfonso sent his greetings and then there was an exchange of messages by high officials of both countries, including Secretary Stimson, who addressed General Primo de Rivera.

The White House,
Oct. 21, 1929.

His Majesty Alfonso XIII, King of Spain, Madrid:

I take the opportunity of the opening of direct radio telegraphic service with your country to send you my cordial greetings and my congratulations on the brilliant success which has thus far attended the international expositions at Seville and Barcelona.

Through this new means of communication we are brought to the realization that our countries are united more closely each day by an intimate acquaintance between the two peoples.

HERBERT HOOVER.

King Alfonso Replies.

Madrid, Spain, Oct. 21, 1929.

President Herbert Hoover,
Washington, D. C.

On this occasion of the inauguration of the new Spanish radio-telegraph stations for transatlantic service I extend to your Excellency a cordial greeting expressing the fervent desire that by means of this direct communication our two nations may increase the mutual appreciation and sympathy that exists between them, and which have contributed to the success of the expositions of Barcelona and Seville.

ALFONSO XIII.

The message from Secretary Stimson was as follows:

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21, 1929.

His Excellency, General Primo De Rivera,
President of the Council of Ministers, Madrid.

On the inauguration of the new direct radio telegraphic service between the United States and Spain I take great pleasure in sending you, and through you to the people of Spain, this message of greeting. The establishment of each new channel of communication becomes an additional means of promoting good understanding between the peoples of the two countries and will, I feel sure, result in the sympathetic advancement of our mutual interests.

HENRY L. STIMSON,
Secretary of State.

Ceremonies Awaited Return of King.

The Madrid circuit has been operating for about two months, but the official opening was postponed on account of the absence from Madrid during the Summer of King Alfonso and the Prime Minister.

W. A. Winterbottom, vice president of R. C. A. Communications, Inc., announced that this was the first circuit to afford direct communication between the United States and Spain.

Inaugural ceremonies were held in the New York and Washington offices of R. C. A. Communications, Inc., and in the Madrid offices of Trans-Radio Espanola.

In addition to King Alfonso and General De Riviera, the Marchese Guglielmo Marconi, members of the Spanish Cabinet and the Ambassadors of the United States, Cuba, Brazil and the Argentine Republic attended the ceremony in Madrid.

Messages were also sent from Washington or New York by Señor Amoedo to Señor Marques de Estella, Spanish Minister of Foreign Affairs; by Luis Calamelo, Consul General, to the Secretary of Foreign Affairs at Madrid, and by Eduardo Lopez, president of the Spanish Chamber of Commerce in the United States, to Señor Prast, president of the Madrid Chamber of Commerce.

Four Nations Linked.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, Oct. 21.—Congratulatory messages were received and answered by King Alfonso today from Presidents Hoover of the United States, Irigoyen of Argentina and Machado of Cuba at ceremonies in connection with the opening of a powerful new radio telephone station at Aranjues, just outside of Madrid.

Premier Primo de Rivera also exchanged communications with Secretary of State Stimson as well as the Secretaries of State of Argentina and Cuba. Senator Guglielmo Marconi journeyed from Italy to be present at the opening of the new wireless station. The inventor took occasion to predict an astounding development of television in the near future.

"The time will come when people in their homes in New York will be able to see a play taking place in London or Rome," he said. "They not only will see it but they will hear the actors speaking their lines, too. This will be a greater achievement than talking pictures because the people will see the play as it occurs, not afterward.

"I am not working on television myself at present, but am trying to improve the present systems of wireless communication and lower the costs of operation. However, one often stumbles unexpectedly on something new."

MARCONI THANKS THE TIMES

Inventor of Wireless Sends Felicitations on Aid to Radio.

By Wireless to the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, Oct. 21.—I wish to send my heartfelt regards to Mr. Ochs on the occasion of the official opening of the new radio station at Aranjues, Spain, which makes possible radio communication from Spain to New York, and wish to thank THE NEW YORK TIMES for its cooperation in the past which has aided in the development of radio. G. MARCONI.

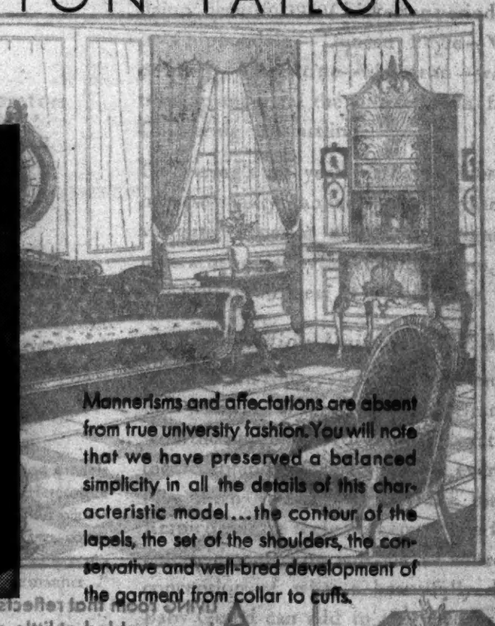
TAILOR GUILD of ROCHESTER

AT THE SUGGESTION OF A PRINCETON TAILOR

We have based this suit upon a recent model produced by a university tailor whose intimate contact with undergraduates at Princeton has established him as the country's leading authority in this school of design. We believe that Tailor Guild craftsmen have endowed this interesting garment with the sort of tailoring which it deserves.

FORTY-FIVE DOLLARS

Fabric Group Suits 35 and 40 Dollars



Mannerisms and affectations are absent from true university fashion. You will note that we have preserved a balanced simplicity in all the details of this characteristic model... the contour of the lapels, the set of the shoulders, the conservative and well-bred development of the garment from collar to cuffs.

A well-made suit reveals its quality in the manner in which it adjusts itself to the movements of the wearer. This particular suit is loose where freedom is needed, and smooth where smoothness is essential. Only the finest of needlework can achieve this custom air of easy assurance.

HOOVER REBUKES FLORIDA COMMITTEE

Replying to Protest at Naming of W. P. Hughes as Federal Attorney, He Hits Patronage.

PARTY'S SELECTIONS UNFIT

He Says Department of Justice Investigated All Names Advanced —Merit, Alone, His Guide.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—President Hoover is determined to make his appointments to public office on the basis of public service rather than for reasons of political patronage. He made his position clear in a letter in answer to protests against his appointment of W. P. Hughes as United States Attorney for the Southern District of Florida, made public today at the White House.

The letter was addressed to Fred E. Britten of Stuart, Fla., secretary of the Republican State Committee of Florida, but was apparently intended also for the perusal of Glenn B. Skipper of Miami, Republican National Committeeman, who led the fight of the Republican organization in Florida against recent Presidential appointments in that State.

In his letter to Mr. Britten the President revealed that the Florida organization had demanded that it should dictate appointments in that State, "irrespective of merit."

Mr. Skipper and the State organization have been at loggerheads for some time with the Republican patronage committee, which includes Postmaster General Brown, Walter H. Newton, one of the President's secretaries, and James Francis Burke, the counsel for the Republican National Committee.

The Florida organization recently went so far as to threaten to carry their protests to the national committee.

Hoover's Letter.

The President's letter follows:

Sept. 26, 1929.

Mr. Fred E. Britten, Stuart, Fla.

Dear Sir: I have your letter of Sept. 21. I cannot believe that you and the many friends of Mr. Skipper who have protested the appointment of Mr. Hughes overlook the primary responsibility which rests upon the President of the United States. That responsibility is one of the most sacred which he assumes upon his oath of office. It is that he shall, to his utmost capacity, appoint men to public office who will execute the laws of the United States with integrity and without fear, favor or political collusion. The appointive responsibility rests in the President, not in any organization.

For seven months the Department of Justice has investigated first one candidate and then another who were proposed by the Florida organization. The department did not feel that they could conscientiously recommend to me any one of the names presented.

Mr. Hughes, with many years of tried service in the department as an important member of the division devoted to enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment, was not appointed at the request or recommendation of any political organization whatever, he was appointed because he had proved himself an able and vigorous law enforcement officer. Furthermore, all three of the Federal judges of Florida attested to Mr. Hughes's ability and standing.

Rejects Patronage System.

It is the natural desire of the administration to build up and strengthen the Republican party in the State of Florida. That can be done in cooperation with the State organization if the organization presents candidates who measure up to my requirements of public service.

This is an obligation in the interest of the people of the State, and the first tenet in that program is that no longer shall the laws of the United States be flouted by Federal officials; no longer shall public offices be regarded as mere political patronage, but that it shall be public service.

The success of the Republican party rests upon good government, not on patronage, and Florida will have good government so far as it is within my power to give it. My own belief is that the people of Florida supported me in the past election because they expected that from me.

I note your demands that the organization shall dictate appointments in Florida irrespective of merit or my responsibility, and that you appeal to the opponents of the administration to attack me. I enclose herewith copy of a statement which I issued last March. That statement was no idle gesture.

Yours faithfully,

(Signed) HERBERT HOOVER.

MRS. QUIGLEY ATTENDS WOUNDED HUSBAND

Reconciliation of New York Lawyer and Wife, Who Had Sued for Divorce, Hinted at Denver.

DENVER, Oct. 21 (AP).—A bullet which last week dangerously wounded Bryan Quigley of New York may have been an arrow of Dan Cupid in disguise. A reconciliation of the lawyer and his estranged wife is hinted.

Quigley was wounded last week while visiting at the apartment of his wife here. He said it was an accidental shooting as he was explaining the use of a revolver to Mrs. Quigley, who has sued him for divorce, charging cruelty and non-support.

Every day since the shooting Mrs. Quigley has been at his hospital bedside. Asked about a reconciliation Mrs. Quigley said: "We haven't mentioned it yet and we will wait until Mr. Quigley has completely recovered."

The attorney recently was made defendant in an alienation of affections suit brought by William Kunkel of New York; alleging Quigley had alienated the affections of Mrs. Kunkel, the former Princess Maria Alimova of Russia.

Quigley is recovering rapidly, physicians said.

NOVEL WING SLOWS PLANE FOR LANDING

Burnelli Innovation Allows the Pilot to Extend the Edges and Alter Curvature.

30-MILE SPEED EXPECTED

Craft Designed for Safety Contest Has Four Landing Wheels— Will Receive Tests Soon.

Embodying several novel principles and mechanical innovations, the airplane designed by Vincent J. Burnelli of the Uppercu-Burnelli Corporation of Keyport, N. J., to compete for the $150,000 in prizes offered in the Safe Aircraft Competition of the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics, will take the air within a few days for test flights.

Finishing touches were being put on the metal-covered, two place monoplane in the Keyport plant yesterday. Its whole appearance presents a considerable departure from conventional airplane design. It has the characteristic of Mr. Burnelli's more familiar big transport type in that the fuselage is in itself a part of the airfoil. The two pilots or pilot and passenger sit side by side in the open cockpit.

It is in the wing, however, that the plane shows the most marked innovations. The wing section is designed for speed, with a so-called racing section. Its area, however, can be extended by the pilot by turning a wheel in the cockpit which extrudes both the leading edge and the trailing edge. At the same time, the camber or curvature of the wing can be varied. When so altered from its original shape the wing is adapted primarily for lift and its area is nearly double that of normal position.

The designer said yesterday that he expected a high speed of 135 miles an hour from the plane, which is powered with two Cirrus Mark III engines, and he was confident that using the camber change and extruded sections, the landing speed would be less than thirty miles an hour.

"There are three ways in which increased lift can be secured for a wing," he said, "increase in area, increase in camber and the use of a flap at the trailing edge, forming an angle with the rest of the wing. The wing in our contest ship makes use of all three of these methods."

In addition to the wing design the new plane has four-wheeled landing gear. The wheels are small in diameter and fitted with mushroom balloon tires. This arrangement is intended to give maximum traction when the plane has landed. On landing the position of the wing will be such, Mr. Burnelli says, that instead of lift it will exert some downward pressure and allow the full brake action to take effect on the wheels.

Furthermore the aileron design is unusual. The wing span is forty-eight feet overall, including the ailerons, which are placed at the wing tips instead of at the trailing edge and are really sections of the wing itself, making use of its full chord.

Mr. Burnelli praised the incentive to creative design which had been brought about by the Guggenheim competition.

"It has been of more value than a year's appropriation for army planes," he said yesterday. "In my own case, whatever the result of the contest, I feel that I have been stimulated to produce a wing design and control which I will find of the greatest usefulness on my large transport types. I see no reason why the same wing we have used in the contest ship should not be applied successfully to these types. It would probably make possible a reduction in wing span of from ninety to perhaps sixty-four feet and still provide for lower landing speeds than at present."

The designer added that Roger Wolfe Kahn, the composer and aviation enthusiast, would probably fly the contest plane.

Indian Deed to Up-State Land Found

BELMONT, N. Y., Oct. 21 (AP).—A deed bearing the date of Sept. 15, 1797, has been discovered in the Allegany County Clerk's office here, recording the transfer by the Seneca Indians to Robert Morris of part of the tract ceded by the Indians as a result of the big Tree treaty at Genesee. The document describes the property at great length and bears the signatures of numerous tribal chieftains, among them such historic names as Red Jacket, Corn Planter, Hot Bread, Captain Bullet and Little Beard. The price of the land, $10,000, was paid to President John Adams, at Philadelphia, to be held in trust for the red men.

This Iron Fireman earns dividends that are almost beyond belief!

SUPPOSE you take a given sum of money and with it purchase the most profitable security you can buy with safety. Then take exactly the same sum and with it purchase an Iron Fireman to fire your furnace or boiler.

At the end of the year compare the returns your two investments have made you.

You will find that your money invested in an Iron Fireman Automatic Coal Burner yields you SO MANY TIMES more than your investment in the security that the figures are almost unbelievable.

Yet those figures are borne out by the experience of literally thousands of careful business men throughout America who are today enjoying aggregate savings running into millions of dollars a year—because they looked into the Iron Fireman proposition.

Will you look into it now? Write, telephone, or wire for an Iron Fireman engineer to call at your plant or home and without the slightest obligation or cost to you make a check-up and a report of your firing situation and lay it before you. DR. C. J. CULP HEADS NEW JERSEY SYNOD

New Presbyterian Moderator Predicts Greater Efficiency in Churches.

PENSION PLAN IS STRESSED

Memorial Service Held for Dr. J. D. Steele, Who Died While Serving as Moderator.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 21.—The Rev. Dr. Cordie J. Culp, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of New Brunswick, was unanimously elected moderator of the Presbyterian Synod of New Jersey, at the opening of its 107th annual meeting, in the First Presbyterian Church this afternoon. He succeeds the Rev. Dr. Alvin C. Sawtelle of Paterson.

"I believe that our synod is entering upon a year of significance and promise," said Dr. Culp in accepting the office.

"The new plan of unified promotion accepted by the last general assembly offers an opportunity for our synod to function more effectively, both with the individual church, and with the general council. It is probable that the synod will take action at this meeting which will greatly increase its power and efficiency in the work of Christ within its bounds."

The synod held a memorial service for the Rev. Dr. James Dallas Steele, who died last year during his term as moderator. The memorial address was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Charles R. Kuebler of Hackensack.

In reporting for the committee on pensions, Rev. Joseph E. Curry of Cranbury, chairman, said that more than $8,000,000 of the $15,000,000 subscribed to put the service pension plan of the denomination into operation had been paid in. He added that 7,650 ministers and missionaries were protected under the plan, while 8,200 churches and other organizations were paying the 7½ per cent premium.

"There is a strong trend toward rationalism and the humanizing of religion," said Dr. Sawtelle, the retiring moderator, in a sermon to the synod tonight. "Herein, perhaps, lies our biggest problem.

"The church must do something more than merely proclaim with undying zeal the great doctrines of our historic faith. What the world needs is a friend. Orthodoxy follows, not precedes faith. May the church then cease her useless bickerings about orthodoxy, may she rise to her high privilege of fellowship with the divine Christ, and win the world."

Caught Stealing Coat, Gets 3 Years.

The attempted theft of an overcoat in a Childs restaurant at 1,485 Broadway resulted in a sentence of not more than three years yesterday for Garhard Eymann, a seaman, of 207 East Eleventh Street. He was found guilty in General Sessions by Justices Charles P. Caldwell, Frederic Kernochan, and Peter A. Walling. The coat, valued at $40, belonged to Thomas Martin, broker, of 384 Ninety-third Street, Brooklyn. Eymann has three previous convictions according to his police record.

FOUR MEN ARRAIGNED FOR KILLING POLICEMEN

Held Without Bail as Aides of Gunman Who Shot Patrolman Sauer in Brooklyn Hold-Up.

Four men were arraigned before Magistrate Hesly in Brooklyn Homicide Court yesterday on an affidavit charging them with the murder of Patrolman Charles A. Sauer of the Hamilton Avenue station in Brooklyn early Sunday. The patrolman, with Sergeant John McGarty, tried to frustrate a hold-up at 59 Summit Street, Brooklyn.

Patrolman Sauer, who died Sunday in Cumberland Hospital with a bullet in his brain, will be buried on Thursday with an inspector's funeral, Commissioner Whalen announced yesterday.

The men are John Zoni, alias Jack Singer, 27 years old, 268 Union Street; John Maimone, 21, 412 Henry Street; Dominick Cappalino, 18, 142 Sackett Street, and Frank Baldini, 27, 389 Clinton Street, all of Brooklyn. They were held without bail for examination next Monday.

Sauer and Sergeant McGarty surprised three men in the act of holding up a card game at the Summit Avenue address. In a pistol battle which followed, McaGrty shot one bandit and subdued another. The third escaped, leaving Sauer mortally wounded in a hallway. Singer and Maimone were arrested at the time. Early yesterday morning Baldini and Cappolino were arrested. According to the police the man who killed Sauer escaped in Baldini's car, abandoning it later.

MRS. HART CONTINUES FIGHT

Concentrates on Plan for Benefit as Time for Eviction Nears.

With only a short time left before she must vacate her house at 429 West Twenty-third Street under a municipal court order for being three months in arrears in rent, Mrs. Tillie Hart busied herself yesterday with a theatrical agent discussing plans for a benefit performance to raise the $600 necessary to void the dispossess ruling against her.

Apparently she must move tomorrow, although one of her advisers asserted that the five-day limit allowed by the court would not expire until Friday. Kreutzer & Slack, attorneys, whose wives held the master lease on the dwelling, said they would start a new dispossess action against her even if she paid the amount due when the other case came up.

Mrs. Hart said her mail had been heavy recently. One letter yesterday came from Georgia. She refused to discuss her plans over the telephone, declaring that strange sounds audible over the wires led her to believe some one had tapped her line. The London Terrace Corporation, while awaiting possession of the house, which is in the centre of the site for a large apartment and hotel project, has started the steel work in other parts of the excavations.

H. H. FREEDMAN SUED BY WIFE IN STORE CASE

Took $50,000 From Funds of Bay Shore Company Before Going Abroad, She Says.

In a suit for $50,000, alleged to have been drawn from the funds of Freedman's Department Store at Bay Shore, L. I., attachments were levied yesterday against safe deposit boxes maintained by H. H. Freedman, president of the corporation, at the Times Square Safe Deposit Company, 561 Seventh Avenue, and the Title and Realty Safe Deposit Company, 176 Broadway, by Deputy Sheriff Lanman. The action is brought against Freedman in the name of his company.

The attachments were obtained from Supreme Court Justice Mullan by Mrs. Sadie Freedman, wife of the defendant and secretary and treasurer of the department store company. She alleges that her husband went to Europe in April, taking all his property with him and pledging his insurance policies, on which the company paid the premiums, for $6,000. She asserts that he is now in Bad-Nauheim, Germany, and that he left this country to defraud his creditors, including his own company.

Mrs. Freedman said that her husband drew out $32,000 on checks against the corporation's funds and obtained $18,000 additional from the company, with part of which he bought $46,000 in bonds, some of which are believed to be in the safe deposit boxes attached. Mrs. Freedman said that she and her husband went to Florida early this year and she then learned that he had been attentive to other women. She found a "mass of love letters and photographs," she alleges. He left her in Florida and went abroad, she said.

Suit Against Thaw Delayed.

The trial of the $100,000 assault suit of Marcia Estardus, night club hostess, against Harry K. Thaw, was adjourned yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Levy until tomorrow because of the death in Birmingham, Ala., of the mother of Isidor M. Shapiro, counsel for Thaw.

REED IS SELECTED FOR NAVAL PARLEY

Stimson Announces Robinson Is to Be Other Senate Delegate at London Meeting.

COMMITTEE LIMITED TO 5

Dawes and Gibson Are Likely to Be Others, Envoy to Belgium Having Regained His Health.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—By President Hoover's direction Secretary Stimson announced today that Senator Reed of Pennsylvania and Senator Robinson of Arkansas would represent the Senate on the American delegation in the international conference on naval disarmament which is to assemble in London in January. Both have accepted.

Announcement had been made that Secretary Stimson would be chairman of the American delegation. Mr. Stimson said he thought the President would not select the other members of the delegation until the situation with respect to the conference was better known. It is believed Ambassador Dawes and Hugh S. Gibson, American Ambassador to Belgium, will be added to the delegation.

Gibson's Health Improves.

The State Department has advices that Mr. Gibson, whom the White House understood was in bad health, has improved greatly. He is a close friend of President Hoover and has more expert knowledge of the problems that will come before the disarmament conference than any other government official by reason of having been chief American delegate in the three-power naval armament conference at Geneva in 1927 and has been a member of the League of Nations's preparatory commission for a disarmament conference since its organization in 1926.

Mr. Gibson, who is convalescing in the South of France, is reported to be ready to assume his Ambassadorial duties in Brussels.

It was said today that there is little likelihood that the delegation will consist of more than five members. When it was made known that Secretary Stimson would head the delegation there were reports that it would be composed of five or six members.

Some dissatisfaction was apparent in the Senate when today's announcement concerning Senators Reed and Robinson became known at the Capitol. Some Senators indicated that they thought the President should not have gone so far down on the list of members of the Committee on Foreign Relations to select Senator Reed, who is seventh ranking member of the committee.

As for Senator Robinson, who is the Democratic floor leader and a member of the Committees on Foreign Relations and naval affairs, there was some criticism on the ground that the President's choice should have been Senator Swanson of Virginia, who is the ranking Democratic member of the Foreign and Naval Committees and was chairman of the Naval Committee during Democratic control of the Senate.

While Senators Reed and Robinson supported the Kellogg anti-war pact, they voted for the fifteen cruiser program that was before the Senate at approximately the same time. Senator Borah supported the Kellogg pact, but voted against the fifteen cruiser bill. He frequently has called on Great Britain to declare her position with respect to freedom of the seas. Recently he suggested that Britain should sink a sufficient number of cruisers to bring her cruiser strength on a parity with that of the United States.

Senator Robinson is regarded in the Senate as a man of force and opinion is strong that he will be a tower of strength in advocating Senate ratification of any naval disarmament treaty concluded in London. As Democratic floor leader he has the confidence of his party associates and is very popular personally.

Senator Reed's selection was somewhat of a surprise. Mr. Reed is a strong advocate of an adequate national defense, but it is taken for granted that he finds nothing inconsistent between his ideas in that regard and the effort of President Hoover to bring about substantial reduction in our naval forces. He served in the army in the World War and is a member of the American Legion.

Secretary Stimson disclosed that a place on the American delegation had been offered to Mr. Borah and that he had declined. While a strong advocate of armament reduction, it was felt Mr. Borah did not relish taking part in the negotiation of a disarmament treaty and be forced to be its chief defender when it came before the Senate for ratification.

Senator Borah seems to be out of sympathy with the decision of President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald that a codification of sea law so as to lay down specific definitions of the rights of neutral vessels in time of war shall not be made a preliminary to a disarmament treaty. The President and the Prime Minister are credited with believing that with the Kellogg anti-war pact in force, the problem of freedom of the seas can be adjusted in a much simpler way than through sea law codification.

Senator Watson of Indiana, Republican floor leader of the Senate, is understood to have taken himself out of consideration for a place on the American delegation because of his feeling that it was necessary for him to attend to his duties of leadership while the tariff bill was pending in Congress. In addition, Senator Watson has no familiarity with the technical questions which will come before the London conference.

Hopes to Meet Japanese Here.

Secretary Stimson said today that the Japanese Government had suggested that the members of the Japanese delegation to the London conference might come via Washington on their way to London, and he had responded that he would be very glad if they took that course. Secretary Stimson said the Japanese Government had not informed him of any subject that its delegates would discuss with him, but he conceded that the submarine question doubtless would be brought up.

The understanding in official circles here is that the chief subject of discussion between the Japanese delegates and Mr. Stimson will be the proposal of Japan that the Japanese ratio of warships, which the Washington naval treaty of 1922 fixed at 5-5-3 for the United States, Great Britain and Japan with reference to battleships, shall be expanded so as to give Japan a ratio of three and one-half, or seven-tenths of American and British tonnage, with reference to cruisers, and perhaps destroyers and submarines.

The position of this government will be that the limitation of the strength of cruisers and other auxiliary ships of war shall not be determined by the ratio method. While the American and British Governments have agreed in their preliminary conversations that there shall be parity in all classes of war vessels between the United States and Britain, the relative strength of the two navies is to be determined by numbers of vessels based on their respective defensive needs.

WANT BRITISH NAVY TO DISREGARD OURS

Navy League Speakers Hold Britain's Armaments Should Depend on Own Needs.

SEE PEACE MENACE IN CUTS

Freedom of Action Urged by Sir Sydney Freemantle—London Observes Trafalgar Day.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—While wholeheartedly endorsing Premier MacDonald's American message, several speakers at the Navy League's Trafalgar Day dinner tonight expressed conviction that Britain's naval armaments should depend upon Britain's needs alone.

Lord Lloyd, recently High Commissioner in Egypt, who was the principal speaker, declared that he would settle the disarmament questions by saying to the United States, "You build what you will, and let us build what we will." He said that the only peace of any use was the peace coming through security.

"We need to be careful amid press captions and the blare of Atlantic loudspeakers, and keep our head," he continued, adding that the mere reduction of navies bore no relation to peace.

Referring to the crowds seen gathered about the Nelson Monument in Trafalgar Square today, Admiral Sir Sydney Fremantle said he wondered whether the nation realized the great danger to itself "of stereotyping its naval policy to conform to the will of another country."

The gathering enthusiastically applauded his assertion that "if the United States wants a great navy, that is her affair, not ours. The strength of the British Navy is an affair of the British Empire and the British Empire alone. In the final analysis, freedom of action should be reserved for ourselves, as our needs differ materially from those of every other nation."

Sir James Parr, High Commissioner for New Zealand, approved Mr. MacDonald's statement in the American address that the British Empire stands or falls by her navy. "Personally, I am not for piling up armaments, but for reducing them," he said. "I am also for the League of Nations, which, though only ten years old, is strong enough to prevent war between the small powers, but not to eliminate the risk of conflict between the great nations. There are sore spots in Europe still where racial hatreds cannot be eliminated in ten years, and we cannot yet trust an outside organization to keep world peace."

No reduction of armament is safe unless it is all around and proportionate, he added.

The plinth of the Nelson Monument in Trafalgar Square was hidden by wreaths today—the one-hundred-and-twenty-fourth anniversary of the great Admiral's victory at Trafalgar. Flags were flown at half-staff on all public buildings, and his memory honored in all the great cities of the empire. Laurel wreaths adorned the old flagship, Victory, now on exhibition in drydock at Portsmouth, in much the same condition as when it led the British fleet into action.

Judge Moore Not City's Counsel.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 21.—The appearance of the name of Children's Court Judge Benjamin W. Moore of Westchester County on papers filed here on Oct. 15, as special assistant corporation counsel for New York City in an action for the reduction of assessed valuations of property owned by the city in the town of Greenburgh, occurred through an error in the office of the New York City corporation counsel, according to Judge Moore. Judge Moore said that he has not acted for New York City since he was appointed to the Children's Court bench. On Oct. 16 an article in THE NEW YORK TIMES, based on papers filed at the County Clerk's office in White Plains, said Judge Moore sued.

POLICEMAN IS FREED OF SHOOTING CHARGE

Magistrate Also Clears Two Students He Arrested—Society Threatens Suit.

Patrolman Walter C. Lowe of Brooklyn emergency squad 4, who has been suspended from the force since Oct. 9, when he arrested two negro students of Lincoln University after shooting one of them in the back, was discharged yesterday by Magistrate Rudich in a John Doe proceeding in Gates Avenue Court, Brooklyn. The magistrate also dismissed the patrolman's charges of disorderly conduct and felonious assault against the two youths.

Lowe charged that William Fontaine, 20 years old, and Ralph Baker, 21, both of 154 Willowdale Avenue, Montclair, N. J., insulted him and a woman companion at the Troy Avenue station of the Fulton elevated line in Brooklyn. He said that he chased them off the train and followed them into the street, firing into the air as they fled. One of these shots caused Baker to spend six weeks in a hospital.

Both youths denied that they were on the train. They said that two negroes ran past them as they were walking to the station, followed by Lowe, who was shooting after them. Baker fell with a bullet in the back, they testified, and was taken to the hospital charged with assault, while Lowe arrested Fontaine for disorderly conduct.

Magistrate Rudich said he saw no malice on Lowe's part and dismissed the charges against the policeman. Morris L. Ernst, retained by the National Society for the Advancement of Colored People to represent the two students, objected. He said later that proceedings for malicious prosecution, false arrest and civil damages would be instituted against Lowe.

Meanwhile the society sent a letter to Police Commissioner Whalen demanding that Lowe be removed from the force "as a menace to society and order," referring to the patrolman's actions as those of a "maniac."

JACOBSEN PREDICTS DRY ACT MODIFICATION

Ex-Member of British Parliament Declares Public Opinion Is Bound to Bring It About.

The pressure of public opinion in the United States is bound to bring about modification of the Eighteenth Amendment, according to T. Owen Jacobsen, former Member of Parliament in England, who arrived here yesterday from the International Convention of Stationers in Montreal, Canada.

"America will discover that it is impossible to maintain legislation without the moral support of the people," Mr. Jacobsen declared. "Prohibition has had a very bad effect on this country—it is dangerous for the people to disregard the law. I believe that there is more intoxication in the United States today than in England. Our system of education, with the aid of a reasonable government, has resulted in the closing of more than 20,000 saloons. Although you have an inelastic Constitution, the strong common sense of the American people must ultimately prevail."

Discussing the possibility of a future war, Mr. Jacobsen said: "America and England control all the metal needed for war and a refusal to supply other nations with implements of destruction would prevent wars on a large scale to be carried on for long. Other civilizations as strong and important as ours have died and the time may yet come when we will make a great stand to preserve our ideals. The greatest menace to world peace is the mass of mankind which thinks that prosperity comes with political power."

Charles Douglas Booth, who has spent the last eight years studying European affairs from Tangiers to the Dodecanese, arrived yesterday on the United States liner America for a lecture tour.

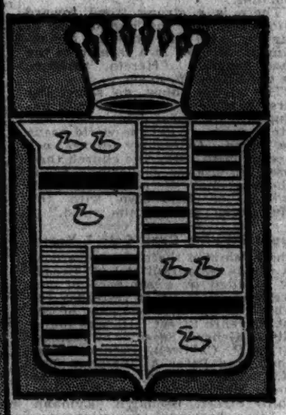
CHECK THESE LOWER PRICES



THE NEW Cadillacs and La Salles, introduced a few weeks ago, offer important advantages affecting every phase of performance and ownership. Yet reductions were made in the prices of all models.

As Cadillac-La Salle advantages cannot be obtained elsewhere, even if price were no object, unequalled value is another factor in their favor that profoundly impresses every one who puts these cars to a thorough test and then compares them with others.

In the Cadillacs and La Salles, gear-shifting is quite different in its ease and silence. There is just one gentle unbroken movement of the lever under all driving conditions—no timing, no tugging, no sound. It is quick, sure, silent. The secret is the improved Syncro-Mesh Silent-Shift Transmission, obtainable in no other cars.

You will have a similar delightful experience in steering, which is infinitely easier than you would expect it could possibly be in any car, whether you are parking or weaving through traffic, because the new harmonized steering system makes it so.

And so it is with the brakes which function with amazing positiveness and ease, yet without subjecting the car to stress or strain, because they are the newly refined Cadillac-La Salle Safety-Mechanical Four-Wheel Brakes.

Try all these mechanical advantages. Check up other features—the more powerful V-type, 8-cylinder engine; the roomier Fisher and Fleetwood bodies, the elegance and beauty of which are far more than superficial smartness; observe, too, that non-shatterable Security-Plate Glass is not an extra, but standard equipment in all windows, doors and windshields.

You can enjoy all these advantages for as low as $2285 (La Salle, f. o. b. Detroit). Divide this into monthly payments under the General Motors Deferred Payment Plan and you will conclude that, in comparison with cars of lesser prestige, the difference in expenditure is so small and the difference in satisfaction so great as to make the choice of a Cadillac-built car well nigh irresistible. Yes—we have no EARTHENWARE POTS

The American Weekly has the largest circulation on earth. A full color page in this great magazine reaches six million families for less than ⅓ cent per family.

The most people at the lowest cost! But how do we know these people actually read The American Weekly?

Perhaps this proves something:

Early this year an article appeared in The American Weekly entitled, "$30,000 Spent to Produce a Perfect Cup of Coffee."

It told how scientists at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, after devoting three years to experimentation, had arrived at the perfect formula for making coffee.

This article stipulated that coffee should always be made in a glass or earthenware pot.

Two weeks after the article appeared we called at various New York department stores, having household furnishing departments, and inquired if there had been any requests for earthenware pots. In each case the buyer stated there had been an unusual demand but did not know the cause.

From Los Angeles came a letter from the J. W. Robinson Co., one of the largest and highest class household department stores in Los Angeles, saying, "We would appreciate it if you would give us a description of the coffee pot referred to, or the name of the manufacturer, as we have had many inquiries resulting from the article in The American Weekly."

Shortly after a representative of The American Weekly happened to be in Santa Paula, California, a little town seventy miles from Los Angeles. He inquired at the general store for earthenware coffee pots and was told by the proprietor that he had had three in stock for over a year, and that they all had been sold during the past week. Three hundred copies of The American Weekly go into Santa Paula.

That looks as though this magazine had a real appeal to women.

That looks as though The American Weekly were an ideal medium for any manufacturer who has reliable merchandise to sell to the home.

For $16,000 you can buy a full color page in The American Weekly, and reach six million families—¼ of the entire population of the United States, located in the richest buying centers, for less than ⅓ cent per family.

Where can you spend your advertising dollar more effectively?

BYRD SLEDGE PARTY FINDS BETTER GOING

Camped 61 Miles South of Base Sunday Night on Antarctic Trail.

WARMER DAYS AID ON WAY

After Difficult Start, Dog Teams Did 17 Miles Saturday and 18 on Sunday.

CLIMB OF BARRIER WORST

Four of Geological Party, for Which Depots Are Being Laid, Relay Loads 20 Miles.

By RUSSELL OWEN.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Oct. 21.—The supporting party camped sixty-one miles south of Little America last night and today is presumably again moving forward unless the strong wind here is a blizzard further inland.

Messages from Arthur Walden, leader of the party, and Joe De Ganahl, navigator, report that, after discouragingly slow progress because of the miserable surface the first two days out, the trail has improved during the last few warm days and the teams are making better speed. On two days, they made seventeen and eighteen miles, which is not bad with heavy loads at this time of year.

After they left Ver-sur-Mer Inlet, they had a "picnic," as De Ganahl puts it, for five miles, until they reached the Barrier surface with the long slope up to the top.

Heartbreaking Work on Sledges.

"Heavy loads, man-hauling, pessimism," is the laconic report which, to those who have seen men man-hauling with dogs, speaks volumes.

Strap over shoulder, dogs lying at most flat, tongues hanging out, straining with their effort. Men and dogs steaming in the cold wind and stopping every half mile to rest; then on again slowly and painfully. Dogged, wearying effort, mile after mile over the empty plain of snow with no goal in sight, the most heartbreaking work in the world.

After fifteen miles of this, every ounce of material which could safely be left was cached in a depot. This was at the end of Thursday night, the 17th.

The first day, the 15th, they made nine miles; the second day, ten miles, and on the third, Thursday, only seven.

Runners were breaking through the crust and running against a continuous overhang of hard snow which must be crushed. And under that was the hard granular sand-like snow of the Barrier, snow which acted like a brake on sledge runners.

It is incredible, until one has seen it, the way in which this cold, Barrier snow retards progress. Skis stick to it so that a skilled ski runner going over a slight jump will find his skis stuck fast to the snow after he lands and will plunge forward on his face.

This is what these men were hauling over the first three days of their trip, lending their strength to that of their hard working dogs, throwing all their weight against the man-hauling strap.

The next day was warmer and the sledges slipped more easily over the surface. Spirits rose accordingly and at the end of the day, last Friday, eighteen miles had been checked off by the sledge meter. That was better.

That night they gathered cheerfully around the stove in one of the tents while Chris Braathen made hooch of pemmican, and while it was cooking Walden compared sledging on the Barrier with sled freighting in the timber lands of Alaska.

Far Different in Alaska.

How different. Warm bonfire at night, clothes drying in its cheery light, roasting fresh meat over the fire and breaking out a can of beans, his favorite food. "Heaven" is De Ganahl's summary of that glimpse into sledging in another land.

That night the wind blew and rattled the tent, staked out in the desolation of the gray-lighted Barrier, for it is light for the entire twenty-four hours now; and the dogs hitched to their picket lines curled up in dark balls, their noses tucked under their tails and their backs to the wind which ruffled the fur and covered it with glistening snow.

The next day the wind blew all day and a low drift scurried along the surface, making it difficult to see.

The party had reached the 44-mile depot put out last year the night before and taken 600 pounds of dog food from it to be distributed in depots further south.

With this weight, the men had no desire to run astray in the Trap, as Amundsen called the valley full of "haycocks" and crevasses west of the trail at this point, the trap into which he, experienced polar traveler that he was, wandered one gray day and nearly came to grief. They could see the crevasses dimly near at hand southwest of their camp.

Weather Clears the Next Day.

Next morning the blizzard had passed and by making a turn to the east they got around the worst part of the trap, although they crossed a small crevasse and passed a number of haycocks, those steep, hollow mounds of snow which always indicate the presence of deep chasms under the surface. They made good progress, however, covering seventeen miles, and last night camped sixty-one miles from Little America, with one bad area behind them.

Their heaviest loads are to the 100-mile depot, and if the surface should again become crusty and hard they might have to relay over that part of the route. After the 100-mile depot, the sledges will be much lighter.

While the supporting party is working its way South with loads for depots to the 200-mile mark, the geological party is relaying its load as far as possible so as to save time. The men left yesterday afternoon, Vaughan, Goodale, Crockett, Thorne and O'Brien, and at the end of the day had gone twenty miles.

They picked up the bulk of their load from the sledges taken out to the Barrier trail when they first left to accompany the supporting party for two days. Dr. Gould, leader of the geological party, remained in camp to complete some work of preparation for the final start, which will be as soon as the teams return for the remaining portion of their loads.

Everything is being subordinated now to getting the geological party to the mountains, and Commander Byrd said today that he would not require any assistance from the geological party so as to leave them untrammeled in their work, if necessary laying a base at the foot of the mountains with the airplanes alone.

MISS WALD BACKS CRAIN.

Social Service Worker Endorses Tammany Choice for Prosecutor.

Miss Lillian D. Wald, director of the Henry Street Settlement, declared yesterday for Judge Thomas C. T. Crain, Tammany candidate for District Attorney, in a statement issued through the Crain campaign headquarters.

"With other social workers and settlement folk, I am interested in Judge Crain's candidacy for District Attorney," Miss Wald said. "He has for many years given demonstration of his intelligent comprehension of the many different aspects and the background of men and women brought before him in the courts, so that we think we can confidently expect from his long and rich experience a point of view that is profoundly understanding."

MORE INDICTMENTS IN LIQUOR RING NEAR

O'BRIEN FOUND IN HOSPITAL

Wounded Fugitive, Said to Be One of Leaders of Vast Syndicate, Arrested at Perth Amboy.

United States Attorney Philip Forman in Trenton announced yesterday that he would go before the Federal grand jury there this morning in connection with the liquor-smuggling syndicate whose widely scattered posts and headquarters were seized in thirty-five simultaneous raids last Wednesday. It is understood that more indictments, naming new figures in the syndicate, whose connection has been uncovered through documents seized in the raids, will be sought.

Douglas Hicks, one of Mr. Forman's assistants, announced at the same time that William O'Brien, one of the important members of the syndicate under indictment, had been arrested at the Perth Amboy Hospital. Of the alleged leaders of the ring, only Al and William Lilien, brothers, have not been arrested.

O'Brien is in the hospital under the name of William Bishop. He is suffering from a gunshot wound, suffered when a Coast Guard patrol engaged in a running fight with liquor-laden speedboats on the Raritan River two weeks ago. One of the boats was sunk, and many shots were exchanged, O'Brien being the only known casualty.

Two Federal agents went to the Perth Amboy Hospital last week to investigate a report that O'Brien was there. After leaving the hospital, they refused to talk. Apparently their interview at that time proved inconclusive, and it was through additional evidence, uncovered in the seized papers, that the authorities finally were able to make certain of their identification. At all events, O'Brien, alias Bishop, will be kept under twenty-four hour guard by deputy marshals until his release from the hospital.

That Mr. Forman and those cooperating with him regard the new evidence to be presented to the grand jury as important was evidence by yesterday's activity. It is generally believed that several important indictments will be sought, and that possibly the real head of the giant syndicate will be among the number. None of those as yet under indictment is regarded by the authorities as the real head.

HOLDS UP CONTRACT FOR SUBWAY POWER

NEW DRAFT TO BE MADE

Officials Reveal That They Are Considering Plan Eventually to Build Municipal Plant.

Approval of the proposed ten-year contract between the city and the New York Edison Company for power to operate the new subway system was postponed for three weeks yesterday by the Committee of the Whole of the Board of Estimate. Objections raised by the Public Committee on Power and the Citizens Union to the cancellation clause in the contract caused the decision to delay approval.

Counsel for the company, the Board of Transportation and the Citizens Union will confer in the meantime to draft a cancellation clause which will assure the city the right to abrogate the contract at any time on twelve months' notice without incurring any financial liability. The sufficiency of an existing contract provision for that purpose was questioned yesterday.

City Plant Contemplated.

During the discussion of the contract, John H. Delaney, chairman of the Board of Transportation, disclosed that city officials were considering the advisability of erecting a municipal power plant which would not only furnish light and power to the new subway system and such lines as might be included in a unification plan, but also to public buildings and streets. Officials of the New York Edison Company, Mr. Delaney said, had been told that the proposed ten-year contract might be canceled, in the event of a unification of transit lines and a municipal plant erected. Mr. Delaney suggested to the company that it might eventually have to make its bids for light and power in city buildings and city streets on the basis of possible competition from a municipal plant.

The Edison contract, awarded by the Board of Transportation on July 9, calls for a net charge of 7.99 mills per kilowatt-hour. It gives the city an option for renewal for a second ten-year period. It also provides for part or complete cancellation by the city on twelve months' notice without liability for the company's unamortized investment. During the negotiations the total cost to the city under contract for the ten-year period was estimated at $36,381,000, with an estimated cost of $500,000 for the first six months' operation of the new Eighth Avenue subway line in Manhattan.

Disputes Cost Figures.

Miss Dorothy Kenyon, counsel for the Public Committee on Power, and Leonard M. Wallstein, counsel for the Citizens Union led the attack upon the proposed contract. Miss Kenyon questioned the accuracy of figures purporting to show that it would be cheaper for the city to purchase its power for the ten-year period rather than build its own power plant. The cost of purchased power, she said, was underestimated by $4,840,000 and the cost of city-made power overestimated by $9,076,000. In a statement issued after the meeting Miss Kenyon declared that the city would save $8,283,000 in ten years by constructing its own power plant.

She agreed with Mr. Delaney and Mayor Walker, however, that it would be cheaper for the first few years of operation of the new city subway system to purchase the power.

Mr. Delaney pointed out that the new city system would begin operation in 1931 and expressed the "sincere hope" that by that time there would be some degree of unification of rapid transit lines. Such a contingency, he said, would raise the question of a city power plant or an enlargement of the B. M. T. plant to provide power for a unified system, including that company's lines.

"The Edison Company has given us the very lowest power rate to be found anywhere in this country," Mr. Delaney declared.

Miss Kenyon then suggested that the city might well consider construction of a power plant capable not only of providing power and light for the subways but also for the city's buildings and streets.

"We've thought of that," Mayor Walker said, "but we didn't want to let the cat out of the bag."

Mr. Wallstein's remarks were confined almost exclusively to the need of making the cancellation clause "air tight." Mayor Walker and Mr. Delaney agreed that this should be done, and expressed confidence that the Edison company would be willing to change the phraseology of the contract in any manner necessary to accomplish that result.

CALVARY SKYSCRAPER IS FOUGHT IN COURT

A suit to prevent the construction of a skyscraper apartment hotel on the property of the Calvary Baptist Church on West Fifty-seventh Street on the ground that the building permit had been granted illegally by Building Superintendent Charles Brady, was brought in the Supreme Court yesterday. Justice Mullan directed Mr. Brady to show cause in twenty days why his action should not be reviewed by the court.

The action was brought by the 119 West Fifty-seventh Street Company, Inc., which holds a long lease on a fourteen-story building adjoining the church property on the east, and which asserts that the erection of the Calvary building with a blind wall cutting off light and air from the tenants of the plaintiff, will cause the latter more than $100,000 damage. The petition alleges that the Calvary building is subject to the regulations of the tenement house law and that the plans approved by Mr. Brady show that it is planned that many of the tenants of the 170 apartments in the new building will occupy three-room suites in which they will do cooking in unventilated and unlighted kitchens in violation of the tenement house law.

The petition shows that Mr. Brady has ruled that the tenement house law does not apply and that the Board of Standards and Appeals, to which the plaintiffs attempted to appeal from the Building Superintendent's refusal to revoke the permit, has declined to act on the ground that the new multiple dwellings law applies and that the board has no jurisdiction.

FISHER SAYS PRICES OF STOCKS ARE LOW

Quotations Have Not Caught Up With Real Values as Yet, He Declares.

SEES NO CAUSE FOR SLUMP

Economist Tells Credit Men That Market Has Not Been Inflated, but Merely Readjusted.

Even in the present high market the price of stocks have not yet caught up with their real values, according to Professor Irving T. Fisher, head of the Department of Economics at Yale University.

In a prepared address before the New York Credit Men's Association at a discussion forum last night in the Commodore Hotel, Professor Fisher asserted that the market has not been inflated, but has only been readjusted to the decreasing value of the dollar and the increasing pace of production and trade.

He dismissed yesterday's break in the market as a "shaking out of the lunatic fringe that attempts to speculate on margin." He said that he was sorry for such losers because their treatment might seem "raw," but that their elimination would promote stability. During the next few weeks, he predicted a "ragged market, returning eventually to further steady increases."

"In my opinion," he said, "current predictions of heavy reaction affecting the general level of securities find little if any foundation in fact.

"Let us take the month of August, 1929, when the price level of stocks had reached its record top of 200. The price level was 145 in August of the preceding year. Yet in August, 1929, common stocks, as computed by the Standard Statistics Corporation, were selling at only thirteen times the total earnings, as compared with fourteen times the total earnings in August of the preceding year.

"In other words, while the index of prices of representative stocks has risen very rapidly during the past year, it has risen more slowly than the rate of total earnings, comprising those earnings distributed in dividends and those retained for plowing back into the industry. It is this factor of the increased rate of total earnings that should be emphasized in any appraisal of the present stock market.

"During the past six years there have been pronounced changes in the tempo of production and trade, due to the vast increment of scientific research and application of inventions. Virtually every line of manufacture witnesses daily technical development that results in a greater total of products, at reduced costs, greater profits and lower prices to consumers. These gains are continuing into the future.

"Further, the dollar has now only two-thirds the purchasing power of the pre-war dollar. That alone would account for an increase of 50 per cent in the level of the stock market. Other factors are mergers, scientific management, cooperation between labor and management, prohibition, which makes labor more productive and dependable, and finally, common stocks have become popular as investments and share in earnings in increasing measure, due to the depreciated dollar."

Professor Fisher expanded the defense of investment trusts which he made last week before the Purchasing Agents Association. He said that investment trusts, investment counsel and mergers in general tend to stabilize the market by diversified investment, with correspondingly decreased risk to their participating investors. "Anything which does not manipulate the market," he said, "but merely anticipates it so as to iron out the peaks and valleys, stabilizes it and is advantageous."

He predicted that the total of investment trust funds, which is now more than $3,000,000,000, would reach $5,000,000,000 by next March.

In the discussion which followed, Professor Fisher was reminded that in a judgment uttered last May he had pointed out that predicting the human behavior of the market was quite different from analyzing its economic soundness.

SAN FRANCISCO SEES RALLY.

Prices Drop, but Tone at the Close Is Decidedly Firmer.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 21.—Prices dropped during the early trading, but a decidedly firmer tone was noted at the close of today's session on the San Francisco Stock Exchange and the San Francisco Curb. Nine new lows were registered on the Exchange, with two on the Curb, but no issue lost more than 5 points, and several exceptions to the general trend even managed to close with a net gain over Saturday's low sale.

Chief interest centred in the oils. There were losses on practically every petroleum issue. The low-priced oils, representing those companies to be hit hardest as a result of the drastic cut in the crude price, were the chief sufferers, and were sold in heavy volume. Turnover in the others, however, was only slightly larger than normal.

Pacific Gas and Electric common led utilities with a gain of 2⅛ points over the last previous sale on Saturday, and considerable strength was manifested in the utility section as a whole. Pacific Lighting common, however, closed 3 off at 102, representing a recovery from 100 in early trading. Several industrials advanced fractionally, but the majority of issues in this division eased off from 1 to 2 points, and several were found on the list of new 1929 lows.

Banks were not in demand, but the Giannini issues stubbornly resisted the general trend, Transamerica closing at 63¼ for a net loss of 1⅛.

HEAVY SELLING IN CHICAGO.

850,000 Shares Traded as Market Plunges After Rise at Opening.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—The selling wave opened up anew on the Chicago Stock Exchange today after a short upward move at the opening, which indicated that a rise might take place. The hopes of traders were short lived, however, and after taking a second breath the market plunged downward amid the most active trading ever registered in the history of the Exchange.

Total sales were 850,000 shares officially recorded. The final hour was the most exciting of all. Traders swarmed around posts in an effort to dispose of stocks as the key to the situation, the New York Exchange stock ticker ran more than an hour and a half behind. More than 318,000 shares were traded in during the last hour.

Auburn was down $45 a share at one time to $325. The stock closed at $330, a net loss of $40 on the day after sales of about 2,000 shares. Cord declined $3.50, and losses of from $1.50 to more than $4 in value were felt by Bendix Aviation, Borg-Warner, Great Lakes Aircraft, Allied Motor Industries and the Houdaille-Hershey issues.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES DROP.

Losses of From One to Seven Points Recorded for Most of List.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 21.—Transactions on the Philadelphia Stock Exchange today were generally a reflection of the movements in the New York market, so that declines exceeded gains throughout the confusing session, which closed with only about a dozen of the issues showing plus marks. Losses of from one to seven points were registered.

Although the public utility shares still felt the full force of the selling movement, United Gas Improvement, the most active member of this group, resisted the downward trend after it had been forced below 40 and closed the day with a fractional net gain.

WASHINGTON VIEWS SITUATION AS SOUND

Officials Hold That Decline in Stocks Will Not Disturb Business Materially.

RESERVE POSITION STRONG

Observers Discuss Possible Effect of Cut in Rediscount Rate, but No Action Is Forecast.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—The sharp decline in security values on the Stock Exchange is being watched carefully by administration officials, who are hopeful that the readjustment will not seriously disturb business and national prosperity. They held that there was no evidence of a serious business or financial situation which could be held responsible for the decline in Stock Exchange values.

Officials would make no formal comment, hoping that the situation would work itself out in an orderly manner, after the first sharp readjustment.

The question of reducing the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, which is now at 6 per cent, was discussed in some quarters. Observers felt that the immediate result might be to help check the decline. No hint was given, however, whether reduction of the rate was being seriously considered.

The point was made that the Federal Reserve system was in a strong position as a result of its recent policies, and that, while slackening was apparent in some industries, general business conditions were on a high level. The Reserve System has been bending its efforts to provide easy credit for business and agriculture and feels that it has accomplished much in that direction. The system is in a strategically sound condition to meet any emergency.

A strengthening of the bond market was held to be logical with the easing of interest rates incident to the break in stock prices and an accompanying desire of investors to seek income in the relatively high returns on bonds and certain preferred stocks.

Experts here were disinclined to take a pessimistic view of the readjustment because of the prosperity of the great corporations, the general high level of business, the vast credit resources of the nation and the extremely strong position of the Federal Reserve System.

BANKERS PREDICT A RALLY.

Believe Reaction Has Gone Too Far and See No Cause for Alarm.

Inquiry among leading banking interests of the city disclosed yesterday the opinion that the current stock market reaction, while a natural and healthy development, has been carried too far. The situation, it was said, is not at all alarming, however, as powerful banking support will aid the stock market before the decline goes to extremes.

"There is no reason to feel unduly alarmed," one leading banker declared. "We have made careful inquiries and have failed to discover that any one has been seriously hurt. There is no danger of a panic because the economic position of the country remains sound."

The decline, he continued, is a natural development following upon a long and uninterrupted advance which in some instances had been carried too far.

"We have a habit in this country," he remarked, "of going to extremes. This was the case with the rise in stock prices and is also the case with the decline which has been going on." In particular, he said, the investment trust idea has been overdone, as is shown by the fact that the current quotations for many investment trust shares are below their issue prices.

This banker indicated that before the slump in security prices has reached dangerous proportions institutions like his own would bring powerful support to bear. This does not mean, he explained, that there will be any coalition of banking interests to rescue the market. It means simply that the great banking houses will begin to purchase securities in volume when it appears that sound issues have reached reasonable levels.

LIVERMORE NOT IN BEAR POOL

Says It Is Foolish to Think That Any One Group Can Sway Market.

Jesse L. Livermore, who has been widely reported in Wall Street to have been heavily short of the market on the present break and to be the leader of a bear pool, denied yesterday any connection with such a pool.

Mr. Livermore's statement, issued from his offices at 730 Fifth Avenue, follows:

"In connection with the various reports which have been industriously spread during the last few days through the newspapers and various brokerage houses to the effect that a large bear pool has been formed; headed by myself and financed by various well-known capitalists, I wish to state that there is no truth whatever in any such rumors as far as I am concerned, and I know of no such combination having been formed by others.

"What little business I do in the stock market has always been as an individual and will continue to be done on such a basis.

"It is very foolish to think that any individual or combination of individuals could artificially bring about a decline in the stock market in a country so large and so prosperous as the United States. What has happened during the last few weeks is an inevitable result of a long period of continuous, rank manipulation of many stock issues to prices many times their actual worth based on real earnings and yield returns. The men who are responsible for bringing about these fictitious prices are the men who are directly responsible for what is happening in the stock market today. It is unfortunate for the general public when such a condition arises that real sound investment issues have to suffer to some extent along with the readjustment of issues of less merit.

"If any one will take the trouble to analyze the selling prices of different stocks, as, for instance, United States Steel, which is selling around eight to ten times its current earnings, many other issues must look, and have looked for a long time, as selling at ridiculously high prices.

"The Federal Reserve Board through its various warnings and many expressions from very high banking authorities could not stop the market from going up, so it must be plain and seem utterly ridiculous for any sane person to presume that one lone individual could have any material effect on the course of the prices of securities."

STOCKS SLUMP AGAIN, BUT RALLY AT CLOSE

quent flashes on the bond ticker printed the latest quotations of active stocks. The financial news bureaus printed at short intervals the latest prices on active stocks.

Organized Support Lacking.

It was expected that after Saturday's wide break in the market some sort of organized support would be attempted when trading reopened yesterday. There was good support, it was true, for many pivotal stocks, and the opening was tame enough. However, it soon became evident that even the best of banking support could not stem the avalanche of selling orders. Pools, too, stepped aside and let their stocks take their natural course, and the market appeared to fluctuate in waves during the day, now strong, now weak, but at all times wild, excited and nervous. The movement of United States Steel common was typical of the movement in many issues. It opened at 212, well above Saturday's last price; then was depressed to 205½, finally rallying to 210½, at which it was up 1½ points on the day.

Many other stocks, particularly those in the blue chip class, did not fare so well, and declines of 5 to 10 points were frequent in a long list of representative issues. Commercial Solvents, for instance, at 520 was down 145 points on 900 shares of stock; Auburn Automobile declined to 335, off 40 points on sales of but 1,300 shares. Generally speaking it was the high-priced issues which bore the brunt of the liquidation, including the public utility, the steel, motor and airplane stocks.

A few stocks were able to end the day higher, reflecting active support in the last few minutes of trading. In addition to Steel common, other stocks able to close the day higher were Western Union, up 11; Timkin, 1; St. Joseph Lead, 3; Pacific Gas, 4; Reading, 1½; American Can, 3⅝; Grigsby Grunow, 5⅛, and Eastman Kodak, 6¼.

Support Expected Today.

That the stock market will get a measure of organized support today appears likely. Bankers expressed the fear that if allowed to go too far the decline might have far-reaching effects on business generally. They hope to see that stocks reach a stable level, comparable with their earnings, and go into a period of inactivity until the present wave of hysteria has passed.

Wall Street worked feverishly last night trying to catch up with its tremendous business and to straighten out the thousands of trades made during the day, as well as to prepare the staffs and the physical equipment for another big trading day. Brokerage houses worked their staffs most of the night cleaning up the loose ends of the tremendous volume of trading.

BOSTON TRADING A RECORD.

Day's Sales of 172,000 Shares Are Heaviest in Two Decades.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 21.—Prices slumped today on the Boston Stock Exchange in a volume of trading reminiscent of the days of the Boston coppers boom, twenty years ago. Total sales were 172,000 shares, more than double the ordinary turnover, and a high record for at least two decades. The investment trust issues, many of which are listed on the local board, bore the brunt of the selling, although nearly every other group was consistently weak.

Continental Shares touched a new low of the year, when it closed at 65, down 5 points for the day.

3,715,400-SHARE DAY BREAKS CURB RECORD

The heavy wave of selling orders produced a record volume of trading on the Curb Exchange yesterday with 3,715,400 shares dealt in, as compared with a previous record of 3,584,700 shares on July 24, 1929. There was apparently much distress selling, with little short covering such as sustained the market on recent days. Losses of 5 to 25 points occurred in many stocks, with utilities and investment trusts again the objects of most pressure.

American Gas and Electric led the declines.

Gains were made by Electric Bond and Share, Electric Investors, Acetol Products A, Consolidated Instrument and a few less active issues.

House Bill Would Provide One-Cent Fee Under Two Ounces.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP).—An amendment to the postal laws to provide a one-cent rate on each newspaper, excepting weeklies and semi-weeklies and periodicals, not exceeding two ounces in weight, was offered today by Representative Simmons, Republican, of Nebraska.

The measure also provided that periodicals weighing more than two ounces carry a flat rate of two cents each.

A BILLION-DOLLAR TESTING LABORATORY FOR YOUR OFFICE!

THE BUSINESS OFFICES of the country—tens of thousands of them—constitute a great billion-dollar "testing laboratory" for the equipment, machines, devices, and methods that are shown at the National Business Show this week. Every product on display has demonstrated its unquestioned value. Otherwise it would not be exhibited.

Walk down the spacious aisles of this great annual Show, visit the booths and see how closely the lessons to be learned from the interesting exhibits apply to your own problems. Is there a payroll that must be reduced? Is there office space to be saved? Should your records show more clearly the transactions of the day, the week or the month? Should costs be better understood? Are lists continually out of date? Is billing always behind hand? Is overtime the rule in your office rather than the exception? Learn from the corps of Efficiency Experts assembled how these and scores of other office ills can be corrected easily, economically.

The National Business Show teaches and proves that there is no excuse for profit-eating inefficiency in the office. How to apply the best methods and equipment to your own business, whatever its size or nature, can be readily determined by an intelligent study of the hundreds of interesting displays. This is the opportunity of the year to set your office right. Don't miss it. Come to the Business Show. Bring your Department Heads.

APPROVED

THERE can be no higher efficiency in a business office, than the use of the tested methods and equipment displayed and demonstrated at the National Business Show. The exhibits are those of America's foremost office equipment manufacturers. The lessons to be learned represent the sum total of contemporary experience in the offices of tens of thousands of successful business firms throughout the country. "Exhibited at the National Business Show," is a real endorsement of any office utility.

URGES RESTRICTING DRY ACTS TO STATES

Louisiana Attorney General Proposes at Memphis Session Repealing Volstead Law.

"ORGY OF LAWMAKING" HIT

President Newlin of Bar Association Advises Special Legislative Sessions to Clear Books.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 21 (AP).—One section of the American Bar Association meeting here today heard an appeal from its president for "some reasonable relief from the harshness of the Eighteenth Amendment," while another heard the president of the general association advocate special legislative sessions to repeal archaic, obsolete and unenforceable laws.

Percy Saint, Attorney General of Louisiana, president of the National Conference of Attorney General, told that body he favored repeal of the Volstead Act, instead of "nullification." He offered as a solution of the prohibition problem "relief from the harshness" of the Volstead act and appropriate State laws to carry the constitutional amendment into effect.

State laws on prohibition should be uniform, Mr. Saint said, "providing a fine or impeachment or both for the first failure or refusal of officers to enforce the law and imprisonment for the second failure."

"The first mistake of prohibitionists and the Anti-Saloon League was to treat the Eighteenth Amendment as a taboo," he said. "It is not fair or accurate to say prohibition is a failure."

Gurney E. Newlin, president of the American Bar Association, before the American Legislators' Association, an organization of lawyer-lawmakers, advocated special sessions of State Legislatures for no other purpose than to reduce the number of statutes.

Would Have Bar Judge Laws.

Asserting that Legislatures recently have been engaged in an "orgy of lawmaking," Mr. Newlin said that Legislatures now were composed of men of many professions and trades, whereas a few years ago most lawmaking bodies were made up largely of lawyers. He said this situation added more responsibility to lawyer-legislators, and urged them to advocate legislation approved by a majority of the bar.

John Grafton Rogers of Boulder, Col., chairman of the conference of association delegates, advocated reorganization of the Bar Association along lines of the American Medical Association. His speech was under discussion by delegates all afternoon and an effort was being made to get his suggestion in shape to be passed on to the executive committee.

The conference of Bar Association delegates voted to wage war on the "ambulance chasing lawyer," using campaigns through local bar associations as the weapon.

Joseph W. Jamaison of St. Louis, chairman of the section on public utility law, told his section that "if public utilities of America, with combined investments totaling $52,000,000,000 and a daily need for $7,000,000 new money, continue to function, neither Congress nor State Legislatures can dictate to them what their percentage of profits can be."

The committee of professional ethics and grievances of the Bar Association, through its chairman, Thomas Francis Howe, expressed the view that "the failure of the leading law schools to make it compulsory for the young student to study ethics with his other class work is regrettable." The committee recommended that the Association of American Law Schools make the question of professional ethics a part of the curriculum.

Says Edward Was Violent in Hatred of Kaiser; Book on Lansdowne Also Scores Roosevelt

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—A heated controversy is likely to be provoked by a criticism of King Edward VII appearing in Lord Newton's biography of Lord Lansdowne, to be published by MacMillan's tomorrow.

Lord Lansdowne was the British Foreign Secretary from 1900 to 1905 and one statement attributed to him reads:

"The King talks and writes about his royal brother [the German Kaiser] in terms which makes one's flesh creep and official papers which go to him, whenever they refer to his Imperial Majesty, come back with all sorts of annotations of the most incendiary character."

Elsewhere Lord Newton makes indignant complaint that "in the case of the Anglo-French agreement the public has been led to believe that it was brought about by the visit of King Edward to Paris in 1903."

It is recalled that a year before his visit to Paris the King warned Germany that an understanding with France probably would be reached and this, as one reviewer writes tonight, was mentioned in the memoirs of the German diplomat, Baron von Eckardstein.

Another reference to King Edward reads:

"He was not of a studious disposition and as he read little his knowledge of complicated international questions can scarcely have been profound. His minutes, for instance, upon Foreign Office correspondence, which have been frequently quoted with much reverence, are not of a very illuminating character."

The most disagreeable revelation in the book, says The Daily Mail's reviewer, concerns the attitude of President Roosevelt to arbitration. This reviewer writes:

"It verged upon deliberate bad faith in the Alaskan boundary dispute with Canada. Roosevelt sent troops to Alaska, it is stated, and 'if the decision of the court had not been favorable to him he intended to use force and had already made the necessary preparations.'"

"It is an ugly story," added the reviewer, "but then, as Lord Newton says, he 'was less Anglophile than was generally believed.'"

In his memoirs, published in 1921, Baron Herman von Eckardstein, who was attached for many years to the German Embassy in London and married an English woman, asserts that Germany lost four opportunities between 1895 and 1901 to conclude an alliance with Great Britain. Baron von Eckardstein blamed the World War upon the former Kaiser and his advisers.

RECALLS ITALIAN ENVOY.

Il Duce Summons Entire Berlin Staff in Code Disappearance.

BERLIN, Oct. 21 (AP).—Premier Mussolini tonight made a clean sweep of the staff of the Italian Embassy here, the result apparently of the mysterious disappearance of a secret diplomatic code from the embassy archives.

Earlier today he had recalled to Rome two of the secretaries and ordered the Ambassador, Count Aldrovani Marescotti, to conduct an immediate investigation. Tonight further orders recalled the Ambassador and also the counselor, while Signor Cicconardi was appointed counselor and placed in charge of affairs.

GOVERNOR URGES BRIDGE.

Will Ask Next Legislature to Act on St. Lawrence Project.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 21 (AP).—The next Legislature, Governor Roosevelt announced today, will be asked by him to create a public bridge commission to confer with authorities of the Province of Ontario, Canada, to study locations for a highway bridge over the St. Lawrence River between this State and that Province.

The bridge, in the Governor's view, should be located at such a point across the St. Lawrence River as may seem to be the most feasible, and the most useful to the largest number of persons on both sides of the border and with the right to issue securities.

The ultimate cost of the structure, he said, "if built by two public authorities, one representing Ontario and the other New York, would be far less than if built by a private company for the very simple reason that the money would be borrowed at 4½ per cent against 7 per cent or 8 per cent by a private company."

The Governor's statement was in reply to recent criticism of Mrs. Rhoda Fox Graves, Republican member of the Assembly, of his his action in vetoing her two bills providing for a bridge, introduced in the last Legislature.

"One of these bills," he said, "provided for a charter to a private company. The other provided for a public authority consisting of, in most cases, the same gentlemen who sought to build the private bridge and locating the bridge at a definite fixed point."

NEW INQUIRY STARTED IN MICHAELSON CASE

Government Seeks More Light on Liquor in Trunk of Chicago Representative's Party.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—A new investigation of the charges that Representative M. Alfred Michaelson of Illinois brought liquor into this country has been undertaken by the Department of Justice.

It was disclosed today that since the acquittal of the dry-voting Chicago Representative at Key West last May on charges of transporting and possessing rum and whiskey found in the Michaelson party's baggage on its return from a cruise to the West Indies, government agents have been checking up on his statement at thetrial that he knew nothing about the liquor.

During the course of this inquiry, a Department of Justice agent retraced the route of the party. Investigations were made at Havana, Cuba, and at Port Au Prince, Haiti, to find the source of the ten gallons of rum and the twelve quarts of whisky found in a trunk which sprang a leak at Jacksonville, Fla.

Attorney General Mitchell declined to divulge whether the result of the new investigation will be placed before a Florida judge. While admitting that an agent had been assigned to investigate the West Indies aspects of the cruise, Mr. Mitchell said no information would be made public before all the evidence has been carefully weighed and a decision reached as to what course should be followed.

Mr. Michaelson, who voted for the Jones law, was acquitted after Walter Gramm, his brother-in-law, had testified that he owned the leaky baggage. Mr. Gramm, a Chicago real dealer, was indicted on a charge of facilitating the transportation and concealment of smuggled liquor. His case probably will be tried in December. It is possible that some of the evidence found in the government's investigation of the tropical journey will be introduced when Gramm is brought to trial.

Grand Jury Exonerates Prime.

William C. Prime, lawyer and formerly deputy safety commissioner for Yonkers, was exonerated yesterday by the Westchester County Grand Jury of a charge of assault made by Mrs. Estelle Van Metter of 135 Warburton Avenue, Yonkers. The assault charge grew from a street incident in Yonkers last Summer when Mrs. Van Metter charged that Mr. Prime struck her for bumping him with a baby carriage. He also ridiculed her, she said, for being without stockings.

MRS. VANDERLIP FOR MOORE

Calls Meeting to Aid Westchester Jurist Seeking Re-election.

Special to The New York Times.

SCARBOROUGH, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip has invited a number of persons prominent in the social, financial and political circles of Westchester County to attend a meeting at her home here tomorrow in behalf of the candidacy of Judge Benjamin Moore, Democratic incumbent of the Children's Court bench. Mrs. Vanderlip, herself an enrolled Republican, recently helped organize a bi-partisan committee for Judge Moore, the membership of which includes a number of Republicans.

Judge Moore will speak at the meeting, as will Mrs. Vanderlip and Aaron Sapiro, who, in 1927, sued Henry Ford for $1,000,000. Mr. Sapiro is now a resident of Scarsdale. Judge Moore is opposed by Supervisor George Smyth, Republican, of Yonkers. Much opposition has been manifested against Smyth because of his membership in the budget committee of the Board of Supervisors which sanctioned the White Plains land deal investigated by Samuel Untermyer.

If you think you can't afford an automatic refrigerator, read these facts

YOU can operate Electrolux a month on what you probably pay for ice in a week. A few pennies a day, never more than 70¢ a week even for the largest model, that's all it costs to run this automatic refrigerator.

No other piece of equipment in your home will save you so much money, and go on saving it every day you live. If you had to borrow the cash to buy Electrolux and pay interest on it, you'd still come out ahead on what this marvelous refrigerator saves you.

Liberal purchase terms

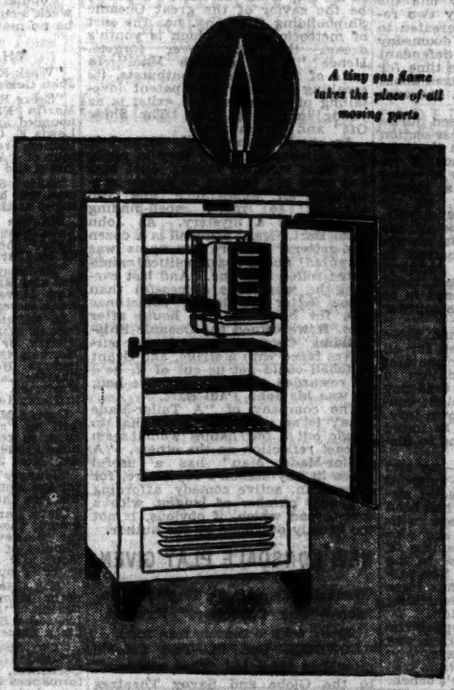
But you won't have to borrow. Purchase terms are so liberal that almost any home with a steady income can own an Electrolux. Prices range from $210 to $430 installed—about the same size for size as other automatic refrigerators.

And not only is Electrolux the world's most economical refrigeration system, but also the simplest, safest and most dependable.

Electrolux is absolutely silent, not merely quiet. There is no noise at all as long as you have it. And you should have it indefinitely, for there are no moving parts, no machinery, and hence no friction, no vibration or wear.

A tiny gas flame and a slight trickle of water do all the work. They circulate the refrigerant that makes the cold. No power is needed to turn machinery, because there is no machinery. That is why the operating cost can be so unbelievably low. The cost of the gas and water used is very small compared to the cost of power required to turn machinery.

The refrigerant is hermetically sealed for life inside a solid one-piece steel unit. It never needs renewal. Even the gas flame is safeguarded by an automatic shut-off. Should the flame, by any chance, go out, the gas shuts off. And it stays off until you turn it on again.



A tiny gas flame takes the place of all moving parts

The Hostess Model Electrolux, a roomy refrigerator for average size families, $245 installed. Five cubic feet of food space; makes 45 large ice cubes.

QUICK FACTS!
1. Permanently noiseless.
2. Absolutely safe.
3. Only a few cents a day to operate.
4. Lasts indefinitely.
5. No mechanism to w ar, to vibrate, to need oil.
6. Free from trouble.
7. Perpetual, steady cold.
8. Plenty of pure ice cubes.
9. Tested and endorsed by national authorities.

Constant, steady cold

The cold in Electrolux is constant. There is no stopping and starting. The temperature never varies more than a degree or two from the ideal point. Ice cubes freeze in a jiffy; and as for frozen desserts, chilled salads, ices, jellies, you can make all you want of them.

At the display room of your gas company or other Electrolux distributor, you will see a wide range of sizes and models on view. Or if you wish complete illustrated information by mail, write Servel Sales, Inc., 51 East 42d Street, New York, N. Y.

THE PLAY

By J. BROOKS ATKINSON.

Why Girls Leave Home.

MAGGIE, THE MAGNIFICENT, a play in three acts, by George Kelly. Staged by Mr. Kelly; settings by Livingston Platt; produced by Laurence Rivers, Inc. At the Cort Theatre.

Mr. Kelly writes about the pinch-penny woes of average people with so much fidelity and impersonality that the result can be surprisingly dull. In his first play for two seasons, "Maggie, the Magnificent," which was acted at the Cort last evening, he holds relentlessly to the factual truth of his scene. For three acts the shabby disorders of a family boarding house, the jealousies, the tempers, the duplicities and the cheapnesses, flow in an even current across the stage; the immortally mediocre stand fully illumined. As a playwright and as a director Mr. Kelly has worked with a skill that his colleagues may well envy, occasionally making the points of his story with superb adroitness, and never, for that matter, sounding a false key or smudging a line. But the play lacks contour. Holding relentlessly to his theme, he has kept himself out. It is realism carried to its logical and impotent conclusion. And "Maggie, the Magnificent," is the paradox of a perfectly written play that is dull.

Of all the Reed tribe, Margaret is the only swan. Her mother, her aunt, her brother and her sister-in-law are aggressively common. In her grace and sensitiveness she takes after her father, who is dead. The conflict in Mr. Kelly's monotone is between commonness and refinement. When the commonness pushes too far, when, in fact, Mrs. Reed slaps Margaret's face in a fit of temper, Margaret moves out, goes to the wealthy people for whom she is working and concludes the drama—or this portion of an endless drama—from the steps of a grand living room. Somehow she has managed to set her mother's squalid house in order and to have saved the best part of herself at the same time.

Although you miss the exhilaration that should come from a work completely fulfilled, you cannot help admiring Mr. Kelly's craftsmanship. All that you need to know about these people, their past, their present off the stage as well as on, he manages to communicate in accurate terms of character. In three episodes in the last act the restraint with which he writes is far more magnificent than the title of the play. Margaret's acceptance of a proposal of marriage, her reunion with her mother after the quarrel, and the casual incident by which she concludes the play are vibrant with an emotion that is never exploited. If Mr. Kelly had offered these scenes as pure exhibition, to show how completely he could master them, he could not have done better. His craftsmanship is beyond reproach.

But at best that is a technical achievement. As a guileless theatregoer you cannot escape the broader fact that what the play accomplishes is insignificant in view of the time it consumes in the theatre. You see the regeneration of Maggie Reed. From the stormy shrew of the first act she becomes the humble, helpless mother of the conclusion. Without resorting to lurid effects Mr. Kelly has managed to subject her to a trial by fire, and to bring out traits of her character never seen in her before. But none of the others grow perceptibly; even the daughter, who manipulates most of the story, remains at the end the patient, sensitive, remote girl we recognized when she made her first appearance. Mr. Kelly's drama is never a work of real moment. It is not so much restrained as constricted. It is desolate and bleak.

Your admiration need not be confined to the writing of the play, for Mr. Kelly is his own director and he has assembled a cast that plays with his own fidelity. There are the ineffectual but kindly boarder played by Mary Frey, the modest suitor played by Frank Rowan, the scapegrace son played with clarity and spirit by James Cagny, and the gum-chewing, posing, brazen jade played by Joan Blandell—inclining toward caricature, but highly amusing in a drama that needs tangible vitality.

As the mother, Marion S. Barney gives a splendid performance in several contrasting tones. And the unassertive daughter, acted by Shirley Warde, is another of those brilliant performances that have been turning up here and there all season. It is deeply bitten acting, accurate and economical in every stroke, and perfectly related to the entire performance.

It seems incredible that so finely wrought a drama can be so dull.

ATWILL IN A NEW ROLE.

Acts a Deposed Member of Royalty in "Stripped," by Jane Murfin.

STRIPPED, a play in three acts, by Jane Murfin. Staged by Lionel Atwill; settings by Rollo Wayne; produced by the Shuberts. At the Ambassador Theatre.

Austin Goodwin.....Vernon Kelso
M'sieur. Lazov.....Lionel Atwill
Henry Ryder.....Charles Millward

M'sieur. Orlando.....Mario Majeroni
Mrs. Pringle.....Christine Compton

The play called "Stripped," which came to the Ambassador last night, serves—and by none too ample a margin—to bring Lionel Atwill back to the dramatic field after an experience in the golden folds of Mr. Carroll's "Fioretta." It is a somewhat confused and elaborately unimportant play by Jane Murfin, a dramatist who once wrote a couple of plays with—or maybe it was "by"—Jane Cowl.

"Stripped," at all events, is the second play of recent weeks to have for its hero a deposed member of a royal family. In Miss Murfin's play, to be sure, he turns out at the finish to have been merely the Pretender, but to all intents and purposes the play is an exploit of ex-royalty. This time it takes place in America, with the royal jewels as the play's motivating force. Their disappearance, the paste imitations, hollow doorknobs—most of the usual appurtenances of the detective play are utilized.

A prince of the blood royal, of course, is a romantic figure, particularly when transplanted to America and set down in our humdrum world. But Miss Murfin has in the main subordinated the romantic values that lay at her hand in favor of the mechanical manipulations of her robbery plot—a plot which becomes so complicated, as the evening wears on, that the auditor must give it the most absorbed concentration to understand it. Along about the middle of the second act it dawns on even the most dense—it was at exactly that point that it burst on this reviewer—that maybe it isn't worth it.

Mr. Atwill plays the Pretender as though the play and the rôle were a good deal more consequential than they are, savoring his lines with a relish worthy of Shaw at his best. But it is not his fault, of course, that the lines are no better than they are. Jessie Royce Landis brings a cool beauty and a pleasing performance to the rôle of the heroine.

'LADIES OF THE JURY' IS HILARIOUSLY FUNNY

Mrs. Fiske Brilliant in Fred Ballard's New Comedy That Concerns Jury Room Happenings.

LADIES OF THE JURY, a comedy in three acts, by Fred Ballard. Staged by Harrison Grey Fiske; settings by Gates and Morange; produced by A. L. Erlanger and George C. Tyler. At Erlanger's Theatre.

If Mrs. Fiske did not dominate "Ladies of the Jury," which came last night to Erlanger's, you might be more conscious than you are likely to be of its transparently broad humors and its unabashed employment of that quality best and most succinctly described as hokum. But with this particular First Actress in charge Mr. Ballard's new comedy becomes a good-natured piece of fooling, which last night's audience found hilariously funny.

It is, as its title indicates, concerned for the most part with what happens in a jury room, a fantastic place wherein half of those assembled to determine the guilt or innocence of a woman charged with murder are members of the most recently enfranchised sex. As the facts are meagerly set forth in the first act, you as well as some of the jurors are not certain which way to vote, do not know whether the young French actress actually shot the New Jersey millionaire to whom she was wed. Nor are the events in the jury room a carefully considered endeavor to serve the ends of abstract justice. Rather they are the farcical attempts of the only juror who holds out from the first for acquittal (Mrs. Fiske, of course) to swing the other eleven over to her side.

It is an up-hill battle, and in waging it her weapons are diplomacy, flattery, cajolery, trickery and a mild form of bribery. One by one the jurors capitulate until only two remain adamant—two who threaten to deadlock the jury until doomsday rather than declare the defendant not guilty. Then comes the time for decisive action, which arrives about the middle of the final act, and with it victory is assured.

The jury is, as well-chosen juries are supposed to be, a cross-section of the community in which the trial is taking place. Its personnel includes a spinsterly reformer, a young Greek candy merchant, a Scotch gardener, a flinty grocer, an ex-chorus girl, a clinging young wife, an incipient poet and, above all, the star, who, although she is always Mrs. Fiske, here devotes herself to impersonating one of the country-side's gentle-folk who, being a friend of the judge, has just dropped in to lend a helping hand in this murder business.

And despite the fact that these types are written and played for all the less subtle humors they contain, they have a certain foundation in actuality. With a little less tendency to comic caricature they might conceivably represent a small-town jury. In that circumstance is to be found one of the play's few claims to distinction.

Mrs. Fiske's performance—gay and bubbling and mannered—suggests that she is having a perfectly elegant time in the romp that has been provided for her. She plays with great spirit and zest, but she also brings out shadings and nuances of character not to be discerned in the general run of the comedy. The première, as her recent openings have had a habit of being, was something of a continuous Fiske ovation.

Another who last night stopped the show as soon as it had started was the returning Wilton Lackaye, who at the rise of the first curtain was observed sitting on the judge's bench. His activities are confined to the first act, but his dryly ironical efforts to repress the outbreaks of the irrepressible star are among the brighter moments of the evening. The other performers serve well Mr. Ballard's needs; among them George Farren, Vincent James and George Tawde are deserving of mention.

Ilse Marvenga Makes Hit in Snappy Revival of Herbert Operetta.

Victor Herbert's nineteen-year-old comic opera, "Naughty Marietta," with old New Orleans for background and the King's casket girls, the pirates of Barataria and the Quadroon Ball for color, had a happy and snappy revival last night as the third of the Herbert series at Jolson's theatre. The music is still honest Herbert music, charged with heart and gayety even without Victor Herbert himself to conduct it, as he did on that original first night back in Novemebr, 1910. It was played with spirit—even enthusiasm—and the behavior of the big houseful of people indicated a responsive mood.

Roy Cropper as the tenor, Captain Dick Warrington of Kentucky and the Rangers, was not, of course, Orville Harrold. But he has a manly figure and a voice well above the average level of latter-day comic opera tenors. That old Gilbertian, Herbert Watrous, was well suited as the pompous Lieutenant Governor, and Eulalie Young, who in appearance suggests a comic edition of Maude Adams, romped off in an easy canter with the funny woman's part of the unwanted casket girl.

The best thing in the show—outside of the music, which is Herbert very nearly at his best—was Ilse Marvenga, the same who attracted favorable attention in "The Student Prince." She gave the runaway Italian Countess of Rida Johnson Young's book all the sparkle and dash and impertinent charm the part calls for, both in voice and action, and a very jolly little figure into the bargain.

'ABRAHAM LINCOLN' REVIVED BY OLD CAST

John Drinkwater's Play at the Forrest Is Again Headed by Frank McGlynn in Title Role.

At the Forrest Theatre last night the veterans of John Drinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln," who presented it ten years ago at the Cort, successfully recaptured the earlier mood. The producer is again William Harris Jr. Frank McGlynn heads the cast.

With a clarity born of detachment, Mr. Drinkwater wrote six scenes of character and passion which march this age back into the enthralling presence of another one. Those scenes, which open with the prophetic hour in a Springfield parlor when Lincoln received notice of his nomination and close on the tragic night in Ford's Theatre, do not pretend to biography or even to a complete character portrayal. What they accomplish is a suggestion of spiritual values.

Mr. Drinkwater's method, applied with splendid control and a poetic clarity, is that of the chronicle play. Largely it is of Lincoln bowed under the weight of the Civil War; of his tilts with Seward, of his struggle to effect the Emancipation Proclamation, of his anguish in the face of overpowering discouragement. Altogether it is an austere study aimed at understanding rather than color, for the English author has avoided the American idiom and the colloquialisms that would have tricked him.

The excellent cast which shared with Mr. McGlynn in last night's ovation included Gerald Cornell as Seward, Alfred Moore as Gideon Wells and Albert Phillips as General Grant.

REVIVAL FULL OF LAUGHS.

Grant Mitchell and Fine Company Please in "A Tailor-Made Man."

That comedy of honorable lineage, "A Tailor-Made Man," by Harry James Smith, opened in revival yesterday evening at the Gallo Theatre, with the part of John Paul Bart, the man who has been tailor-made, in the capable hands of Grant Mitchell. This ingenious rigmarole, since its first appearance on Broadway more than a decade ago, has been seen in one part of the country or another more than once—sufficient evidence that the piece is likable, whatever its exact age.

Nor should it surprise that the play appears so little to belong to an earlier period, for the idea about which the comedy revolves is perennial. Destiny is a word older than Napoleon. And Mr. Smith's hero, as the man of destiny who is to "do the things that Napoleon left undone," in his leap from the tailor's bench to be the savior of the great Oceanic Shipbuilding Company, has the sort of meteoric career which is youth's dream that age never forgets. Hence "A Tailor-Made Man," in spite of its bombastic outbursts, its creaking machinery, its patent dovetailing of entrances and exits, is as young in idea as was "The Show Off" and as amusing.

An excellent cast lends support to Mr. Mitchell, but the play is really his from start to finish. Just how one man can sustain so nearly continuous an appearance and roll through so many spell-binding speeches is a mystery. As John Paul Bart, Grant Mitchell is a dozen "go-getters" (before the name was invented) and a dozen political candidates rolled into one. And last evening he was more successful than these latter gentlemen sometimes are, for he pulled his house after him. If we owned the Oceanic Shipbuilding Company and found ourselves faced with a strike, and Grant Mitchell could get us out of it, he'd be rewarded with anything we had, as was his John Paul Bart.

The company of "A Tailor-Made Man" is so uniformly good that to single out a few names would seem to cast reflection on the others. "A Tailor-Made Man" has a useful place in any season's répertoire, for it is clean, active comedy, affording a goodly number of laughs, with a love-thread which, if obvious, is not too greatly overdone by the author.

NEW LONSDALE PLAY GIVEN.

"Canaries Sometimes Sing" in London—"The Gondoliers" Revived.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Two notable premières attracted "first nighters" to the Globe and Savoy Theatres here tonight. Frederick Lonsdale found four characters sufficient to fill both his new comedy, "Canaries Sometimes Sing," and the Globe Theatre.

In the newly constructed Savoy "The Gondoliers," by Gilbert and Sullivan, was revived almost exactly forty years after its production at the old Savoy.

Lonsdale features Geoffrey Lymes, a playwright and a lovable cad, and his wife, Anne Lymes, a preposterous woman who hunts social and artistic lions and uses baby talk to her husband and her furniture indiscriminately. The rectangle is completed by Earnest and Elma Melton, the one a pompous aristocrat and the other a former chorus girl.

"Why don't you sing?" Geoffrey asks Earnest, the "Canary," "is it because you have no mate? You don't know how well off you are."

Old Savoyards remembered that "The Gondoliers" was the last work of the famous partnership before the disastrous split over D'Oyly Carte's expenditure of $22,000. The sum would not have gone far toward providing the georgeous display this evening on which Charles Ricketts spent a fortune in carpets alone.

Lady Gilbert and Miss Jessie Bond, the latter one of the most famous members of the original "Gondoliers" company, watched the performance.

Piano Recital by Oscar Ziegler.

Oscar Ziegler, Swiss-American pianist, gave his first New York recital of this season at Carnegie Hall last evening. The artist limited his program to Beethoven, Mozart, Chopin, Bach and Liszt. He confirmed the impression previously made in this city that he is well acquainted with the literature of his instrument, and possesses originality. An interesting personality is reflected in his playing. His interpretation of Chopin's "Polonaise in A flat" and of Beethoven's Sonata in F Minor, Op. 57, gave him opportunity to display his ability to sing melodies and demonstrate his strong feeling for rhythm. A large audience applauded Mr. Ziegler vociferously.

"Harlem" Returns to the Eltinge.

"Harlem," a play by William Jourdan Rapp and Wallace Thurman, which ran at the Apollo and Times Square Theatres last season, began a return engagement at the Eltinge Theatre last night. A cast of sixty persons, all but one of whom are negroes, is headed by Ernest R. Whitman, Cornellius Roddy, Austin Burleigh, Clarence Taylor, Ivy Neely, Edna Wise Barr, Elizabeth Williams and Alma Smiths.

CHRISTOPHER HAYES HEARD

Well Arranged Program Given by the Tenor at Steinway Hall.

Christopher Hayes, tenor, presented an unusually interesting and well arranged program at Steinway Hall last evening. There were compositions by classic and modern writers in German, French, Italian, English and Spanish. The soloist interpreted the various schools pleasingly, and displayed a high degree of versatility in his excellent diction in the different languages, such as Richard Wagner's "Mignonne," composed in Paris in 1840, and Schubert's "Adelaide." His rendering of Beethoven's "Ich liebe dich" was especially enjoyed by the cordial audience which filled the intimate hall. Songs by Duparc, Lenormand, Fauré, Oteo, De Falla, Murdock and Bridge afforded the tenor further opportunity to display his gifts. A slight tendency to flat in the upper register and in pianissimo passages occasionally marred the performance. Betty Schuleen was as the piano.

PRAISED BY MRS. HOOVER.

"Cradle Song" at Civic Theatre Delighted President's Wife.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, who attended a performance of "The Cradle Song" at the Civic Repertory Theatre during her recent visit in New York, praised the production in a letter received yesterday by Eva Le Gallienne, director of the theatre. Mrs. Hoover wrote:

"It was well acted, well set, well focused and well harmonized. The impression that will remain at the end is of a beautifully perfect whole, with no outstanding flaws in beauty to overshadow the rest. And that is the best thing after all in drama, or music, or painting—is it not? A complete illusion—not one frayed around the edges."

According to the Civic Repertory Theatre's records, Mrs. Hoover is the first resident of the White House to have attended the playhouse, formerly the Fourteenth Street Theatre, since the days of President Grant.

TO GIVE "WINTER BOUND."

Provincetown Playhouse Will Present It on Nov. 7 at the Garrick.

"Winter Bound," a play by Thomas H. Dickinson, which will be the second production of the Provincetown Playhouse at the Garrick Theatre, will open on Thursday, Nov. 7. Before that date the Garrick will house for a week, beginning Sunday night, Gluck's opera "Orpheus," which Macklin Marrow produced at the Provincetown in the Spring of 1926 and was later done at the Mayfair Theatre by the Intimate Opera Company. Richard Hale will again sing the title rôle.

Popular prices will prevail for the week's run of "Orpheus." There will be no matinees.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Week End" will open tonight at the John Golden Theatre.

"Cross Roads" is now the title of the Martin Flavin play, previously announced as "Grist to the Mill," which Lewis E. Gensler is producing. Sylvia Sidney, recently seen in the tryout tour of "An Old Fashioned Girl," has joined the cast.

"Bitter Sweet," Noel Coward's operetta, will have its first performance tonight at the Tremont Theatre, Boston.

Blanche Ring and Dudley Clements have been added to "Strike Up the Band," the cast of which will be headed by Clark and McCullough.

"Berkeley Square," with Leslie Howard and Margalo Gillmore, will open in New Haven on Friday night of this week instead of Thursday.

In addition to Robert Warwick, the cast of William Hurlbut's play "Venus Victrix, or a Primer of Love," which Herman Gantvoort is producing, will include Rose Hobart, Gavin Muir, Charles Laite, Helen Joy and Dorothy Mortimer. The play will be presented in Hempstead on Nov. 8.

George M. Cohan and Sam H. Harris will be "reunited" as partners in a surprise act for the Friars' Silver Jubilee Frolic, which will be held on Sunday, Nov. 24, at the Majestic Theatre.

"Journey's End" will play a matinee for the Actors' Fund at Henry Miller's Theatre this afternoon.

Clara Langaner and Rose Keane are among those who have been engaged for the new Samson Raphaelson play "Boolie of Broadway," in which Lou Holtz will be featured. The play will probably open here on Nov. 11.

"Mlle. Modiste" was transferred last night from Jolson's Theatre to the Casino. "Among the Married" went from the Bijou Theatre to the Forty-ninth Street.

"The Jealous Old Man" and "The Pretended Basque," two farces by Cervantes, will be given twelve performances by students of the American Laboratory Theatre, 22d East Fifty-fourth Street, starting Wednesday evening, Nov. 6. The productions will mark the association with the school of its new director, Maria Germanova.

CONCERT NOTICES KEPT FROM VIOLIN PRODIGY, 9

Ruggiero Ricci Says He Was Not Afraid at Debut—Has Kiddie Car and Likes the Movies.

Ruggiero Ricci, the 9-year-old violinist whose appearance with the Manhattan Symphony Orchestra on Sunday night in Mecca Temple revealed him as the latest youthful musical prodigy, spent yesterday at his home serenely unconscious of the furore he had created. He is an omniverous reader, but all newspapers containing reviews of his concerts are carefully kept from him by his teacher and guardian, Miss Beth Lackey of 126 West 227th Street. Only the presence of press photographers and reporters differentiated the day from any other. Ruggiero posed for the cameramen without self-consciousness and answered the questions of the reporters cheerfully and straightforwardly.

Asked if he had been nervous at his début last Sunday night he was puzzled. "If you mean was I afraid, of course not," was his answer. "What was there to be afraid of? It was like having a birthday."

Young Ruggiero likes the movies. Beethoven is his favorite composer. He prefers lemon pie and strawberries to most other dishes, although he retains a fondness for spaghetti and ravioli from earlier days at San Francisco with his Italian parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Pietro Ricci, the parents, now live in San Bruno, Cal. The father is a welder in a foundry in San Francisco, although he was once an instructor in music in the public schools of San Mateo and Santa Clara. There are several other children, all of whom are talented musicians. They are Giorgio, 7 years old, now living with Ruggiero and Miss Lackey in New York and studying the violin; Emma, 4, who specializes in the drums and cymbals in the little family orchestra of the Riccis; Virginia, 2, who carries a tune with accuracy as to pitch; Lorraine, 10, who plays the cornet, and Ross, 13, who is studying the piano.

The musical education of Ruggiero and Giorgio has been made possible through the financial aid given by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Bartlett of Chicago. They heard Ruggiero play three years ago when he first attracted the notice of Louis Persinger, who, with the assistance of Miss Lackey, has taught him ever since.

Ruggiero worships Yehudi Menuhin, another boy prodigy, his senior by four years. On the phonograph in the studio yesterday were several of Yehudi's records, together with many others by Heifetz, Kreisler and other famous violinists. A gayly painted kiddie car leaned against the piano, on the rack of which was the score of a Paganini concerto.

The two boys have been studying the three R's of the grade schools with a private tutor. Ruggiero is to make one more local appearance, a recital in Carnegie Hall on the evening of Nov. 29.

Headaches, for example. They come without warning, but one can always be prepared. Bayer Aspirin tablets bring immediate relief. Keep a bottle at the office. Carry the small tin in your pocket. Then you won't have to hunt a drugstore, or wait till you get home.

And don't think Bayer Aspirin is only good for headaches, sore throats, and colds! Read the proven directions for relieving neuralgic, neuritic, rheumatic, and other aches and pains. Remembering, of course, that the quick comfort from these tablets is not a cure; for any continued pain, see a doctor.

Bayer Aspirin is genuine. Protect yourself by looking for that name. Always the same. Always safe. Never hurts the heart.

EQUITY TO DISCUSS SUNDAY SHOWS AGAIN

The question of Sunday night performances in legitimate theatres will again be considered by the Actors' Equity Association at a special meeting on Monday afternoon, Nov. 18, at the Hotel Astor.

Sunday night shows, to which Equity in the past has been opposed, were considered at the association's annual meeting last year as the result of the advocacy of William A. Brady, who is both producer and Equity member. A committee consisting of Reginald Barlow, George Rosener and Clarke Silvernail was appointed to make an investigation. Their report arrived too late to be acted upon at last May's annual Equity meeting. It was then decided to call a special meeting to take up the Sunday night problem "at the earliest possible moment." Equity's campaign to organize talking pictures subsequently delayed such an assemblage.

A clause in Equity's basic agreement with the Managers' Protective Association prohibits members of the union from appearing in Sunday performances in cities where they are not sanctioned by custom. Among many managers and actors the opinion prevails that the lack of Sunday night performances on Broadway is one of the reasons the theatre is losing ground to such competitors as the talking pictures. Should Equity go on record as favoring Sunday legitimate shows, managers undoubtedly will cooperate with it in an effort to have such performances made legal here.

Hopper, Master of Ceremonies.

De Wolf Hopper will act as master of ceremonies at the eleventh Equity annual ball, to be held at the Hotel Astor on Nov. 9. It was announced yesterday by Margaret Smith, general manager. The entertainers in the "Midnight Jollies" will be announced later.

Follow the Trail of Opportunity to SAN ANTONIO

Valiantly they held their way more than 200 years ago . . . Spanish adventurers exploring a wilderness for the glory of a king and in the hope of golden fortune for themselves . . . until they came at last to the verdant valley of San Antonio. And here they rested, content.

Gone now are those intrepid explorers. Venerable with age are the missions the padres built. But thriving cities and towns replace the rude settlements they founded. Still remains the pleasant land they left, where Indian summer lasts the winter through.

Explore anew in South and West Texas an empire greater in area than Ohio, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Delaware and Connecticut combined, where an energetic people are creating wealth far beyond the avaricious dreams of the Spaniards who first discovered it. You will have an enjoyable vacation in a land of perpetual spring and see, on the last of the nation's great frontiers, countless opportunities for yourself.

Come south this winter to sunny San Antonio—metropolis of an empire. Follow the Trail of Opportunity over rugged hills and down peaceful valleys, from tableland to smiling gulf, through miles of winter gardens and citrus groves.

Relax and rest in the warm sunlight . . . breathe deep the dry, invigorating air. Ride . . . hunt . . . fish . . . golf . . . motor over matchless highways . . . enjoy your favorite recreation, whatever it may be. In and out of doors you will find endless variety of things to do. Hotels and apartments offer satisfying accommodations at moderate cost. And the hospitality of San Antonio to the stranger within her gates has been proverbial for more than two centuries!

More than 2,500,000 Americans have already followed the Trail of Opportunity to health, happiness and prosperity in San Antonio and its adjacent territory.

AMERICANS DOMINATE BERLIN CONCERT STAGE

Reason Given Is They Must Either Sail for Home Soon or Start on European Tours.

BERLIN, Oct. 21 (AP).—American artists practically dominate the Berlin concert stage at the beginning of the Fall season. This is because most of them must either return to America by the beginning of November to fulfill engagements or start on all-European tours.

One is Richard C. Crooks, New York tenor, who must fill twenty-two European engagements within forty-four days.

Paul Althouse, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, has engagements in Prague, Budapest, Karlsruhe, Berlin, Oslo, Warsaw, Vienna and other cities.

Nevada Van Der Veer, New York contralto, made her Berlin debut in a song recital of old masters. Another débutante as far as Germany is concerned is Mrs. Frances Hall of New York, who appeared in a piano recital of compositions by Mozart, Brahms and Chopin.

Pavel Ludikar, basso of the Metropolitan Opera, earned much praise from the critics. Rarely heard songs of his native Czechoslovakia were especially appreciated.

Clyde Burrows, former Pittsburgh baseball pitcher, gave a program, including songs in Bosnian, Ukrainian and Esperanto, besides old English ballads.

Jane Kerley of New York sang all her songs in special costumes illustrative of the nationality and period of the compositions and scored a popular success.

OFFERS NEW PLAYWRIGHT.

Sir Barry Jackson Presents Work by Engine-Fitter, 30.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Sir Barry Jackson has found a new playwright who may develop into an English Sean O'Casey. He is a 30-year-old engine-fitter named John Davidson. He worked as usual today in the Mexborough locomotive sheds although on Saturday night he had been summoned to the stage of the Birmingham Repertory Theatre to receive the enthusiastic congratulations of the audience at the presentation of his play, "Shadows of Strife."

The play deals with reactions to the general strike in a miner's household in the 1926 coal stoppage.

He has a wife and three children whom he supports on his salary of $15 a week. It is expected that the play will be produced in London.

Sir Barry, founder and head of the Birmingham Repertory Theatre, has been called "the boldest producer in England." In 1925 he achieved a success in London with his "Hamlet" in modern dress.

He was in charge of the recent Malvern Festival at which G. B. Shaw's "The Apple Cart" received its world premiere in English. The play had previously been presented in Polish at Warsaw.

BEETHOVEN GROUP RECITAL.

Nina Koshetz Appears With Guest Artists at Town Hall.

The Beethoven Association gave the opening concert of its eleventh season last night in Town Hall before the capacity audience which usually greets the artists appearing under the auspices of this distinguished organization. Last night there included Nina Koshetz, the Russian soprano; Ernest Hutcheson, pianist; Louis Persinger, violinist, and Felix Salmond, 'cellist.

Mme. Koshetz, a gifted singer who has done much to familiarize the musical public with the national songs not only of her native Russia but of many other lands, contributed seven Spanish popular songs by Manuel de Falla and two Spanish melodies of the eighteenth century, freely arranged and edited by Joaquin Nin. She brought to their interpretation all the resources of a mature art, and won the enthusiastic applause of her audience.

The three instrumentalists collaborated in finely balanced and technically finished performance of Schumann's Trio in D minor, Op. 63, for piano, violin and 'cello, and Brahms's Trio in B major, Op. 8.

THEATRE GUILD'S NEW PLAY

"Elizabeth and Essex" Is the Work of Maxwell Anderson.

The Theatre Guild announces the acquisition of a new play by Maxwell Anderson, tentatively called "Elizabeth and Essex." Although it concerns the English Queen and the Earl of Essex, Guild representatives said yesterday that the play was in no way an adaptation of the Lytton Strachey book published last Fall.

Mr. Anderson was last represented in the New York theatre by "Gypsy." He is also the author of "Saturday's Children" and co-author of "What Price Glory."

Fred Keating in 'Nine Fifteen Revue'

Fred Keating, a magician, who scored a hit in "Murray Anderson's Almanac," has been engaged for Ruth Selwyn's forthcoming musical show, "The Nine Fifteen Revue." As already announced, Ruth Etting will be seen in the cast. "The Nine Fifteen Revue" is scheduled to open on Broadway late next month.

SENATORS AND LEADERS.

President HOOVER has selected Senator REED, Republican, and Senator ROBINSON, Democrat, as delegates to the Naval Conference in London. Time was when objection would have been made to having a Senator take part in framing a treaty which he would afterward have to vote either to ratify or to reject. It used to be said that this would be a grave impairment of the judicial impartiality of a Senator. But practice long since disposed of this scruple. Senators have been appointed by several Presidents to take part in international conferences or arbitrations. President HARDING named the two party leaders of the Senate as delegates to the Washington Conference of 1921. Thus fortified by precedent, President HOOVER'S course in sending two Senators to London will probably provoke not even a ripple of objection.

There is, to be sure, a little wondering why he passed over Senator WATSON, the Republican leader of the Senate. A semiofficial explanation is given. It is that the Indiana Senator could not well be spared from his duties as party leader during the regular session of this Congress. His ability and success have been so great, his fighting quality so outstanding, his consistency so unvaried, his support of the President so intelligent and effective, that Mr. HOOVER, it is gravely said, does not feel that he could let him be away, even at London. Apparently this implied and affecting tribute to his unsuspected powers so greatly moved Senator WATSON that he came out with a long statement about the importance of getting the tariff enacted at an early date. As a private discovery of his own, he announced that the delay is affecting industry seriously and causing losses as well as apprehension. Passing, at one step, to the height of financial authority, Senator WATSON solemnly declared that the break in the stock market showed how the failure of the Senate to hasten the passage of the tariff bill has "disturbed" the business world. On that point he and Professor FISHER ought to compare notes.

The subject of Senator WATSON'S leadership is too painful to make jokes about. But we fear that in Washington as well as in Wall Street his views will be received with unseemly hilarity.

BOROUGH PRESIDENT MILLER.

So far the campaign has revolved around the three candidates to be elected from the city at large—Mayor, Controller and President of the Board of Aldermen. With the exception of rivalry over the post of District Attorney in Manhattan, Borough President in Queens and the Justice of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn, the other contests have stirred little interest. Perhaps that is the reason for the announcement that Oct. 31 is to be celebrated in Manhattan as "Miller Day," in honor of the Borough President, nominated by the Democrats to succeed himself. Men and women who have followed the course of borough affairs, and particularly the development of the public improvement program for the relief of traffic in Manhattan and the embellishment of its waterfront, will scarcely hesitate to admit Mr. MILLER'S qualifications. His record is written where he that runs—or walks or rides—may read; in the widening of Park Avenue and Allen Street, in the viaducts around Grand Central and along Riverside Drive, in the removal of the elevated spurs from Sixth Avenue and from Forty-second Street, in the projected West Side Motor Highway and the East River Drive.

His rival is CLARENCE H. FAY, Deputy Fire Commissioner under ROBERT ADAMSON in the Mitchel Administration and for some years Commissioner of Public Works in the Borough President's office under HENRY CURRAN. When the Republicans chose him to make the fight they nominated a man well fitted for the office, who under other circumstances might make a strong bid for the support of Manhattan voters. But he can hardly be expected to make much headway against JULIUS MILLER. The American political system has often been attacked on the ground that it discourages continuity: a man is not in office long enough to mature and carry out his plans. Now and then an administration, or an individual officeholder, shows such commendable zeal in the public service as to merit the opportunity to carry on. Mr. MILLER has been President of the borough for eight years, and is likely to hold that office for at least four years more. Long ago the city came to know him not alone as a man of vision, but as one who has the knack of getting things done.

THE CONSUMERS' COUNSEL.

After five hours of debate the Senate adopted by a vote of 68 to 11 an amendment to the tariff bill creating "in the legislative branch "of the government the office of "the Consumers' Counsel of the "Tariff Commission of the United "States." The President is to be allowed to appoint him, subject to the advice and consent of the Senate. The proposed salary, at first $12,000, was reduced to $10,000. Great as are the hopes reposed in him, it was felt that the Consumers' Counsel shouldn't get more than a Senator. He is to appear "in the interest of the consuming public" in any proceeding before the commission. He is to be a sort of lone Tariff Commissioner on his own hook. He may investigate independently any tariff matter when he deems such investigation necessary to enable him to represent his mysterious clients satisfactorily.

He is to have it in his power to keep the commission permanently busy. He can call on it for information or investigation whenever he thinks the cause of the consumers is involved. Who are the consumers? They are "the people." He is to be the people's advocate. What people? The farming and industrial populations have opposing interests as producers and consumers. If we are all consumers, perhaps the salariat and the "white collar" folk are the only pure consumers; or at any rate many of them are only indirect or collateral producers. According to Senator GEORGE, the consumer is invisible and inarticulate. To know his true interest, to which Congress is so faithful, Congress "must have accurate information "gathered upon the initiative of the "consumer himself." That is, upon the initiative of the Consumers' Counsel.

He is to pick out the consumers, to dissociate the two personalities of the producer-consumer, to instigate and appear in proceedings before the commission, to inquire and cause inquiries and to report to Congress once a year. When producer-consumers ask for higher rates on their productions, how is the protector of the people going to protect other producer-consumers and mere consumers who cry for lower rates on the productions of the first lot? The Consumers' Counsel must be a gifted person, such as neither the Consumers' League nor even the People's Legislative Service can spare. Mr. GEORGE "conceives of a "people's counsel or a consumers' "counsel not necessarily as a law-"yer, but perhaps as some great "outstanding economist."

The annual report to Congress of this genius was suggested by Mr. WALSH of Massachusetts. If worst comes to worst, and the President's present power under the flexible provisions of the tariff is retained, "the great consuming public" must have its representative before the Tariff Commission. He will also be "a representative in our absence of "the Congress of the United States "before the Tariff Commission." So the Consumers' Counsel is to protect the unorganized consumers and Congress from "the tremendous power of one man." It is good to see that the sleepless eye of the Senate watches Executive usurpation.

A new office, with possibilities of expansion, is the proper bulwark against encroachment. The Republicans would have saved a lot of time by consenting to the amendment. Senator REED explained characteristically the situation and his position:

> This will go forth to the country as a vote for or against the interests of the consumers, and I am not willing to be pictured as an opponent of the interests of the consumers of America. So, wholly cynically, with the hope that if it becomes a law it may possibly be found to be of some scintilla of use, but with the firm confidence that that will not be the case, I expect to vote for the amendment.

The segregated consumer—if he can be segregated—will probably have no illusions about the interest of the Senate in him. This amendment was for the benefit of the time-consumers of the Senate. As mere buncombe, it should have been passed unanimously.

MODERN VOYAGEURS.

Only twice before in the history of this country has the Ohio River received the attention paid to it this month to celebrate its canalization. The French, who discovered it and navigated it from Fort Duquesne to the falls at Louisville, were the first to appreciate the importance of "La Belle Riviere" in their design to control the interior. The British, who captured it from the French, were soon engaged in tidewater activities which made them forget the Ohio. In the show-boat and steamboating days the river was again a full and sensitive artery of national life. The rise of the railroads reduced it to, commercially speaking, a trickle. But now that the army engineers have made it navigable from Pittsburgh to Cairo, the President himself is to embark upon its rushing brown waters and speak in two of the great cities on its banks to do honor to the historic stream.

The territory affected by the nine-foot stage is the richest and most populous in the United States. From the time of the Revolution no region has produced more notable participants in the life of the nation. After the Ohio leaves Pennsylvania it becomes roughly the median between the North and the South, firmly fixed in that role by the flight of Eliza across its icepack and the raids of General JOHN MORGAN in Indiana and Ohio. WILLIAM H. TAFT used to tell Kentucky visitors at the White House that the southern shore of the river was always "the South" to him, and from a Cincinnati hilltop as a boy he would hail the approach of Spring when the peach blossoms burgeoned in the Kentucky hills. Kentuckians, gazing across to Ohio, Indiana or Illinois, feel that they are looking upon "the North." At Louisville, where Mr. HOOVER is to speak, the feeling of sectional division is strengthened by the fact that on hazy days the Indiana shore can barely be discerned on the other side of the broad, deep stream. Here, too, are the falls, surveyed by CHRISTOPHER GIST when Kentucky was in truth "the Dark and Bloody Ground" and governed by the BULLITTS on commission from Governor PATRICK HENRY of Virginia. At Cairo, where the Ohio pours into the Mississippi the greatest volume of water received by the main stream from any of its tributaries, its tawny flood colors the ruddier Mississippi for many miles.

Unquestionably there will be a great revival in trade and passenger use of the river with the completion of the deep-water project. So great has the nation grown that the railroads, which once looked upon river traffic as competitive, welcome it as an accessory. Soon the levees of Cincinnati, Louisville, Evansville and Cairo will be busy again as they were when MARK TWAIN knew them. The President will find no bridges after he embarks at Cincinnati until the delicate span of the Big Four bridge at Louisville rises over the racing waters of the "Indiana chute." But probably it will not be long before the shores between will be linked by Mr. HOOVER'S fellow-engineers.

WINNOWING THE FOREIGN SERVICE.

It is reported that about fifty men will have left the foreign service during twelve months. This is a reminder that in the reorganization of this service President HOOVER has long been known to be interested. Despite improvements in the last ten years, the foreign service is still suffering from handicaps. Thanks to the Rogers act, the pay of various classes has been raised. The personnel taken in since 1924 is said to be of a high order. But still only young men of means can go into the service, and once in it rewards for exceptional merit are few and long delayed. Capable men often find themselves driven to resign in order to give scope to their talents and to earn enough to support a family.

One of the difficulties lies in the relation of the foreign service to the State Department, and in its antiquated bureaucratic methods. The foreign service, as at present organized, includes the members of the consular and the diplomatic services. Some of them may, for stated periods, be detailed for duty in the Department of State. But the latter's permanent personnel is separate from that of the foreign service, is paid on a different scale, and is bound by other rules and regulations.

This naturally gives rise to petty jealousies, as when a man from one service served under one in the other who receives less pay and is differently classified. In theory, such details should make no difference. In fact, they are important. Worse still is the fact that the State Department organization is understaffed, underpaid, and so bound up in red tape that those who deal with it are often staggered by the inertia which it displays.

With a view to remedying this state of affairs, Congressman PORTER and Senator MOSES last year introduced bills reorganizing the department and making it possible for it to use not only the work of men in the field but also of some taken from civil life whose special knowledge might be valuable. Attempts have been made to provide "post" allowances for members of the foreign service stationed in capitals where the cost of living is high and where social obligations are onerous. It has been hoped in this way to lessen the necessity for employing in the service only men of private means.

While some sort of reorganization bill would be helpful, much can be done from within. Even where legislation may be needed it is not likely to receive much support unless it becomes known that the President favors it. Past Secretaries of State have been too overwhelmed with routine work to undertake the formidable task of reorganization. While the President is fully as busy, he has it in his power to focus public attention on the need and so to expedite the work. The country is at last ready to support such changes as will promote morale, insure the selection of a competent personnel, and thus promise to make the conduct of America's foreign relations effective and successful.

FRESH MUSIC AND CANNED.

Philadelphia theatres are once more open. The musicians who were striking and threatening to close theatres in half a dozen other cities with the aid of the stage hands' union have won an increase in salary and are back at work. But they and the rest of the membership of 140,000 claimed by the American Federation of Musicians are still troubled by the encroachment of mechanical music in theatres and moving-picture houses. They have upheld their contention, or a substantial part of it. They have not touched the centre of their real trouble.

The talkies, bringing with them their own synchronized music, are at the bottom of the various musicians' strikes. It has been reported that 5,000 musicians are out of work because of the popularity of pictures with sound accompaniment. A campaign fund of considerable size has been raised to present to the public through a series of newspaper advertisements the superior value of an orchestra of visible, flesh-and-blood musicians over the canned music that comes with the sound film. It would be futile to protest against the continued offering of talkies, and the musicians are not planning any such folly. But they realize that mechanical substitutes for an orchestra are easily available to managers, and they want to get the public behind them in a demand for first-hand music. The union has the whip hand where revues and musical comedies are staged. But instead of using its power, except in sudden crises, it hopes to educate the public to call for a genuine orchestra.

Many share with the musicians a feeling of dislike for any kind of entertainment which is merely a reproduction of an original performance. They are probably more articulate than the great mass that can afford the substitute and is glad to get it. It is hard to believe that movies, talkies and canned music will ever take the place of the theatre, the concert and the opera. The ideas of some playwrights, librettists and composers would lose most of their effect unless transmitted to an audience by living performers. They are more subtle, though not necessarily more important, than the ideas which may be perfectly translated through mechanical reproduction. The audience for this kind of entertainment may not be increasing, but it surely does not grow less. It is even reasonable to suppose that the more discerning audience should be enlarged as some of the higher grade dramas are given wider circulation through mechanical reproduction. The recording of BEETHOVEN'S symphonies by the phonograph did not drive people away from the concert halls. While sound pictures are still new, the musicians may be temporarily distressed, but wider distribution of music should not in the end militate against its sustained popularity when fresh from the orchestra.

HINDENBURG FOR PEACE.

President HINDENBURG has amplified his record of consistent loyalty to the republican Fatherland by an emphatic intervention against the backers of the provocative anti-reparations referendum. The immediate effect of his sturdy gesture, to judge from the reaction of both friend and foe, seems to have been like the sweep of a Gulliver's arm against a Lilliputian cobweb. Only a few days ago it was generally conceded that the Hugenberg-Hitler faction would have no difficulty in polling the 4,000,000 votes necessary to bring their proposal to a vote, though there was confidence expressed that the mischief-makers would fail to secure the 20,000,000 votes required to carry the referendum. Today it is regarded as highly doubtful whether the Nationalist fanatics can muster enough votes even for the first step. From Right sources Herr HUGENBERG has been advised to abandon the whole plan and escape writing it down a fiasco.

That the Fascists should vent their wrath upon the President is understandable. Not is that old soldier likely to go to excessive pains in repudiating the charge that he has violated the strict neutrality of his office. It is true that only last week he did protest against the use both sides were trying to make of his name. It is also true that his subsequent protest against the referendum clause which would make it a penal offense for an official of the Reich to subscribe to any reparations project was due to the fact that he regarded that clause as "a "personal and irrelevant political "attack." But the neutrality to which President HINDENBURG held himself bound was obviously something narrower than neutrality in the face of a move dangerous to the peace and welfare of Germany and to the entire structure of European peace as built up with infinite pains in the last five years. In such an emergency the friends of peace and common sense in Germany have not hesitated to throw overboard the refinements of nicely correct political behavior and have laid about them manfully. The Prussian Government has openly threatened to expel from the public service all officials aligning themselves with the referendum move.

Rejection of the anti-reparations bill, now beyond doubt, is all the more impressive because the originators of the plan had so cleverly tied it up with a denial of Germany's sole responsibility for the World War—an opinion held by a vast majority of the German people. Quite aside from the perils involved in the Hugenberg policy of provocation, it must be apparent to intelligent Germans that if the outside world is ever to be won over to a reversal of the moral verdict of Versailles, the policy of antagonizing the Allies was about the worst way to go about it. As for Herr ALFRED HUGENBERG, it seems as though he is about to repeat one phase of the experience of the late HUGO STINNES. His acquisition of a large number of German newspapers has obviously not given him that stranglehold on the mind and heart of the German people with which the more impressionable observers have credited him. He is another of the would-be Napoleons of post-war Germany.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Light Increases Trade.

In an address before the Broadway Association yesterday in celebration of Light's Golden Jubilee, Dr. JULIUS KLEIN emphasized the importance of effective lighting as an aid to merchants. In the present era of well-lighted, airy shops, "dinginess may be disastrous." At the least, it is suspect. Gloom in a store often hides more than the stock. It may cloak bad features in arrangement and in sanitation.

As testimony to what good lighting will do to encourage trade, Dr. KLEIN cited two experiments made by the Pacific Coast Electrical Association. In two poorly lighted establishments, one a jewelry store and the other a confectionery and lunch room, modern lighting equipment was installed. A close check on advertising value and actual business done was made before and after the change.

"Under the old lighting, less than 17 per cent of the passers-by stopped to look into the jewelry store window, but with the good modern lighting the percentage jumped to 70. For the lunch room, the increase in the advertising value of the brighter windows was from 21 to 52 per cent, by actual count." The jeweler is now spending only $30 more a month for electricity, is getting four times as much advertising value from his windows, and his actual business has increased 27 per cent.

In the West originated the slogan, "Black streets are back streets." The converse is illustrated by Broadway, with its miles of light and its sunburst centre at Times Square.

An Ancient Cab.

Impatiently the man vainly whistled at several passing taxicabs. Out of the corner of his eye he spied what was presumably intended to be a taxi drawn up at the curb of the side street—an ancient and weather-beaten affair, with a strangely unfamiliar profile. At a signal the cab drew up in front of him, and he got in.

Once on his way to the office he stopped at a florist's to buy some flowers. As he re-entered his uncouth chariot he was again impressed with what, to put it mildly, might be described as its lack of pretension. But he said nothing, and it was left to the driver to put his thoughts in words.

"Boss, you could have picked a much better-looking cab than this."

His nose was not, as Mrs. WHARTON described that of a coachman waiting outside the old Academy of Music, "red with gin and cold," but in other respects he stepped straight out of the Age of Innocence.

"For a while it looked bad for us old-timers when the new cars came on the market, all paint and lights and shinylike. I had a hard time picking up a fare in my old bus. Most everybody seemed to fall for the flashy ones. But business is better now. People have come to realize, after all, that it's driving not counts."

Humble Chauffeur.

He paused to point out a telltale dent in a new taxi that had drawn up alongside, and to explain the mystery of his own antique. "Dodge bottom and Studebaker top." Certainly, the engine ran smoothly, and he manoeuvred the car through the traffic of the Furies with deft hands.

"I saw you standing there in the avenue signaling for a taxi. But I says to myself: 'That gentleman wants one of them new-fangled cars. He wouldn't be satisfied with an old bus like mine.' That's why I didn't come up till you waved to me."

He accepted the modest tip with a touch of his cap.

"Thank you, sir. You'll usually find me around the corner of Sixty-eighth Street and Madison Avenue. There's an apartment house there where a lot of old ladies live that used to have houses on the square. When they come down to the door in the morning they ask the doorman 'Where's CHRIS?' That's me."

Shrewd Legal Plea in Havana.

In Cuba the opposition to President MACHADO seems to have at its disposal the services of an excellent strategist of the school which holds that the best defense is to attack. Four men were recently arrested as the signers of a political manifesto and arraigned in court on the charge of conspiracy. Thereupon fourteen other signers of the manifesto voluntarily appeared and took oath to their responsibility.

By this act, as Colonel CARLOS MENDIETA, the most prominent figure in the group, declared to the press, the signers removed from themselves and from their proclamation the stigma of conspiracy. Far from drawing up and distributing a secret document, the signers aver that nothing would please them better than to circulate their manifesto openly. It is the contention of the Opposition elements in Cuba that the Machado Administration has suppressed the right of free speech and assembly, thus automatically creating "conspiracies." As a bid for outside sympathy this argument is not without appeal. It should interest, among others, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which not long ago managed to get itself misunderstood as backing a most extraordinary tirade against President MACHADO and then apparently forgot all about it.

FOREIGN RELATIONS.

Would an International Research Organization Benefit the Public?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The suggestion of James Culliton in THE TIMES of Oct. 10 and the reply of Hamilton Fish Armstrong must interest many minds. Mr. Culliton suggests an international research organization; Mr. Armstrong points to the excellent work done by the Council of Foreign Relations.

The Council of Foreign Relations having been founded by Lindsay Russell, the late Alexander Hemphill and myself, at a series of dinners at which we were the hosts, much of the organization work fell upon my shoulders. It was my good fortune to obtain most wise advisers when Elihu Root consented to become the honorary chairman, and many of the present members joined the organization because of its field of service, based on the draft I then made of its statement of purpose. Although I resigned, as I did from all political organizations, when I went into diplomatic service, I have, however, an almost parental pride in the extension of its activities, conducted with ability and success over eleven years.

I find in my files a memorandum I made during that period, which I had since forgotten, expressing caution lest any one organization of distinguished names and powerful financial membership should grow into a nucleus tempted to obtain something like a monopoly in the direction of public opinion in foreign affairs. Just as I doubt that good ends are served by committees which tell us what book to read every month, so also I see the dangers of organization of any kind which might develop into a "national centre" in New York, telling our citizens all over the country what to think about our international relations. This is no reflection upon the highly meritorious work done by the Council of Foreign Relations in which I shared until I went abroad; it is merely a cautionary reminder that a powerful organization might get out of hand and either fall into the control of internationalists too radical and in too much haste, or, on the other hand, into the control of large interests seeking their own ends.

As I see it, though there may be no present danger of the council going wrong, no harm would be done if Mr. Culliton's suggestion went into effect in another form and with a different representation.

The field of intelligence, education and sound opinion should enlist as many Americans as possible to meet with others of varying viewpoints to discuss and make individual opinion. The Council of Foreign Relations is only one organization of that kind. It will preserve its great usefulness and its good example to other bodies while it carefully avoids claim to monopoly as a "centre" for mass production of public opinion, and is free from any charge of spoon-feeding public thought.

This conclusion implies in no way that the council has now gone beyond its original purposes.

AN OLD MIRROR.

I wish that in your frame of tarnished gold
You might reflect again those lovely faces
That paused a moment, in the days of old,
To smile and nod with pretty airs and graces.
The belles and beaux in powdered hair and curls,
The modest brides and rosy-cheeked young mothers,
The chubby forms of tiny boys and girls,
The courtly dames in taffeta and others
Who sought your wise approval ere they went
To drink a "dish of tea," or to the balls,
Where youth and age, alike on pleasure bent,
Trod graceful minuets in stately halls.
Enchanting portraits, leaving not a trace
Upon the time-worn crystal of your face!

STATE AMENDMENT NO. 4.

Means of Raising Money to Fight Forest Fires Is Discussed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The proposed amendment No. 4, permitting the State to contract a debt in case of a forest fire without submission to a vote of the people, is really important, because it involves an extension of a financial policy.

May I supplement your statement in relation to this proposition?

Every year the Legislature appropriates money to be used in fighting forest fires. In the 1929 appropriation bill there are items aggregating over $150,000 for this purpose.

It is quite obvious, however, that all such appropriations are by way of anticipation and for an uncertain contingency. If there should be an overwhelming conflagration and not sufficient money appropriated to meet the situation—hiring men to fight the fire, &c.—there is a way provided at present to meet this emergency. Section 53 of our conservation law provides that the Controller, with the approval of the Governor, may borrow funds not to exceed $100,000, and make a temporary loan to the Conservation Commission to use in protecting the forests and extinguishing the fire. The Controller must then report this transaction to the Legislature, so that his action shall be ratified and an appropriation made for the money raised. The constitutionality of this procedure is questionable, however, for the following reason: The Constitution (Art. 7, Sec. 2) provides that the State may contract debts "within the amounts of appropriation theretofore made. Section 53 of the conservation law puts the cart before the horse. The Controller borrows the money first, relying upon the Legislature to thereafter appropriate the amount borrowed. It is doubtful whether a Controller would take a chance in borrowing money this way.

The State is therefore faced with a dilemma in case of a serious forest fire and not sufficient funds on hand with which to hire fire fighters.

The way to get around this apparently is to class forest fires in the category of emergencies, along with insurrections, invasions and defending the State in war, already provided for in the Constitution, and thus permit quick action in raising funds, without the formality of previous legislative sanction or submitting the question to a vote of the people.

Presumably the Controller could then act, constitutionally, under Section 53 of the conservation law. In that case, $100,000 would be the maximum amount that could be borrowed, unless the Legislature increased this amount, and I think this is the crucial point.

It should be remembered that a constitutional grant to pledge the State's credit in this way does not preclude the Legislature from continuing to appropriate money every year for forest fires.

In other words, we will have two ways of raising money to suppress forest fires: 1. The usual appropriation by the Legislature to cover ordinary situations. 2. Pledging the State's credit without submitting the question to a vote of the people, when necessary, because a catastrophe is threatened.

This seems to be the legal and constitutional side of the question, without going into its merits.

The Protest Widens.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is not about time to register a public protest against this insane attempt on the part of manufacturers and couturiers alike to compel us to swathe ourselves in unbecoming long skirts—unbecoming in so far as they are impractical in our modern life? Doctors and others have been telling us that at last women have reached a point when they wear practical and healthful clothing. Is it possible that the modern women will without a protest submit to the imposition of a mode which had already proved unhealthy and impractical in 1900?

I suggest that women register their protests by nothing less than a boycott of the new style. Such a boycott would prove effective, even if kept in effect for not more than, say, six months.

Woman has made many advances in various fields during the last ten years, but it will indeed be a reflection upon her emancipation if she submits lamb-like to what is nothing less than a downright anachronism.

Relief for Music Lovers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to the paragraph in Topics of the Times about late arrivals at the Philharmonic concerts, I am convinced, after observation extending over many years, that traffic conditions have nothing to do with it. Certain subscribers—most of the audience are subscribers—always come on time and certain others always come late—it's a habit and nothing more.

I offer a suggestion as drastic as it would be effective: Segregate all late comers in a special room, preferably without seats, where they could hear the music but could not get into the auditorium to disturb the audience, and make them stay there through out the concert. After one or two such experiences they would be effectually cured of their procrastinating propensities. SAMUEL BUCK.

Prof. Auer Makes a Correction.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reading THE TIMES report and criticism of the Kayle Mitel violin recital on Oct. 19 I notice that my name was mentioned as a former teacher of hers and that I have given her my endorsement. These statements are erroneous.

As a matter of fact she had only five or six half-hour lessons from me several years ago, at the Chicago Musical College, during one of the Summer courses; besides, she has received no endorsement from me whatsoever at any time.

Kindly publish these corrections.

HUGHES WELCOMES FOREIGN JURISTS

He Declares the Building of Machinery of Peace Is the Order of the Day.

BAR GIVES RECEPTION

Members of International Law Institute Visit New York and Columbia Universities.

Declaring that the building of the machinery of peace was the order of the day among peoples and governments of the world, former Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes welcomed the members of the Institute of International Law last night to a reception of the New York City Bar Association at its building, 42 West Forty-fourth Street.

The institute members, representing twenty-six countries, had been greeted earlier in the day at Columbia and New York Universities. Acting Chancellor William H. Nichols presided at a luncheon in their honor on the University Heights campus, and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler and Mrs. Butler were hosts to them at a tea after they had been shown about the Columbia buildings.

These functions terminated the official sojourn of the institute in New York, its members leaving today on a tour of Princeton, Philadelphia and Washington, where they will be received by President Hoover. They previously had devoted a nine-day business session at Briarcliff Manor to the interpretation of international law.

Sees Progress Toward Peace.

"Peace now seems to be the object of governments," Mr. Hughes assured the visitors. "Concerns of peace are now not left simply to pious resolutions but the very mechanisms of peace are being expanded. In this day of limitation of armaments the armaments of peace are being developed.

"Instead of sporadic studies there are now comprehensively directed and permanent researches such as yours to bring in concrete fashion the development of international law."

Referring to the work of the World Court and its indebtedness to jurists in determining the law of nations, Mr. Hughes added:

"If we have a condition of peace, I hope a permanent peace, that does not mean there will be no arguments. The combative instincts of man will not be denied. If taken out of the field of arms they will be aired in other fields, in the tribunals of law, for example."

Explaining the function of the New York City Bar Association as one "to protect, develop and improve the administration of justice and "to cultivate the honor, integrity and courtesy of the legal profession," Mr. Hughes touched lightly upon the nature of the American bar.

"Our chief industry is not in making automobiles," he said, "but in making laws. We show an extraordinary capacity for self-torture in the infliction of legislation. We have made laws we ought not to have made and we have not made those laws we ought to have made. Yet despite the criticism of the lawyer our profession grows in numbers. The supply far exceeds the demands. We have 175,000 lawyers in the city and 10,000 in the city law schools. In truth this is a paradise for lawyers. The contentious find ample opportunities for litigation without restriction of expense. The reformers, the proponents of change and the legal philosophers have ample opportunities for experiment.

"This is the headquarters for the legal engineers of the country. Here are the central law offices for many undertakings going into many States and many countries. We are versed in the precedents of many nations. Nothing legal is alien to us. This building is a power house with currents of usefulness running throughout the world. So we may really greet you as neighbors and co-workers."

Pays Tribute to Professors.

Mr. Hughes also paid a tribute to professors of law who, he said, were dominating the rewriting of our laws.

Charles C. Burlingham, president of the bar association, presided, and Dr. Butler introduced the institute, Alexander Pearce Higgins, professor of international law at Cambridge, England, and newly elected president of the institute, lauded the work of Americans in international law and said that the meeting illustrated the unity of the legal profession throughout the world.

Among those at the reception were:

JOHN W. DAVIS, former Democratic Presidential candidate.

Starting yesterday's program the jurists were driven by bus from the Knickerbocker Hotel to the New York University campus on University Heights and lunched in the Gould Memorial Library. Dr. Nichols was joined by Dr. George Alexander, president of university council, in welcoming the guests and both pointed out the possibilities of law as a stabilizer of peace.

"We hope that your presence here will help to cement those bonds which unite us to all other countries in the cause of peace," Dr. Alexander said. Dr. Nichols described the visit as one of the highest honors accorded the university.

Albert de Lapradelle, first Vice president of the International Law Institute at its recent sessions and professor of the Faculty of Law of Paris, replied in French, expressing the appreciation of the institute members at their welcome. Explaining that his French needed brushing up, Dr. Nichols responded by substituting for words a gesture of friendship, placing his hand on the shoulder of M. de Lapradelle.

Dr. Robert Underwood Johnson, director of the Hall of Fame, escorted the visitors on a tour of the hall with its commemorations of sixty-five distinguished Americans. "It is a place of honor for those who have sustained and maintained our country," he said. "We hope it will serve to cultivate law and order and reverence, a quality which appears to be on the decline in America."

Taken by bus again to Columbia University, the jurists were greeted in the University Library by trustees and members of the faculty. Dr. Howard Lee McBain, professor of Constitutional Law and dean of the faculty of political science, extended the welcome in behalf of the Columbia hosts and led a tour about the campus. Dr. Butler and Mrs. Butler later were hosts at tea.

CLEMENCEAU GAINS AFTER HEART CRISIS

Valet Finds Him Unconscious During Night and Doctor Gives Injections.

PRECAUTIONS BEING TAKEN

Physicians Guard Against Another Attack—Patient Has Cold, but Is Allowed to Sit Up.

By P. J. PHILIP.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 21.—Former Premier Georges Clemenceau, who twice last Summer suffered from disquieting heart attacks, had a recurrence of the illness last night which caused considerable alarm among his servants and doctors. After he retired to bed at his usual hour, 8 o'clock, his valet heard him breathing heavily and with difficulty and found him unconscious.

The valet immediately summoned a doctor, who gave the patient several injections to stimulate his heart, which immediately produced satisfactory results. A heart specialist, Dr. Weiser, was consulted this morning, however, and the nurses who attended M. Clemenceau when he was shot by a young anarchist during the peace conference were summoned. Mme. Jacquemaire, M. Clemenceau's daughter, was called to the House with her husband, who is a doctor, and Michel Clemenceau, who is in the country, was informed of his father's illness.

This morning the veteran statesman, who recently complained that all the newspaper men worried too often about his health, was allowed to rise and sit in a chair as he insisted upon doing, but all work was forbidden. Precautions are being taken so that in the event of any recurrence of the attack the patient will have immediate attention.

Begins to Show His Age.

During his stay at his seaside home in the Vendée this Summer the war Premier began to show signs of his age, 88, and himself declared more than once that the time had come when he would prefer that his heart should stop beating.

"But when it happens," he told one newspaper man, "none of you fellows will know anything about it. I have made all arrangements and I shall have been buried before anything is known."

When he returned to his home on the Rue Franklin some weeks ago he set to work at once on his book of war memoirs, in which he replies to some statements attributed to Marshal Foch, and which he was expected to have ready for publication by the end of the month.

Among the few visitors who were received this morning at his home was Deputy Georges Mandel, who was the Tiger's chef du Cabinet during his war Premiership.

"M. Clemenceau is better now," he said "but during the night he was very ill."

Slight Crisis Is Past.

PARIS, Oct. 21 (AP).—Physicians attending M. Clemenceau indicated tonight that they considered the slight crisis that he underwent had passed, at least for the time being. They decided to issue no official communiqué and announced that all would not return to his bedside until tomorrow evening.

Dr. Laudry said on leaving his 88-year-old patient, "I shall be coming back tomorrow more as a friend than as a doctor." He intimated, however, that although the crisis was past the age of M. Clemenceau and the cold from which he is suffering might place him at the mercy of another similar attack, which friends described today as a slight heart syncope.

Dr. Degennes, a kidney specialist who had attended Marshal Foch, left the same impression. "This particular crisis is past," he said. "Of course, it is impossible to tell if another one will occur." Dr. Jacquemaire, M. Clemenceau's son-in-law, remained at the house during the evening.

The former Premier received a hypodermic injection of oil and camphor today to break up the lung congestion. When Deputy Mandel arrived the "Tiger" joked with him quite in his old style. After his physicians had left tonight he went to sleep.

Dr. Degennes said late tonight that if M. Clemenceau passed a restful night it might be said that he would take a new lease of life, but a bad night would still further weaken him.

BLOOMINGDALE LEFT $5,000,000 ESTATE

$2,000,000 Trust Fund for Son Void Unless Divorced Wife Relinquishes Certain Claims.

SHE GETS $72,000 A YEAR

Similar Income for His Widow—St. John's Cathedral May Be Residuary Legatee.

If Mrs. Rosalie Banner Bloomingdale of Paris, first wife of the late Irving I. Bloomingdale, vice president of Bloomingdale Brothers, merchants, does not relinquish all claim to certain securities, their son, Donald, a minor, will lose a $2,000,000 trust fund established for him in his father's will, filed here yesterday.

The testament, which disposes of an estate of more than $5,000,000, directs that the first Mrs. Bloomingdale, who received a divorce in Paris in 1926, be paid $72,000 annually for life and that the son receive a life income from $2,000,000, with the privilege of drawing $500,000 from the principal before he is 25 years old. The first Mrs. Bloomingdale has been receiving $36,000 annual alimony.

The stock mentioned is deposited with the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company and is in the custody of Hiram Bloomingdale, brother of the decedent and also a vice president of Bloomingdale Brothers. If the first wife does not surrender her claim to the stock, the will specifies, "then as much of said stock as my trustee shall select may, if my trustee shall so decide, constitute the trust fund herein directed to be set up and payments made from the income and principal of the securities."

Ex-Wife's Mother Provided For.

"Further, in the event of such refusal," the instrument continues, "all benefits accruing in this will to Donald Bloomingdale and or to his issue, excepting the benefits in Trust A, shall be null and void and of no effect." The trust mentioned is that providing the life annuity for the first Mrs. Bloomingdale. After her death $5,400 is to be paid annually to her mother, Mrs. Philippine Banner, also of Paris, and $66,600 is to be paid to the widow, Mrs. Geanne Hughes Bloomingdale. At the latter's death, the principal goes to the son.

After the son's death the principal of his $2,000,000 fund passes to his children, or if he has none, to the Cathedral of St. John the Divine and the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies. These institutions also inherit the principal of other funds if Donald leaves no issue. The Cathedral is asked to expend $150,000 of its share for the erection of a "Bloomingdale Memorial" and the balance for the aid of "respected, earnest, formerly active and independent and then deserving, indigent and old men and women and orphans."

For his widow Mr. Bloomingdale created another trust to yield $5,000 monthly, the principal to go to Donald after her death if she leaves no issue by the testator. She also gets the income of the residuary estate and is named sole executrix and trustee. Mrs. Bloomingdale lives at 299 Park Avenue.

The only other bequests in the will and the codicil filed with it were $5,000 to each of two nephews, Edward Popper of 115 East Eighty-sixth Street and Robert Popper of 270 Park Avenue.

The testator died a week ago in London after an automobile accident, in which his widow and his chauffeur also were injured. Though retaining the title of vice president of Bloomingdale Brothers, he had been inactive in the business for almost ten years.

A. J. Rosenthal Left $1,000,000.

The will of Arthur J. Rosenthal, senior member of the Stock Exchange firm bearing his name, filed for probate yesterday, disposes of an estate of about $1,000,000, most of which goes to his widow, Grace E. Rosenthal, and their two children, Arthur Jr. and Jane Grace Rosenthal, all of 983 Park Avenue. All three share the residuary estate and a trust fund of $250,000 to be established from property Mr. Rosenthal inherited from his father. The rest of the property passes to the testator's mother, Emma Rosenthal.

The only cash bequests in the testament are $50,000 to the widow and $10,000 to Mr. Rosenthal's partner, Arthur Schiff.

The testator, who died on Oct. 12, organized the international banking firm of Bernard Scholle & Co. in 1911 and was the senior partner for the succeeding eleven years.

RADOSLAVOFF DIES IN EXILE IN BERLIN

CAUSED NATION'S DEFEAT

Decided After Long Negotiations With Allies and Central Powers to Fight With the Latter.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—Vassili Radoslavoff, 75 years old, Bulgarian Premier during the World War, died today at the Berlin Hospital after having gained permission to return to his native land, from which he had been exiled.

For the past ten years he had been living here, all the time conducting a bitter battle for his rehabilitation and commutation of the sentence passed on him by the Stamboulinsky Government.

Inasmuch as his property had been confiscated, he was compelled to live on the smallest means, and occupied a single room at his son-in-law's apartments.

When he received news this Summer that his own and his friends' efforts had at last been successful, and that he would be permitted to return home, he was convalescing from an illness. He had expected to go to Sofia in August and resume his political work in the old party of National Liberals. He always cherished a fervent hope that he would play again a leading rôle, and that some day he might even be asked once more to head the government.

He favored a constitutional monarchy as the only form of government which he considered possible for an agrarian country. He greatly admired America, to which he was looking for help for his fatherland.

His body will be taken to Bulgaria.

Was a Student in Germany.

The career of M. Radoslavoff, self-styled "professional politician" is the dramatic story of a middle-European opportunist—the story of a shrewd diplomat who held the strings of a certain destiny during the early years of the World War. Born in the little town of Lovitch, Bulgaria, in 1854, he attended native schools and later studied at Heidelberg University in Germany, where he is understood to have been encouraged in the pursuits of "real politik."

In the course of a long political career he became Premier of Bulgaria in 1913, after defeat of his country in the war with Serbia and Greece. A realist and opportunist, he made efforts to recoup the territorial losses of that year. Later, when the World War was well under way, he so successfully bargained, first with the Allies and then with the Central Powers, that the complexion of Bulgaria's sympathies was not known until she declared war upon Serbia in 1915. While he was negotiating with Sir Edward Grey, British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, the Bulgarian Army was mobilized and ready for war before it was understood definitely that Bulgaria was to fight against the Allies.

Fled From Bulgaria.

In 1918, when it was apparent that the Central Powers were losing the war and that the demands of Bulgaria for an extension of her territory were not to be realized, Radoslavoff and his Cabinet resigned and he fled to Berlin. Previously he had been horsewhipped in the streets of Sofia by a mob. In 1923, Radoslavoff and five members of his Cabinet were sentenced at Sofia to life imprisonment for responsibility in the defeat of Bulgaria in the World War, but amnesty was granted in 1924. Last June a bill was passed allowing Radoslavoff to return from exile.

ARISTOCRACY HERE CALLED PICHEL AIM

BRITISH ENVOYS PROSPECTS

Sir Esme Howard and Sir Harry G. Armstrong Get Letters About Book, It Is Testified.

The names of Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador, and Sir Harry Gloster Armstrong, British Consul General here, figured yesterday in Assistant District Attorney Alexander Lehman's inquiry to determine whether a crime has been committed by "Dr." Charles L. T. Pichel in his promotion of "Who's Who in Heraldry." Both Sir Esme and Sir Harry, it appeared, had received letters from Pichel's secretary who, presumably, wrote to them as "prospects" for the proposed volume.

Typewritten data on heraldry, prepared by Pichel in connection with his scheme to list certain Americans, at $250 each, in his book, were read into the record. It was set forth that "thousands" of Americans must have the "inalienable right to claim a coat-of-arms" and that "many Americans must have the blood of medieval knights flowing in their veins."

The chief witness yesterday was Major Fredreick A. H. Seymour, secretary of the Shelton Harbor Country Club of Rhode Island, which has headquarters at Washington. Major Seymour said he had been an attaché of the British Embassy about 1904 and had served in the British Army in India and South Africa. He met Pichel in 1928 through an advertisement for solicitors, he testified, and arranged to become field secretary for Pichel's Heraldry Society and his "Who's Who in Heraldry." He never received a salary, he said, but either that or commissions had been promised him. The Major admitted he had written twenty or thirty letters as secretary for Pichel and among these the only addressees' names he could recall were those of Sir Esme Howard and Sir Harry Gloster Armstrong.

Major Seymour said he had finally become suspicious of the heraldry scheme as a result of a proposed "La Carte Cordiale" which was to furnish entrée for its bearers. He testified he had "edited" the typewritten data which Pichel had "constructed" for use on the proposed campaign for the book. Some of the statements included were:

"Even if your ancestors did not come over in the Mayflower, let us begin today to build an American aristocracy."

"Among civilized nations a knowledge of heraldry is a desirable and necessary element in higher refinement and culture. Though such knowledge has been neglected in the United States, a coat-of-arms is always recognized here and is made a cause of social distinction."

Miss Frances Tarbox of 40 West Fifty-ninth Street, testified she had met Pichel a year and a half ago at Mrs. Stoner's studio and that he had asked her to interest persons in his proposed "Who's Who in Heraldry." She said she never authorized the use of her name as a sponsor. Asked is she approved, she said:

"I think heraldry is a splendid thing, but I did not approve the way this was being done. There was no bank back of it."

SCHOOL VIEWS GIVEN BY TWO CANDIDATES

Thomas and La Guardia Answer All Four Education Association Question Affirmatively.

Representative F. H. La Guardia and Norman Thomas, respectively Republican and Socialist candidates for Mayor, have given satisfactory replies to the four questions on school politics and problems put last week by the Public Education Association to all four candidates, according to a statement by the association yesterday.

The questions were: First, whether the candidate would follow President Hoover's example and make public the qualifications and endorsements of appointees to the Board of Education; second, whether similar publicity would be given by the board in case of appointments to higher positions in the school system; third, whether endorsements by political district leaders would be rejected; and fourth, whether the board would be required annually to present a school planning program covering a period of five years.

Both Major La Guardia and Mr. Thomas replied in the affirmative to the four questions.

No replies have been received from either former Police Commissioner Enright, Square Deal candidate, or from Mayor Walker, the association's statement said. The latter's secretary has acknowledged receipt of the association's letter.

PURE OIL STRIKE ENDS.

100 Who Quit Over Dismissal of Executive Return for Parley.

One hundred employes of the Pure Oil Company, which operates eighteen filling stations in Hudson County, N. J., returned to work yesterday afternoon after a strike of several hours as a protest against the dismissal of Thomas Curtis, general supervisor of the filling stations.

The men met in Bayonne and agreed to return to work pending a conference between a committee and officials of the company.

CITY BREVITIES.

More than 200 attended a dinner in honor of prospective members of the Manhattan Washington Lodge, 19, Independent Order of B'Nai Brith, given last night at the Hotel Dauphin, Broadway and Sixty-seventh Street.

Jules Martin, Secretary of the White Horse Taxi Service, Inc., was elected president at a meeting of directors of the company last night. Joseph Murphy was elected secretary.

The Shomrim (Guardians) Society, fraternal and benevolent association of the Jewish members of the Police Department, held its monthly religious and business meeting last night in the Hotel Pennsylvania.

A course of law lectures for women, by Miss Ruth Lowinson, began yesterday in the rooms of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, 36 West Forty-fourth Street.

The Kindergarten-6B Teachers' Association will meet at the Community Church House Assembly Hall, 12 Park Avenue, tomorrow at 4 P. M.

Treat Your Face to a Mint Julep Shave

Your face, having been shaved for years, has stood for an awful lot! Here's your chance to square yourself for all your past shaving. Treat yourself to a mint julep shave! All you need is a little BRISK shaving cream and some hot or cold water.

BRISK makes a mint julep shave because of the things it does on your face and on your spirits. First of all, BRISK lathers instantly and freely in hot or cold water—and plenty of lather is the first requirement of a good shave. BRISK absorbs two to three times the amount of water that old fashioned shaving cream does. Hence it makes two to three times the amount of lather—and a lather that stays moist on your face until you finish your shave!

Once you get a box of BRISK, open the lid and shave with BRISK, you will never "monkey" with anybody's tube, stick or powder.

Lubricates The Cutting Stroke

The rich, moistureful lather quickly "cuts" the beard oil and soaks the hair soft for easy, clean cutting. Moreover, it lubricates the cutting stroke of the razor. You know how a bit of soap on a saw eases its passage through a log—well, that's how BRISK smooths the path of the razor. The razor does not "pull" or bump along over your face, but glides sweetly over the skin, cutting down the hair cleanly and closely and almost without effort.

Every stroke of the razor does a clean job. No need to go over and over the same spot and "butcher" your face to get a close shave.

Take the flat, oval box of BRISK in one hand and rub your moist brush over BRISK.

"Great!" Says Your Face

BRISK makes your face glad for having been shaved. For BRISK is a skin conditioner as well as a shave. It leaves the skin soft, supple and young looking. Try just one BRISK shave. Mark how your face approves. You'll find your face smiling its delight after a BRISK shave.

Work up lather on your face. Start in shaving. Hey! How the whiskers go down before your razor when BRISK paves the way.

BRISK is new, even unto the package. It's a flat, oval tin box made for men only. And it holds an amazing lot of shaves because you have to use so little compared to other shaving creams. Get BRISK now at any good drug store or toilet goods counter—fifty cents.

BRISK has four brothers: ZEST, a refreshing after-shaving lotion; TREM, a hair dressing in cleanly stick form; SMOOTH, a powder that kills shine without showing powder; STIP, a new-type "stoptic" that closes cuts pronto!

WHETHER YOU WANT TO SELL OR RENT, buy or exchange, the real estate columns of The New York Times will help you most.—Advt.

QUEENS TO RECEIVE SEWER GRAFT RELIEF

Estimate Board Favors Paying $5,000,000 "Excess Cost" From Streets Fund.

TO VOID LEVY ON BOROUGH

Final Action on Plan That Was Suggested by Berry Will Be Taken on Thursday.

HARVEY THANKS THE BOARD

Representatives of Civic Bodies Express Gratitude for Lifting of Burden on Queens.

The Board of Estimate sitting in committee of the whole yesterday voted to relieve taxpayers in Queens of almost $5,000,000 "excess cost" of the Jamaica-Hollis sewer by transferring that amount from the $15,000,000 surplus in the street improvement fund and canceling the assessments previously laid upon the entire borough.

Controller Charles W. Berry, who promised that he would advocate this action at a Citizens' mass meeting last week, submitted the plan through his deputy, Frank J. Prial. It comes before the Board of Estimate and Apportionment on Thursday for final action.

The cost to the city of the Jamaica-Hollis sewer development was about $16,000,000. Its actual cost was found to be about $11,000,000, and the charges of sewer graft resulting from this disclosure were the greatest factor in the downfall of the Maurice Connolly régime in Queens. Confronted with the problem of paying for the $5,000,000 surplus cost, the Board of Estimate voted last April to assess that amount on the Borough of Queens, making it payable with taxes in five equal annual instalments.

Storm of Protest Over Levy.

Before this action was taken a veritable storm of protest was launched against the board by individuals and civic workers in Queens, who charged that the assessment was unfair and that the City Administration was responsible for allowing the graft. They wanted the assessment made city-wide, but Mayor Walker and other members of the Board of Estimate steadfastly opposed this course. The Mayor explained yesterday that if that precedent had been set, Queens taxpayers might be called upon in future to pay for irregularities in other boroughs if they should occur.

The men who opposed the borough assessment so vehemently last Spring appeared before the board yesterday to congratulate its members on their action. Borough President Harvey expressed the thanks of his borough to the board and said its action would be deeply appreciated. Joseph Coyle, president of the Dunton Civic League, said the board had earned the gratitude of every taxpayer in Queens. James Dunningham expressed similar sentiments, and G. H. Swathmay and George Knott were other civic workers who echoed him.

Joseph Leonardo, a Queens attorney, who is plaintiff in a suit in Queens Supreme Court to restrain the Board of Estimate from collecting the assessments levied for this project, asked that the board consent to entry of a permanent injunction against the collections to assure the people of Queens that it would not reverse its action at some later date.

Lawyer Angers Walker.

His suggestion aroused the Mayor, who said Mr. Leonardo was bringing a charge of bad faith against the board.

The lawyer protested that he meant to convey no such idea, but that he feared some future board, with different members, might again place the assessment burden on Queens. Mayor Walker said the Board of Estimate would never withdraw its vote. He added that he would ask Corporation Counsel Arthur J. W. Hilly to drop his appeal from a denial of a motion to dismiss Mr. Leonardo's suit upon the understanding that the lawyer would also discontinue the action.

Another little clash developed between T. David Zuckerman and the board when Mr. Zuckerman sought to show that the relief plan was really an assessment on the entire city. The Walker administration, he said, had issued $15,000,000 worth of corporate stock to replenish the Street Improvement Fund some years ago, and it was really this money that was being used to wipe out the Queens assessment. Future deficits must be met by additional funds raised in the same manner, he argued. Mr. Prial said the city had $15,000,000 surplus clear of its obligations on the stock outstanding and other claims and pointed out that the relief money in question could not be used for any other purpose.

Angered by Mr. Zuckerman's arguments against the proposal, although he had said he favored it, the Deputy Controller demanded to know who paid his salary. At first Mr. Zuckerman said he appeared as a taxpayer and resident of Queens, but he later admitted that he was in the employ of Representative Ruth Pratt. The admission silenced him.

Leo McDermott of the Citizens Union asked the board to defer action for one week to allow opportunity to study all phases of the matter. He said the setting of precedents was dangerous. Mr. Prial replied that the resolution submitted by Controller Berry quoted the city charter as authority for the plan he advocated and said it was a simple solution for a very annoying problem. Borough President Harvey Richmond and Mayor Walker added their voices to Mr. Prial's contention that no delay was necessary.

Stewart Browne, president of the United Real Estate Owners Association, who usually opposes the board, expressed his approval of the relief plan.

Among the forty-five aliens brought from Chicago was Giuseppe Accardi, a gangster.

Pennsylvania Boys Fly Kite 71 Hours and Set New Record

NEW HOLLAND, Pa., Oct. 21 (AP).—Two 18-year-old schoolboys today broke the world's record for sustained kite flying by almost nine hours.

John Garmon and Trueman Diem established the new mark when their kite, Old Glory, came to earth at 1:13 o'clock this afternoon after 71 hours and 13 minutes of "flying." The previous record was 62 hours and 20 minutes.

Old Glory, a home-made contraption of orthodox upright and bent cross-arm construction, was one of twenty-six entries in the contest when it was sent into the air at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon.

The "pilots" alternated at the string, snatching food and sleep on the field.

Each of the victors will receive a silver loving cup and one dollar for each hour their kite was in the air over the previous record, and the town will celebrate their victory tomorrow night.

CAVE-IN KILLS MAN IN SUBWAY DITCH

FOUR PRIESTS CLIMB TO AID

Administer Last Rites to Victim—Police and Firemen Dig for Two Hours, but Find No Others.

A 75-foot chunk of temporary planking forming the street level above the new subway cut in Fulton Street, Brooklyn, between Grand and Classon Avenues, caved in with a roar shortly after 10 o'clock last night, killing a negro laborer at work thirty-five feet below and throwing surface traffic into confusion. It was the second accident of its kind within a month.

The dead man, whose body was found through the heroism of four Catholic priests, was Lee Logan, 40 years old, who lived with his wife and two children at 160 First Street, Englewood, N. J. Logan was a member of the night gang employed by Carleton Company, Inc., contractors and engineers, of 151 West Forty-second Street, Manhattan. The accident was believed to have been caused by the shifting of sand at the base of the supporting walls, causing a weakening of the shoring.

No pedestrians, automobiles or trolley cars, which ordinarily crowd the busy street, were caught when the chunk of temporary roadway, about 75 feet long and 20 feet wide, gave way.

Hundreds of police reserves and firemen worked feverishly for about two hours under powerful floodlights to clear away the tons of debris, in the belief that three other workmen besides Logan had been trapped. Shortly before midnight, however, it was definitely determined that Logan had been the only victim.

That section of surface planking that gave way extended the length of the three buildings at 1,012, 1,014 and 1,016 Fulton Street. Hearing the roar, the Rev. Bernard Quinn of St. Peter Clav., R. C. Church, at Claver Place and Jefferson Avenue, which is near by, and his curate, the Rev. A. M. Rickert, rushed to the scene.

They immediately descended into the excavation by a ladder and were joined a moment later by the Rev. James Reilly of Epiphany R. C. Church, and the Rev. Matthew Flanagan, honorary chaplain of the Fire Department. The four priests groped their way over the uneven piles of gravel and broken planking and came upon Logan, to whom they administered a blessing and extreme unction.

Police reserves and fire apparatus under Deputy Chief Inspector Thomas F. Cummings and Fire Commissioner John J. Dorman rushed to the scene. Investigations were begun by the Police, Fire and Building Departments and the Transit Commission.

About three weeks ago a chunk of temporary planking covering the excavation for the same subway line gave way in Fulton Street near Nostrand Avenue, carrying with it an unoccupied automobile but causing no injuries.

LAWYER GETS 14 YEARS FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

M. W. Shapiro, Former Building and Loan Trustee, Had Disappeared After Taking $90,000.

Morris W. Shapiro, former counsel and building and loan trustee, was sentenced to fourteen years at hard labor for embezzlement of more than $90,000 of building and loan funds by Judge Brennan in Common Pleas Court in Newark yesterday. Shapiro had pleaded non vult to seven charges of embezzlement and misappropriation of the funds of the Safety, the House Owners and the Oraway Building and Loan Associations, and was sentenced to serve two years on each count. Under his plea Shapiro is without recourse of appeal. Shapiro had surrendered six weeks after he disappeared on June 24, and had promised to make restitution.

Judge Brennan, in imposing sentence, criticized building and loan associations for what he termed the looseness of their system.

LINER'S MATE HELD IN RIVER MYSTERY

Submits to Arrest as the Creole Docks Here, but Offers Alibi in Death of Kraft.

NEW ORLEANS WANTS HIM

Charge Victim Was Shot and Body Thrown Overboard in Quarrel Over Woman.

John McGouldrick, second officer of the Morgan liner Creole, from which Jack Kraft, Greenwich Village pressman, disappeared on the night of Oct. 10, submitted to arrest early yesterday morning when five detectives met the liner with a request from the New Orleans police to hold him on a murder indictment.

The indictment is said to be based on information given to the police by Miss Ione Orde, with whom Kraft was alleged to be traveling in the Creole steerage and over whom McGouldrick and the pressman are reported to have quarreled a few minutes before Kraft went over the rail of the liner.

Presenting themselves to Captain E. W. Sundstrom, master of the liner, the detectives stated their mission and were immediately introduced to the second mate. He denied any knowledge of the affair, but submitted to arrest.

Mate Has Alibi.

McGouldrick offered an "ironclad" alibi, substantiated by three members of the crew who bear witness to his presence on the bridge of the liner at the time Kraft was supposedly shot through the heart and thrown overboard. Another of the crew declared he saw Kraft run to the rail and dive into the waters of the lower Mississippi.

According to the story gathered on the liner by S. I. Cooper, general manager of the Morgan Line, the Creole passed slowly through the delta of the Mississippi at midnight, Oct. 10. Kraft and Miss Orde are said to have struck up a friendship with McGouldrick and Sam Epstein, a steward. Kraft was a former employe on the ship.

At midnight McGouldrick was on the bridge with River Pilot Blasland, Mr. Cooper said. At 12:15 Thomas Deeley, lookout man, heard a woman cry out on the forecastle head and ran forward to investigate. He found Epstein, Kraft and Miss Orde sitting on a mattress which they had brought to the deck. The woman was crying, Deeley reported later, and he left them, returning to his post. Pilot Blasland also heard the noise and directed McGouldrick to take a tour around the deck. The second mate, with flashlight in hand, found the three seated in the same place and he also returned to his post.

Five minutes later Deeley said he saw Kraft run from the steerage, pause at the rail and throw himself overboard. He gave the cry, "man overboard." The vessel was stopped and a lifeboat searched the waters for more than two hours.

At this time the Creole was just rounding Sixty Mile Point and was scarcely 100 yards from the dimly visible shore of Plaquemine Parish. It was believed Kraft had made the shore as he was a good swimmer.

Reported as Suicide.

The Creole proceeded to New Orleans, reported the man as a suicide and two days later Kraft's body was washed ashore. It was then that the theory of murder evolved from the discovery of a bullet hole through the man's heart. A three-day investigation was carried on aboard ship and Miss Orde and Epstein were held by the New Orleans police.

The Creole sailed for New York and a few hours after she had left her dock, Miss Orde is said to have made a statement incriminating the second mate. Mr. Cooper said yesterday that detectives caught the Creole as she passed Sixty Mile Point bound out, and attempted to take McGouldrick off, but Captain Sundstrom would not surrender him.

McGouldrick continued his duties on the bridge as if nothing had happened and was ready to go ashore when the Creole docked yesterday at 7:20 A. M. He was taken to Pier A and later to Police Headquarters, where he denied any knowledge of the affair and expressed eagerness to have the matter cleared up. He was later arraigned and held without bail by Magistrate Brough, pending arrival of papers from New Orleans.

Several passengers who discussed the affair told reporters that the major theory expounded to clear up the mystery was that Kraft was shot ashore. That part of Louisiana is notorious for its roughness, they said, and it is possible that Kraft reached the shore safely only to die at the hands of bootleggers or highjackers in the swampy land of the parish.

Interviewed at the Tombs after he had been committed there by Magistrate Brough for hearing next Tuesday, McGouldrick expressed the opinion that Kraft had been "a nice man, genial and good-natured." When informed that Kraft had fallen overboard, he said he was "never so surprised in my life."

He would waive extradition proceedings, he said, and asserted that he would have returned South "to get this matter straightened out whether they had arrested me or not."

POLICE VETERAN DISMISSED.

Pet Game on "Suspected Premises" Costs Raleigh His Job.

Sergeant Walter F. Raleigh, of Traffic M in Brooklyn, who has been in the Police Department for more than 20 years, has been dismissed for a breach of discipline, it was revealed yesterday in a special order issued by Commissioner Whalen.

Sergeant Raleigh, according to the findings of a trial in Brooklyn, was absent from duty. According to the charges, he "was in a room adjacent to a barroom of suspected premises, and did remove his uniform coat and cap, and engaged in a game of pool with a patrolman who also was absent from his post."

For this offense the sergeant was found guilty of violation of the rules and regulations, conduct unbecoming a superior officer, and conduct prejudicial to good order and efficiency. The name of the patrolman was not mentioned in the order.

Sergeant Raleigh's dismissal took effect on Oct. 19. He is the first member of the department holding rank higher than patrolman to be dismissed under Mr. Whalen's administration. Raleigh lives at 1,326 Sterling Place, Brooklyn. He was appointed patrolman in 1909 and sergeant on July 2, 1928. He would have been eligible to voluntary retirement on a pension in less than five years, but by his dismissal he loses all rights to a pension.

Orchid Growing Enters Ranks of Big Business, As Bound Brook Nursery Sells for $2,500,000

The orchid, aristocrat of flowers, famed for its bizarre forms and brilliant coloration, appeared in a new rôle yesterday when it took its place in the ranks of big business. The orchid nurseries started twenty-two years ago at Bound Brook, N. J., by Thomas Young, have been acquired, it was learned, by the Selected Industries, Inc., and the Reyburn Company, Inc., for $2,500,000.

Orchid culture was virtually unknown in this country until after the Civil War. It had been started first in England in 1820. But today there are many fine public and private collections in the United States and high prices have been paid for single rare specimens.

The Thomas Young Nurseries now occupy a tract of fifty acres at Bound Brook. More than thirty-five acres of this tract are occupied by greenhouses containing 135,000 flowering specimens. Some of these specimens are exceedingly rare and are valued at from $100 to $700 apiece. The new owners of the nurseries are planning to establish greenhouses in other parts of the country, using bulbs developed at the Bound Brook nurseries. Some of the greenhouses at Bound Brook are said to be among the largest in the world. They are more than 500 feet long.

The extreme care required in growing orchids and the fact that it takes seven years for the flower to mature is regarded by the new purchasers as a favorable factor in the marketing problem, since they believe it will reduce competition to a minimum. Ownership of the Young nurseries will be divided equally between Selected Industries and the Reyburn Company.

The acquisition of the Young nurseries, it was explained, is an outgrowth of a policy of concentration in investments adopted six months ago by the Charles D. Barney group of investment trusts and holding companies of which the Selected Industries and Reyburn Company form a part.

WOMAN SHEDS LIGHT ON $63,000 ROBBERY

Sister-in-Law Says Gallagher Told Story of Irish Legacy and Wall Street Investment.

$5,301 HIDDEN IN TRUNK

Signed Statement Leads Police to Think Armored Car Theft Was Planned for 10 Days.

A story about a legacy from Ireland and an investment in Wall Street, which led police to believe that Raymond Gallagher, wanted in connection with the theft of $63,000 from an armored payroll car in Manhattan last Thursday, had been planning the robbery for ten days, was given to the Jersey City authorities yesterday by Gallagher's sister-in-law, Mrs. Julia Cochran, 33 years old, of 116 Sherman Avenue, Jersey City.

Mrs. Cochran was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct Sunday morning after detectives found $5,301.26, believed to be part of the loot taken from the armored car which Gallagher was driving as a chauffeur for the Brinks Express Company, in a trunk in the Cochran home. At her arraignment before Judge Leo Sullivan in the First Criminal Court in Jersey City yesterday, Mrs. Cochran was held without bail for ten days.

Tells of Florida Trip.

Following her arraignment, Mrs. Cochran gave a signed statement to Inspector John Underwood of the Jersey City police, in which, according to the inspector, Mrs. Cochran said Gallagher and his wife had planned to go to Florida last Friday. Inspector Underwood said he did not believe the couple had gone to Florida, but that as a precaution the Florida police had been notified to be on the lookout for them. Underwood maintained the belief that Gallagher is in Canada, but did not make public his reasons for thinking so.

According to the inspector, Mrs. Cochran said in her signed statement that on Oct. 6 her sister, Mollie, and the latter's husband, Gallagher, called on her at her former home at 62 Cambridge Street, Jersey City, at which time Mollie said they were expecting a legacy "from the other side" (meaning Ireland) in a short time, and when it came Mrs. Cochran would get some money. The statement said the Gallaghers owed Mrs. Cochran $120 for board.

Mrs. Gallagher returned on Oct. 16, the day before the armored car disappeared from in front of the Chemical Bank and Trust Company, 165 Broadway, and gave Mrs. Cochran $50, telling her that her husband had invested some money in the stock market.

Instructed to Ship Money.

The statement said that the next night Mrs. Gallagher came once more to the Cochran home and, saying that her husband had "got some money from Wall Street," handed Mrs. Cochran a brown valise in which there was a smaller bag containing some money. Mrs. Gallagher instructed her sister to send the money to her later in a trunk, upon receiving instructions from her. It was this money, which the detectives recovered Sunday morning.

Mrs. Cochran related in her statement that Mrs. Gallagher also gave her $120 in $5 and $1 bills and loose change and said that Gallagher had obtained a new job as private chauffeur for a family whom he was to drive to Florida next day, Oct. 18. Also, Mrs. Gallagher told her sister to take some of the furnishings from their home at 354 East 125th Street. As she was leaving, Mrs. Gallagher said, "If I don't see you on Sunday night, I'll write you from Florida."

Russell Paintings Displayed.

The first exhibition in this country exclusively devoted to paintings by George Russell, Irish writer and painter known as "AE," was opened yesterday at the Hackett Galleries, 9 East Fifty-seventh Street. A few examples of Mr. Russell's poetic landscapes were included in a show of paintings by several Irish painters at the Hackett Galleries last season.

WARD CONFIDENT IN WESTCHESTER

Republican Chief Says Land Case Inquiry Will Cause Little Change in Votes.

PARTY ATTACKS LEHMAN

County Committee Advertisement Denounces Plan to "Delay" Grand Jury Hearings.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 21.—William L. Ward, for thirty-three years chairman of the Westchester County Republican Committee, expects that the Governor's investigations into actions by the County Board of Supervisors will have little effect on the normal Republican majorities at election time, he declared today. It is his opinion, he said, that the loss of a few votes this year will be more than made up in the election to follow when the voters, "knowing the supervisors were justified in their conduct of the purchase of additional court house property," for $948,000, will swing even larger majorities to the Republican candidates.

"It is only the new arrivals who don't know any better who will be affected by any reflections that may be cast on the Republican organization," said Mr. Ward. "The others know the accomplishments of past administrations and won't be influenced."

Asked if he thought it were true that the increasing number of apartment houses in the county are being largely filled with former New York Tammany voters who may vote the Democratic ticket in this county, he said "they may vote the Democratic ticket once or twice, but they learn better and come over to us. In fact, our canvasses have shown that most of the former New York Democrats who come here continue to vote the Democratic ticket in national and State elections, but swing to the Republican candidates when voting in the county election."

Land Case "Delay" Attacked.

An advertisement signed "Westchester County Republican Committee" to appear in the press attacks what is termed delay in the court house land sale inquiry by a special grand jury. The advertisement as prepared reads in part:

"Candidates for election and re-election, who are prejudiced by the implications, innuendoes and false conclusions of the report of a partisan investigator, find their demand for an immediate grand jury investigation met with the response of a partisan Acting Governor. 'Wait until after election day.'

"Cunning politics should not be permitted to obscure the real issue to be determined in Tuesday's election. That issue is: Shall Westchester continue to go on in its development under the direction of hard working, progressive, conscientious, experienced officials? If you think it should you have no alternative to the voting of the Republican ticket."

Two Mentioned as Prosecutor.

It was learned on good authority here today that Attorney General Ward has in mind Sydney A. Syme of this city and Henry Wise of New York for appointment as special prosecutor before the extraordinary grand jury to convene here next week to hear the charges made by Samuel Untermyer against the members of the Board of Supervisors who negotiated and approved the purchase of additional court house property. It was considered unlikely that Mr. Syme would take the appointment if it were offered to him. He recently was defense counsel in the Peacox murder case. The possibility of Mr. Wise accepting the appointment was not known here.

Thomas Penney Jr., First Assistant Attorney General, assigned to the Westchester case by the Attorney General, will move into the remodeled offices in the old school building across the street from the court house tomorrow. Albert Garthwaite, Superintendent of County Buildings, has provided three rooms with nearly 2,000 square feet of floor space for the investigator's purposes. It is understood that the extraordinary grand jury will sit in this building. The grand jury list will be made public on Friday.

TWO JURORS CHOSEN FOR WARDER'S TRIAL

Plea to Delay Bribery Case Against Ex-Official Till After Election Is Denied.

DEFENDANT IS CHEERFUL

Pecora Asks Talesmen If They Would Be Prejudiced Against a "Squealer's" Testimony.

Frank H. Warder, former Superintendent of Banks, who had been in public service more than thirty years, went on trial yesterday for accepting a $10,000 bribe to withhold an examination of the City Trust Company. Justice Arthur S. Tompkins presided at the Extraordinary Special and Trial Term of the Supreme Court in a room specially assigned in the old Criminal Courts building on Centre Street.

Mr. Warder appeared cheerful and unworried as he took his seat at the counsel table to play a passive rôle in the tedious task of selecting a jury. While his counsel, James I. Cuff, former Assistant District Attorney in Kings County, wrangled with talesmen, Mr. Warder leaned forward with his chin cupped in his hand. He occasionally jotted down a note on legal foolscap, or addressed a remark to counsel in the huddles over acceptance of a juror, but for the most part he was an interested but inactive spectator. Once a talesman seemed to be acceptable to him, but his counsel curtly challenged, overruling Mr. Warder's opinion, and the man left the box.

As the day wore on and Mr. Warder wearied, deeply graven lines of worry belied his early morning cheerfulness.

Two Jurors Are Chosen.

Two jurors were selected from among seventeen talesmen examined. They were:

James A. Waite, 168 West Eighty-fifth Street, insurance broker, who will be the foreman.

Herbert Thompson, 166 West Seventy-first Street, traffic manager of the Union Carbide Company.

Selection of the jury will continue this morning. Each side was allowed twenty peremptory challenges and the defense has used five and the State three.

When court opened District Attorney Banton announced that the State was ready. He then turned the conduct of the case over to Special Assistant Hiram C. Todd and Assistants Ferdinand Pecora and Harold W. Hastings.

Defense Seeks Adjournment.

Mr. Cuff, who was assisted by James A. Lynch, an associate counsel, and Henry Bright, moved for adjournment until after election. Mr. Cuff cited the decision of Judge Nott in the McManus case, saying:

"We are in the midst of a municipal election campaign and this case, regardless of its outcome, is being used in the campaign. This is no time to try this case, on the eve of an election."

Mr. Cuff had scarcely finished his brief objection to proceeding when Justice Tompkins punctuated it with:

"Objection overruled."

Then began the interminable process of weeding out twelve men who have not formed an opinion of the case and who are acceptable to both sides. Saul Abrahams of St. Paul Avenue, a manufacturer of cosmetics, was the first talesman questioned. Mr. Pecora, who examined the talesmen for the State, used practically the same questions for all witnesses. He inquired if Mr. Abrahams knew the defendant or any employes of the bank, any members of defense counsel or the District Attorney's staff or any of a list of prospective witnesses, and whether if he had formed an opinion from newspaper reading it could be abandoned and a fair verdict rendered on the evidence. Then, giving an indication of the State's case, he said:

"Would you as a juror be prejudiced against a person known as 'squealers,' that is, by that I mean a person who has turned State's evidence?"

Di Paola's Plea Put Off.

This was taken to mean that Anthony Di Paola and Frederico Ferrari, both of whom were in court to plead to indictments, will be witnesses against Warder. Their pleading on indictments returned last week was put over until tomorrow, and they left the room with their attorneys.

Mr. Pecora did not repeat the term "squealer" during the day, but it was taken up by Mr. Cuff, who used it several times. Mr. Pecora's examination was comparatively brief, and then Mr. Cuff started an extended examination including many hypothetical questions, which indicated the line of his defense. Mr. Abrahams was questioned for nearly an hour and was challenged finally for cause by the defense, which was sustained by Justice Tompkins.

Mr. Cuff in the examination of talesmen hammered at their reading of newspaper accounts of the City Trust case to learn if they had formed opinions. In questioning Mr. Abrahams he asked if the newspapers were not all against Mr. Warder, and when the talesman hesitated before answering, Mr. Cuff said:

"If you can think of any newspaper that favored my client I wish you would let me know."

Mr. Cuff also dealt extensively with the report of Moreland Commissioner Robert Moses, and inquired if Mr. Abrahams had read of a letter written by Mr. Moses to Mr. Warder betraying animus which was the motive for his report against Mr. Warder.

"We are not trying Mr. Moses," Justice Tompkins intervened in sustaining the objection of Mr. Pecora. Henceforth although Mr. Cuff inquired of every talesman about the Moses report, his questions were differently phrased.

Hints Warder Won't Testify.

"Suppose I advise my client not to take the stand in his own defense, would that influence your decision?" Mr. Cuff asked, and elaborated on it by explaining the legal presumption of innocence unless proved guilty "beyond a reasonable doubt." He also asked of each talesman:

"If a witness purchases his freedom by testifying at the expense of another man, would you give that fact due consideration in examining the testimony of such a witness?" Another question which flashed an insight into Mr. Warder's probable defense was:

"Would you consider that the defendant should be held responsible for the acts of a subordinate if he lacked knowledge of their acts?"

After examining William Loobolz, a retired accountant, of 30 West Ninety-sixth Street, the second talesman, for nearly thirty minutes, Mr. Cuff challenged him for cause. His challenge was overruled and he used the first of his peremptory challenges to remove Mr. Loobolz.

Max Cohen, a real estate dealer who lives at 835 West End Avenue, and who said that he knew Dr. Joseph Saphir, a former director of the City Trust, was accepted by the defense but peremptorily challenged by the State. He was asked by Mr. Cuff if he could spare time from his business without inconvenience for a long trial, "because of my cross-examination of witnesses."

"What do you mean by a long trial; be more specific," Justice Tompkins said.

"Well several weeks," replied Mr. Cuff.

"Ten days I predict that," said Justice Tompkins.

Paterno Acquaintance Challenged.

Morris Rainger, 97 Central Park West, a broker, was challenged by Mr. Cuff. He had admitted that he was acquainted with Joseph Paterno, who may be a witness for the State.

Mr. Waite was found satisfactory to both sides after the noon recess.

Frank F. Bailey, 2,314 Broadway, also was challenged for cause. He knows Francis Paterno, who was a director of the bank and has been indicted.

Mr. Thompson, the next talesman and the second juror, said: "I am a very poor newspaper reader. I am out of town two or three weeks at a time and never see a New York newspaper."

Lawrence J. Wall, 845 Manhattan Avenue, had decided opinions about "squealers" evidence and also about Mr. Warder's guilt and was challenged for cause. He was followed out of the door by Glenn E. Dunbar, 900 West End Avenue, who had "strong prejudices" on the case and was excused by mutual consent.

Joel M. Wachman, 685 West End Avenue, said that he knew Isidore Siegeltuch, a director now under indictment, but added that he had not seen him for eight or ten years. He was challenged by the defense.

When court adjourned Justice Tompkins warned the two jurors who were stumped in the still empty-appearing jurybox that they must not discuss the case nor read the newspapers, even the stories relating to their own selection as jurors.

CRANE YACHT RETURNS FROM THE SOUTH SEAS

Reaches Gloucester After 36,000-Mile Trip for Field Museum Specimens.

Special to The New York Times.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 21.—Dressed in pennants from bow to stern, the Illyria, 146-foot brigantine rigged yacht owned and commanded by Cornelius Crane of Chicago and Ipswich, dropped anchor here today, ending a 36,000-mile eleven months' trip through the South Seas in search of land and marine specimens for the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Crane, parents of the 24-year-old expedition leader, their daughter Florence and wives, friends and sweethearts of the Illyria's crew of eighteen men crowded the United Salt Lort Company dock as the yacht dropped anchor in the inner harbor and her skipper, Captain S. D. Boutelle, of Melrose, put off for shore. Most of the Illyria's scientific personnel as well as the expedition commander left the ship some time ago and scattered to their homes overland. Young Crane at present is honeymooning abroad.

The Illyria has brought here more than 1,000 specimens of birds, 1,000 mammals, 2,000 reptiles and amphibians and perhaps 10,000 specimens of fish for the Field Museum collection. Much of it already has been sent to Chicago from Southern American ports.

In the scientific working party which made the trip were Karl P. Schmidt of the museum, Frank C. Wordley, museum taxidermist; Dr. William Emerson of the Harvard Medical School; Dr. Albert W. Beale of Leland Stanford, botanist; Sidney S. Shurtleff, Boston, motion picture operator; Murray M. Fairbank and Charles R. Peavy, general assistants.

MERCHANTS IN DRIVE FOR SANITATION PLAN

Letters to 38 Civic Bodies Seek Cooperation for Proposed New City Department.

WOULD AMEND CHARTER

Association Aims to Fight Pollution of Waters of Rivers and Beaches.

ACTION IS NON-PARTISAN

Work to Include Development of Adequate Sewage and Garbage Disposal.

Appealing to other civic and commercial organizations for their cooperation, the Merchants' Association announced yesterday the opening of a campaign in behalf of the proposed charter amendment which would create a new city department of sanitation. The campaign is to be on a purely non-partisan basis, the association announced.

After a study of the subject by the association's committee on sanitation, public health and water supply, of which Professor Olin H. Landreth is chairman, the Merchants' Association sent letters to thirty-eight other civic and commercial organizations, in which it declared:

"The measure relates to a vital matter—the health of the people of New York. The planning of adequate and comprehensive sewage and garbage disposal systems which will free our rivers and beaches from the filth with which they are now polluted and thus rendered a menace to the thousands who use them is one of the gravest problems faced by our city. Attempts to deal with this subject in the past have been fruitless of any large accomplishment.

"The State of New Jersey has recently instituted with the Federal Government an action to prevent the dumping of garbage at sea, alleged to be a contributing cause of pollution affecting not only the New York but also the New Jersey beaches. The work of providing adequate disposal plants in order to anticipate the intolerable situation which might arise if the Federal Government should put a stop to this practice should be speeded up.

"Sanitation experts and others who have studied this matter believe that existing agencies are inadequate to deal with the problem. Those who have given most thought to the subject are in agreement that the creation of a department of sanitation, such as is now proposed, offers the greatest expectation of obtaining expeditiously a sound and comprehensive plan of relief.

"Of course you realize that this is purely a non-partisan matter. It is not in any way connected with the political fortunes of any party or any candidate for office. The subject is one which should be treated on a purely non-partisan basis. For this reason we believe that civic and commercial organizations may properly give their support to this measure."

PLANS TO SUE AS HEIR TO TIE UP HUBERT FUND

Chicago Lawyer Will Seek Writ Against Coolidge, Smith and Rosenwald, Directors.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21. Donald E. Malkes, a Chicago lawyer, announced tonight that he will file a suit in the Surrogate's Court of New York City within a few days to contest the will of Conrad Hubert.

Former President Coolidge, former Governor Alfred E. Smith and Julius Rosenwald of Chicago now have under advisement plans for the disposal of $8,000,000 of the estate left for charitable purposes. Mr. Hubert left 75 per cent of his fortune for the charity fund and 25 per cent to friends and relatives. Mr. Malkes said tonight that he would bring the action on behalf of himself and his sister, Mrs. Ely Singer of Los Angeles. They are cousins of Mr. Hubert, he said. Another party to the action, the attorney added, will be a sister of Mr. Hubert, now living in New York, but he withheld her name.

Mr. Malkes asserted that when Mr. Hubert came to the United States from Minsk, Russia, some forty-five years ago, his name was Horowitz.

The chief grounds on which the contesting suit will be based, Mr. Malkes said, will be that Mr. Hubert was mentally incompetent.

Mr. Malkes lives at the Shoreham Hotel. He is a member of the firm of Malkes & August, 100 North La Salle Street.

Former President Calvin Coolidge and Julius Rosenwald were chosen to act with former Governor Smith in collaborating with the Bankers Trust Company in the administration of the $8,000,000 charity bequest provided in the will of Conrad Hubert, it was learned a week ago.

Mr. Hubert, who was president of the Yale Electric Corporation, died at Cannes, France, in March, 1928, leaving a large fortune. In his will he provided that, after the payment of specific bequests, three-quarters of the residue should be placed in a fund to be used for educational, religious and charitable institutions. The will requested that the distribution of the fund be directed by three representative men of prominence.

Mr. Coolidge, a Republican and a Protestant; Mr. Smith, a Roman Catholic and a Democrat, and Mr. Rosenwald, philanthropist, of the Jewish faith, were chosen. Since July they have been holding conferences once a month at the Bankers Trust Company and the Bankers' Trust officials said they were ready to make public their program.

Will Rogers's Favorites At the Edison Celebration

To the Editor of The New York Times:

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 21.—What a day and what a bunch of men! A lot of my favorites were there, Owen D. Young, my favorite Democrat; Julius Rosenwald, my favorite philanthropist, who I tried to touch for a donation for the farmers, said "My generosity is under complete control"; Charley Schwab, my favorite optimist; Jimmy Girard, my favorite Democratic treasurer, who was selling Edison cigar lighters to make up the Democratic deficit, and my favorite illustrator, Charles Dana Gibson, who was using Jane Addams and I as a model; my favorite boss, Mr. Ochs, and my favorite father of polo players, Mr. Firestone.

It rained all day, but otherwise it was dry. In fact, it was the dryest wet day a lot of these prominent men had ever experienced. I kept looking for Miss Willebrandt.

Horses and carriages to drive you all over this old reproduced village. Everybody was wondering where Ford got all the old cabs and horses. I was wondering where he got the hats the cabmen wore. It was just like a big country picnic. No matter how big they were they all felt humble and about the same in comparison with the man they were honoring, Mr. Edison. It was a great tribute conceived and marvelously carried out by another great man.

Tonight is the banquet and if I don't get seated properly there is going to be another social row.

Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

JOCELYNE BUSH WED TO DUKE OF CIRELLA

Ceremony Is Performed in Rome —Bridegroom Gave Up Diplomatic Career to Marry.

ROME, Oct. 21 (AP).—Miss Jocelyne Bush, daughter of Mrs. Henry Sturgis Bush of Boston and Philadelphia, was married to Don Fabrizio Gonzaga, Duke of Cirella, this morning in the Church of San Camillo.

Mgr. Burke, rector of the American College in Rome, performed the ceremony.

After a honeymoon trip, the couple will live in Rome.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—The Duke of Cirella is a graduate of the Italian Government College of Diplomacy and was in the diplomatic service when he met Miss Bush two years ago. Last Spring the engagement was announced. It was soon broken off with no reason given.

The duke left the diplomatic service and his engagement to the American débutante was once more reported.

It was learned that Mussolini disapproved of a marriage between any nobleman of his service and a foreigner. The duke had cut the Gordian knot by renouncing his career. The youthful peer "went into trade," thereby closing many doors of Italy against him.

Announcement of the engagement was made by Mrs. Bush, formerly of 214 Beacon Street, Chestnut Hill, who is living in Rome.

Mrs. Bush's sister, Mrs. James C. Hopkins of 146 Marlboro Street, sailed Oct. 4 for Italy to attend the wedding.

A sister of the bride, Miss Lucretia Goddard Bush, is an opera singer, and another sister, Miss Polly Bush, is actively engaged in the brokerage business.

Princeton Freshmen Disdain Brains in Girls; Vote Shows Ideal Is for Beauty and Dance

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 21.—Intelligence is just about the last thing a Princeton freshman likes to find in a girl, if any generalization can be drawn from a vote recently taken among the 490 freshmen here. The vote also indicated that, to the mass mind, constancy was a rather trivial consideration, and that if a girl was beautiful or if she was a good dancer or a ready conversationalist she could be a nitwit for all it mattered to the majority of the first-year men.

The freshmen were asked to name "the most essential quality in the ideal girl." Seventy-four, the largest number to agree on any single quality, decided that the one most essential was "physical beauty." Sixty-five, less esthetically inclined, voted for "personality." The third highest vote, forty-five, went to "ability to dance well." "Good sense and humor" appealed to thirty-four of the youthful Princetonians as most essential.

Thirty-one favored an "interesting conversationalist." "Constancy" came in fifth with twenty-nine votes. Twenty-four of the freshmen looked upon "brains" as most essential. Only eighteen of the freshmen admitted that their taste was influenced by money; they voted for "wealth."

Sixteen came to the conclusion that the most essential quality in the ideal girl was "abstinence from drinking." Nine arrived at the conclusion that a girl was ideal if she didn't smoke. Sixty-five gave up determination of the "ideal girl" as a bad job and didn't vote.

The freshmen did not confine their voting to the "ideal girl" but also voted on why they came to Princeton. Less than half came for an education, the count being 226. One hundred and thirty gave their inducement to matriculate here as "Princeton's name and reputation." One hundred came for "social contacts and social advantages." Nine ascribed their presence here to family tradition; fifty to "the Princeton spirit and honor system."

EX-GOV. CATTS TRIED AS A COUNTERFEITER

Prosecutor at Tampa, Fla., Alleges Ex-Governor Furnished $5,000 to Bogus Money Ring.

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 21 (AP).—Sidney J. Catts, war-time Governor of Florida and twice since a candidate for that office, went on trial in the Federal court today on charges of aiding and abetting an alleged counterfeiting ring that Federal operatives say had made counterfeit $100 Federal Reserve notes with the intention of disposing of them in New York City.

Catts is under two Federal indictments, including nine counts of aiding and abetting the operations of the ring.

The day's activities included the selection of a jury and the outlining by W. J. Froelich of the government's course of action. Froelich and Alfred Page of the Attorney General's office in Washington are assisting District Attorney W. F. Hughes of Jacksonville in the prosecution.

The former Governor was indicted in April in connection with the counterfeiting. Indicted at the same time were Julian Diaz, a Tampa lawyer, who is serving a five-year term in the Atlanta Penitentiary for counterfeiting; Leah Burwell, Diaz's secretary; Mateor Mir and Armando Dominguez.

Diaz was brought here as a witness in the Catts trial, along with Miss Burwell, who is out on bond pending trial. The government attorneys indicated that Mir and Dominguez would be called.

The aged former Governor sat through the day's session, with apparently little interest in the proceeding, beside his son, Rozier. Another son, Sidney J. Catts Jr., of the defense counsel, sat with his attorneys.

Mr. Froelich said the government would introduce evidence to show that Catts had furnished $5,000 to finance the operations of the counterfeiters under the direction of Diaz.

SOUGHT TO SHOOT BRIAND.

Man Who Wounded French Deputy Adm. Design Against Premier.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CHAUMONT, France, Oct. 21.—Ernest Grappin, who shot and seriously wounded Deputy Paul Dumaine in his office here Saturday, confessed to the police today he had sought on previous occasions to shoot Premier Briand but was prevented by crowds in the street from getting close enough to the Premier.

He explained that his shooting of M. Dumaine was in protest against the Deputy's vote recently in favor of evacuation of the Rhineland. He acknowledged violent resentment against the Locarno and other pacts, which he regards as anti-nationalist and detrimental to France's best interests.

He has been taken to a hospital for mental observation to determine whether he is responsible for his acts.

SUCCESS TEACHERS FACE WRIT TODAY

Head of Monjar & Co. Consents to Injunction Forbidding Sale of Memberships or Stock.

BUT DENIES ANY FRAUD

Federal Grand Jury to Supplement State Action by Own Inquiry Into Methods of Company.

An injunction prohibiting Hugh B. Monjar and associates in H. B. Monjar & Co., Inc., from selling stock in their concern and from further enrolling subscribers pending the Federal grand jury investigation of their organization will be sought in the Supreme Court today by Assistant Attorney General Watson Washburn, in charge of the Bureau of Frauds of the Attorney General of New York State.

Mr. Washburn announced yesterday, following a conference with Mr. Monjar's attorney, Benjamin A. Hartstein, that Mr. Monjar had consented to the injunction.

The order which Mr. Washburn will submit to a Supreme Court justice for his signature does not prohibit the Monjar organization from holding meetings of its members. Its members, for the most part, are young men who are promised by the concern that for a membership fee of $10 and monthly dues of $3 it will undertake to develop their latent qualities for success and financial advancement.

If the Federal grand jury investigation, which begins today, should result in giving Mr. Monjar and his associates a clean bill of health, according to Mr. Washburn, Mr. Monjar, through his attorney, might then make application to vacate the temporary injunction. In such event he would be questioned fully concerning the activities of himself and his associates.

Mr. Hartstein said that his client did not admit guilt, but consented merely to facilitate the investigation by both State and Federal authorities. He told Mr. Washburn that if he insisted upon calling Mr. Monjar and his associates for examination in the Frauds Bureau he would advise his clients to stand on their constitutional rights and refuse to testify.

Assistant United States Attorney George J. Mintzer said that Mr. Monjar and his associates would appear before the Federal grand jury today.

5 Czarist Generals Executed; Charged With Anti-Red Plot

By The Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Oct. 21.—Five former generals in the imperial army, named Mikhailov, Vyasochansky, Dymman Dekhanov and Schulga, were executed by a firing squad today.

They were charged with promoting a counter-revolutionary movement whose chief aim was to weaken the Red army and pave the way for foreign intervention.

A number of other defendants were sent to concentration camps for varying periods of hard labor. It was charged that they were connected with war industries of Soviet Russia and had maintained an elaborate espionage system.

TAUSZIG AND WIFE FILE DIVORCE STIPULATION

Daughter of William Fox Will Amend Complaint—Husband Will Withdraw Answer.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Oct. 21.—A stipulation was filed here today with Supreme Court Justice Lewis L. Fawcett in which Douglas W. Tauszig agrees to withdraw his answer to the complaint of his wife, Mona F. Tauszig, that he was guilty of misconduct on Dec. 12, 1928. Mrs. Tauszig who is the daughter of William Fox, theatrical magnate, agrees, on the other hand, to amend her complaint by eliminating therefrom all allegations of misconduct beyond Dec. 18, 1928. It is also agreed in the stipulation that all the testimony adduced on behalf of the plaintiff at the trial about any incident subsequent to Dec. 18, 1928, shall be expunged from the record.

Other stipulations include an agreement that if a divorce is granted in the undefended suit there is to be no alimony or counsel fee and that the question of the custody of the son, William Fox Tauszig, is to be decided by Justice Fawcett in Kings County on Nov. 12.

Mrs. Tauszig testified today that she was married on May 27, 1923, at 316 West Ninety-third Street, Manhattan, and that the son was the only child born of the marriage.

JEWISH WOMEN HERE PLAN FOR CONVENTION

Triennial Meeting of National Council to Be Held in Los Angeles, Jan. 12-17.

Plans for the triennial convention of the National Council of Jewish Women, to be held in Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 12 to 17, 1930, was the principal topic at the annual meeting of the council's board of managers, which opened at the Hotel Roosevelt yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Joseph E. Friend, president of the board, in her opening address, announced the convention dates.

A recommendation that "twenty women of prominence and ability" be appointed as an advisory council to assist the president in adjusting the organization to meet new social conditions was made by Mrs. Estelle M. Sternberger, executive secretary, who said:

"We created a magnificent instrument of service to Judaism and humanity thirty-six years ago, but like all instruments it must be changed constantly to meet the test of newly discovered facts.

"We are carrying the responsibility of making the National Council of Jewish Women responsive to the spirit of our day."

Mrs. Sternberger also recommended that the council affiliate with the organization of Jewish women effected at Hamburg last June, where she went as a delegate.

Mrs. Nathan Bissenman of New Orleans submitted to the board a proposed budget to lay before the larger body, including provision for wider activity by the department of vocational guidance and employment of the council. The newly formed group is surveying employment problems that are said to face Jewish women in some cities of the United States.

These proposals and others will be acted upon by the board at later meetings, the next of which will be held this morning at the same place.

Southern Railway's Pension Plan.

The article in yesterday's New YORK TIMES dealing with the ex parte pension, accident and health plan of the Southern Railway Employes' Pension Association erroneously inferred in the headline that the railway company itself would pay the premiums. The plan originated with the Employes' Pension Association, the members of which will meet the entire cost of the benefits to be provided. The Southern Railway Company has consented to aid in the operation of the pension plan.

16,431 Pay $101,173 to See Palestine Bouts; Abad Outpointed by Singer

Bronx Star Scores a Decisive Triumph in Main Bout at Palestine Fund Show.

GOLDSTEIN STOPS RENO

East Sider Drops Rival in the Third Round — Berg Gains Decision Over Flowers.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

Al Singer, Jack Berg, Ruby Goldstein, Yale Okun and Maxie Rosenbloom romped off with victories last night in Madison Square Garden and the Palestine Emergency Fund got a handsome profit. These five boxers were the winners in as many bouts which constituted one of the greatest boxing cards ever held here for charity. Each bout was scheduled for ten rounds but one ended in the third.

The show was for the benefit of the stricken Jews of the Holy Land and 16,431 paid $101,173 to see it. Samuel Rosoff, wealthy subway contractor, who, with Mayor Walker, Chairman James A. Farley of the State Athletic Commission, Dr. W. I. Sirovich, David A. Brown and Walter Weinstein constituted the committee which directed the undertaking, announced that the profit for the fund would be $75,000.

Men and women from all walks of life were in the throng. A group of 1,000 disabled veterans of the World War were there as guests of Mr. Rosoff and some of his friends.

Notables Among the Patrons.

Prominent among those present were Judge Ben Shalleck, James Gaffney, Judge Max S. Levine, Alderman Ed Sullivan, Judge Otto A. Rosalsky, Magistrate Henry Goodman, Deputy Fire Commissioner Joseph Hannon, S. L. Rothafel (Roxy), ex-Supreme Court Justice Jeremiah T. Mahoney, Dudley Field Malone, Harry Perry, the Rev. Father Francis P. Duffy, Judge William F. McAndrews, Judge George Donnellan, James Hines and Tammany Leader John F. Curry.

Also, John J. McGraw, Congressman William I. Sirovich, William F. Dwyer, Judge Aaron J. Levy, Congressman W. W. Cohen, J. Henry Schroeder, United States Attorney Tuttle, Murray Hulbert, Albert Ottinger, A. E. Lefcourt, Gene Pope, Jules Brulatour, Miss Hope Hampton, Stanley Rosoff, Sheriff Charles A. Culkin, John J. Martin, Henry Lazarus, Benjamin Winter, Borough President Julius Miller and John F. McCooey.

These onlookers and the thousands of others saw Singer score another spectacular victory when he defeated Davey Abad, rugged Panama lightweight, in the feature, winning the decision after almost knocking out Abad in the ninth round.

They watched Berg add his third victory over Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle lightweight, when the English lad gained the decision in the semi-final. They saw Ruby Goldstein, east side idol, knock out Joe Reno of Trenton, in the third round in the night's most spectacular victory, and watched patiently while Yale Okun, east side light-heavyweight, scored a decision over Matt Adgie of Philadelphia. And they looked on as Maxie Rosenbloom, Harlem light heavyweight, pounded out a decision over Joe Sekyra, Dayton, Ohio.

Singer Emphasizes Ability.

Singer conquered one of the most awkward foes he has ever tackled and did it in a manner which emphasized the sterling ability of this little fellow from the Bronx. He outboxed, outfought and outgeneraled Abad, winning nine of the ten rounds.

The only round Abad won was the seventh, when he battered Singer's body hard with both hands and worried the latter with rights and lefts which grazed the jaw. Not until the ninth was Singer successful in his quest of an opening for a vital blow. It came, however, and like a flash Singer shot a right to the jaw which sent the Panama lad down for a count of eight. Singer weighed 131 pounds and Abad 130.

Berg scored a typical Berg victory over Flowers, although the decision was not popular with some of the crowd. Fighting a characteristic battle, Berg never stopped pumping rights and lefts at his foe, with the result that he won six of the ten rounds.

Crowd Cheers Goldstein.

Goldstein, who weighed 132¼ pounds to his opponent's 144½, ended his clash with Reno in a manner that sent the crowd into a burst of cheering. From the sound of the first bell till the end Goldstein resembled the fighter of his earlier days.

Hesitating not at all, the east-sider ripped right into his rival at the start and stung Reno through the first two rounds with pulverizing rights and lefts to the head and body. At the start of the third Goldstein hooked solid lefts to the body and followed with a left to the head. A right to the jaw almost upset Reno and another dropped him for a count of nine. Reno arose dazed. Goldstein landed a right to the face and Referee Arthur Donovan stopped the fight.

Okun, much more clever than Adgie, simply played with the Philadelphia boxer, who was constantly on the retreat throughout the match. Toward the closing moments Adgie was floundering helplessly. Okun weighed 171 pounds and Adgie 172½.

Rosenbloom, Harlem's eccentric light-heavyweight, provided the first thrill of the evening by his decisive triumph over Sekyra. It was a rattling battle, crowded with exciting moments, the rivals fighting over every inch of the ring and through every second of the match. Rosenbloom weighed 171½ pounds and Sekyra 174.

SHIKAT IS VICTOR IN FEATURE ON MAT

Triumphs When Zelesniak Plunges Through Ropes and Is Dazed—Time Is 22:15.

McMillan and Manich Draw in Opening Show at 71st Regiment Armory —Judson Pins LaDietze.

Richard Shikat of Philadelphia defeated Vanka Zelesniak of New York in 22 minutes and 13 seconds of the main bout of the opening wrestling show of the season at the 71st Regiment Armory last night. The bout was scheduled to a finish. A crowd of 5,000 persons witnessed the contests.

Shikat showed himself to be too fast and shifty for Zelesniak. The latter could not keep any holds on the Philadelphian for Shikat crawled out as fast as Zelesniak tried to apply them. The bout came to a sudden ending when Shikat sidestepped a lunge by Zelesniak, who went through the ropes and hit his head on the floor. In a few seconds Zelesniak crawled back into the ring in a slightly dazed condition and the referee waved them apart, giving Shikat the victory. Shikat weighed 216 and Zelesniak 214.

In the thirty-minute semi-final, Jim McMillan of the University of Illinois and George Manich of New York grappled to a draw. It was a whirlwind bout throughout, McMillan using a flying tackle as his chief weapon, with the result that he was out of the ring five times and Manich outside of the ropes thrice. McMillan outweighed Manich, 215 to 208.

Frank Judson of Boston, former Harvard wrestling coach, threw Rudy LaDietze of Poughkeepsie in 5 minutes and 3 seconds of a thirty-minute bout. LaDietze scaled 209 and Judson 202. In the opening thirty-minute skirmish, Harry Glick of New York threw Hugh Mitchell of Montreal in 8 minutes and 7 seconds. Both weighed 147.

George Calza, 236, of Italy threw Cliff Binkley, 215, of Columbus, Ohio, in eight minutes and five seconds of another thirty-minute match. Calza simply toyed with his opponent, then applied three flying mares and two headlocks which enabled him to pin Binkley easily.

GOLDMAN BEATS HELLER IN ST. NICHOLAS RING

Gains Verdict in Feature of New-Talent Program—Coccaro Outpoints Losansky.

Harry Goldman, east side lightweight, defeated Bobby Heller of Brighton Beach in the main four-round bout of the new talent card at the St. Nicholas Arena last night. A crowd of 1,500 witnessed the program, which comprised eleven bouts, each scheduled for four sessions.

Goldman boxed skillfully and, despite his rival's willingness to slug, managed to win handily. The weights were 135 for Goldman and 130 for Heller.

In the semi-final Tony Coccaro, 122, defeated Johnny Losansky, 123, after a spirited struggle. Tony Gioia, 118, gained the decision over Harry Lentz, 118½, and Charley Cohen, 115¾, outpointed Dan London, 115¾.

Harry Barron, 128½ pounds, of Brooklyn displayed considerable hitting ability to knock out Ernest Furdy, 129½ pounds, of Harlem in two rounds. Barron dropped his rival for a count of nine in the first session. Benny Ricciardo, 156½ pounds, knocked out Dick Terry, 152 pounds, in two rounds, while in the opening bout Lew Green, 112½ pounds, outpointed Eddie Nelson, 107½ pounds.

Abe Lifshitz, east side heavyweight, knocked out Kris Kirschi in two rounds. The loser weighed 183¾ and his rival 191½.

Danny Dolman, 136, stopped Al Palma, 138, in the second session, and George Unison, 129½, held Frank Greco, 130, to a draw. Bill Eskowitz, 143½, stopped Harris Harrington, 146, with a right to the jaw in two rounds.

H. B. SHAW SECOND WITH 85

Cunningham, With 75, Wins Net Prize in Special Medal Play Event at Winged Foot.

Special to The New York Times.

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Oct. 21.—A call to jury duty at White Plains prevented John G. Anderson, the defending champion, from meeting Walter Purcell, winner of the qualifying medal, in their final-round match of the seventeenth annual New York A. C. golf tournament scheduled for today at the Winged Foot Club. The title match was postponed, but the other sixteens and beaten eights played off their matches.

Purcell gained some consolation for his trip by winning the low gross prize in a special medal play competition. A field of thirty-six participated and no one lowered the 82 scored by Purcell. The next best gross total was 85, made by Hollis B. Shaw.

Shaw's brother, James E., appeared the likely winner of the low net prize, having a net 76, the result of a 90 and 14 handicap, but Harry Cunningham turned in 100—25—75 to take the honors.

36-HOLE MEDAL PLAY SET FOR PUBLIC LINKS

Tourney Over Bronx Courses Starts Sunday—Trophy Offered for Qualifiers.

Public links golfers who are in the habit of playing most of their rounds over Bronx Borough courses will be eligible to compete in a thirty-six hole medal play tourney starting Sunday, providing they are holders of season permits issued by the Park Commissioner of the Bronx.

Eighteen holes of medal play is on the program for Sunday on any of the three courses, Pelham, Mosholu and Van Cortlandt Park, and on Nov. 10 the final eighteen holes for the qualifiers will be held at Mosholu.

J. Clarence Davies has offered a trophy, and through the Bronx Park Department and officials of the New York Municipal Golf Association the arrangements have been made. No definite number of qualifiers has been announced, but the committee will determine later the final number who will compete at Mosholu. Sunday's competition will serve as a qualifying round and on Nov. 10 the player with the best net score will be the winner. Handicaps for the concluding round will be set by the committee.

Registration will close on Friday and entrants are to register at the berth at the first tee of each course.

FRIEDMAN IS VICTOR OVER DR. HAYMANN

Boston Heavyweight Outpoints German in Slow 10-Round Bout in Newark.

Al Friedman of Boston, heavyweight, defeated Dr. Ludwig Haymann of Germany in the main bout of ten rounds last night at the Laurel Garden, Newark. Friedman weighed 190 pounds, Dr. Haymann 196.

In the opening bout Fred Fraser, 123½, Newark, knocked out Ray Miller, 120, Morristown, in 2:08 of the opening round. Midget Herman, 148, Orange, was awarded the first ten-round bout over Johnnie De Marco, 148½, Philadelphia, in the eighth round. Referee Hymie Kugal sent De Marco to his corner for clowning throughout the bout.

Lou Halper, 140½, Newark, received the decision over Willie Smallwald, 145, New Brunswick, in an eight-round semi-final.

YANGUARD TO START FOR GOLF TOURNEYS

Mehlhorn, Wood and Burke Depart Tomorrow for First Open at Oklahoma City.

LARGE PURSES LURE STARS

Prize Money for Nineteen Fall and Winter Events Will Total Close to $125,000.

By LINCOLN A. WERDEN.

A modern caravan starting west these days differs considerably from one of the gold rush days, for the niblick and the mashie have supplanted the spade and shovel, and the personnel includes those who expect to gain their fortune through golf and not from the natural resources of the West. Tomorrow the leaders in the golfing parade start the Winter tour.

Bill Mehlhorn, the metropolitan open champion; Craig Wood and Bill Burke will leave the city tomorrow for the Oklahoma City open and the first of the string of tournaments that will carry the party through the West, to the Hawaiian Islands, to Mexico, through the South, until they head north again for home at the end of March.

Nineteen tournaments, beside the P. G. A. championship at Los Angeles in December, with prize money totaling close to $125,000, is the immediate reason why these men are going west. Al Espinosa, his brother Abe, Tommy Armour, Ed Dudley, Joe Kirkwood and Dan Williams are also expected to be at Oklahoma City when the play starts Friday, and week by week other professionals are expected to be added to the list of travelers.

Hagen to Join Group.

Walter Hagen and Horton Smith, who are touring the Pacific Northwest, will join the group in time for the Portland (Ore.) open at Portland on Oct. 31, and by the time December arrives the leading knights of the links will have mustered their full quota of the tour, as Johnny Farrell, Bobby Cruickshank, Gene Sarazen, Johnny Golden, Henry Ciuci, Tom Kerrigan, W. H. (Wiffy) Cox, George McLean, Joe Turnesa, Tony Manero, Herman Barron and others from the metropolitan district reach Los Angeles either for the P. G. A. or the succeeding tournaments.

Farrell intends to make the major part of the trip instead of going directly to Florida as in other years, and it is also expected that Sarazen will go to Mexico for the new Agua Caliente open. With the richest purse in golf, $25,000 in prize money this tournament, which is scheduled for Jan. 14-17, will eclipse even the $15,000 La Gorce Miami Beach open that is listed at the end of March.

Majority to Cover Circuits.

Although a number of professionals will take part in individual events, especially Macdonald Smith, who will be on hand to defend his laurels in the $10,000 Los Angeles open, most of the others will make the entire swing around the so-called circuit.

The tentative schedule of open golf tournaments—one or two additions are expected to be made later—is as follows:

Oct. 25-27—Oklahoma City open, purse, $4,000; Oct. 31-Nov. 2—Portland (Ore.) open, $4,500.

Nov. 15-17—Honolulu open, Hawaiian Islands, $6,000; Nov. 25-30—Berkeley, Cal., $4,000. (Dec. 2-7—P. G. A. championships, Hillcrest C. C., Los Angeles.)

Dec. 12-15—Catalina open, $7,500; Dec. 17-18—San Gabriel (amateur-pro), $1,000; Dec. 20-22—Pasadena (Cal.) open, $4,000.

Jan. 3-5—Long Beach (Cal.) open, $5,000; Jan. 9-12—Los Angeles open, $10,000; Jan. 14-17—Agua Caliente open, Mexico, $25,000; Jan. 24-26—El Paso open, Texas, $3,000; Jan. 30-Feb. 2, San Antonio open, $7,500, Feb. 7-9, Waco open, $3,500; Feb. 13-15—Pensacola, Fla., $5,000; Feb. 20-22—Savannah open, $5,000; Feb. 27-March 1—Jacksonville open, $3,000.

March 5-10—Miami four-ball tourney, $5,000; March 20-22—Miami Beach-La Gorce, $15,000; March 27-28—North and South open, Pinehurst, $5,000.

SHAWKEY TO SIGN AS PILOT TOMORROW

Newly Appointed Yankee Manager to Assume Duties Immediately, Barrow Declares.

HARGRAVE SOUGHT BY CLUB

Former Cincinnati Catcher Has Option of Continuing With St. Paul or Signing With Yanks.

By LINCOLN A. WERDEN.

Bob Shawkey, recently appointed manager of the New York Yankees, will report at the Yankee offices tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock to sign his contract and officially take up his new duties, it was announced yesterday by Business Manager Ed Barrow.

Shawkey, who was off on a hunting trip in Canada at the time Colonel Ruppert announced his appointment last week, is now returning to New York.

Regarding a report current in local baseball circles yesterday that the Yankees planned to sign Bubbles Hargrave, former Cincinnati catcher, Barrow stated this was a matter that also would be taken up tomorrow when Hargrave, in accordance with an agreement already reached with the St. Paul Club, would receive his choice of continuing as manager of St. Paul or signing with the Yankees.

Shawkey Gives Plans.

Special to The New York Times.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Oct. 21.—"We will probably iron out the flaws on the left side of the team and overhaul the pitching staff," said Bob Shawkey, new manager of the New York club in the American League, when he passed through this city en route to New York.

CHANGE SPEED RULE FOR CRUISER RACES

Owners' Statement to Be Accepted Under New Past Performance Regulations.

WEEK OF MEETINGS BEGINS

Handicap Board of A. P. B. A. Adopts Measures Designed to Stimulate Interest.

With the most successful season of racing in recent years to look back upon, the Cruiser Handicap Board of the American Power Boat Association opened a week of motor boat meetings at the Columbia Yacht Club on the North River at Eighty-sixth Street last night and adopted a number of measures intended further to stimulate interest in cruiser contests, which will be submitted to the A. P. B. A. meeting on Thursday.

The changes in the rating rule put through last year worked so successfully that it was unanimously agreed to adhere to them and then the delegates proceeded to consider other ways to spur racing interest. Perhaps the most important suggestion which is expected to open up the contest applies to the past performance handicap regulations.

It was voted to race all boats on the owners' statement of speed under temporary certificates and eliminate all allusion to permanent certificates. This will allow the owner to designate his speed differently for each race if he so chooses.

Other Suggestions Adopted.

To expedite the work of the regatta committee it was agreed that such statements must be submitted forty-eight hours before each race.

Other suggestions adopted were a change in the deed of gift of the cruiser championship of America event, raising the waterline length from forty-five to fifty feet, and the deletion of the rule applying to the ridding of the wave of an overtaking and passing boat.

C. F. Chapman, secretary of the Racing Commission of the American Power Boat Association, presided. Commodore Henry A. Jackson was secretary of the meeting. Others present were:

Frank V. Boerick, E. A. Jimenis, E. H. Tucker, Frederick R. Still, president of the American Power Boat Association; W. H. Young, Theodore W. Bingham, G. de Forest Larner, Otto E. von Au, Alan Gray, Don J. Lowell, Harold G. Drysdale, Leston W. Cloak, Henry Clay Foster and F. W. Hornberger.

Plan Another Meeting.

It also was decided that another meeting of the board would be called by the chairman, probably around show week in January, when next season's schedule and other matters will be discussed. Since the decisions of the board are generally accepted by the parent body, those made last night are tantamount to having been adopted.

The second of the American Power Boat Association meetings will be held tonight, also at the Columbia Yacht Club, when the outboard division assemble at 8 o'clock. In view of the rapid rise of outboard competition and the quasi-experimental stage in which the sport still remains, there doubtless will be many lively discussions.

LERIAN OF PHILLIES DIES AFTER ACCIDENT

BALTIMORE, Tuesday, Oct. 22 (AP).—Walter (Peck) Lerian, Philadelphia National League catcher, died early this morning from injuries sustained yesterday afternoon when he was struck by a truck which vaulted a sidewalk and drove him against a brick building.

A blood transfusion was resorted to shortly before midnight in a vain effort to save the athlete's life. John Mooney, a former sand-lot baseball player in the days when Peck was playing with the St. Martin's club, gave a pint of blood for the transfusion.

Lerian was struck while he was walking along the street. Police said that Charles Lloyd, driver of the truck, swerved to avoid a collision with another machine and ran onto the sidewalk, crushing Lerian against a building, inflicting internal injuries, severe body bruises and breaking one leg.

Lloyd was arrested, as well as August Meyers, driver of the machine which Lloyd was avoiding at the time of the accident. Both were released on their own recognizance for a hearing tomorrow. Lloyd was charged with reckless driving and Meyers with failing to give right of way.

Signed With Jack Dunn.

PHILADELPHIA, Tuesday, Oct. 22 (AP).—Walter Lerian came to the Philadelphia Nationals from the New Haven club of the Eastern League in 1928.

He caught in 104 games for the Phillies during the 1929 season and his batting average slumped to .222 after he had gathered a .272 batting mark in ninety-six games during his first year with the club. In the 1929 campaign he connected for sixty-one hits, including six home runs, and batted home thirty-one runs.

Lerian began his baseball career ten years ago with St. Martin's Catholic Club of Baltimore. He signed with the late Jack Dunn, manager of the Baltimore Orioles, when he was 17 and the next year went South for training with the International League team. Later he was farmed out to the York team of the New York-Pennsylvania League and then went to New Haven.

FORMER BASEBALL MAN DIES

J. F. Moran, Ex-Owner of Jersey City Club, Succumbs at 51.

Joseph F. Moran, for many years the owner of the Jersey City Club of the International League, died at his home, 468 Park Avenue, yesterday. He was owner of the Jersey City team until 1924, when he sold out his interests at a price reported at $75,000, the new purchasers being a syndicate headed by Former Fire Commissioner Patrick J. Dennelly, who, with his sons, now controls the club.

Moran was 51 years of age and was born in Jersey City. He is survived by his widow. He had been an official of the Atlantic Basin Iron Works, Jersey City, for many years.

Jerry Laflamme Will Coach Montreal Maroon Hockey Team

MONTREAL, Oct. 21.—Dr. Jerry Laflamme, former National Hockey League referee, today agreed to coach the Montreal Maroons' team. The Maroons postponed practice at the Forum today, due to the poor condition of the ice.

Laflamme has been identified in hockey circles for several years and has a wide circle of acquaintances among followers of the professional ice sport.

HOCKEY CAMP DATES SET FOR 2 TEAMS

SQUADS TO BEGIN TRAINING

Practice Period to Be Unusually Important Because of Change in Playing Rules.

By GROVER THEIS.

Definite dates for reporting to the training camps of the Ranger and American hockey squads at Springfield, Mass., and New Haven, Conn., were set yesterday and the players began preparations for their departure from their scattered homes, principally in Canada, to launch the preliminary grind for the fast-approaching season which will open locally on Nov. 17 at Madison Square Garden.

Manager Lex Patrick has summoned his Blue Shirts and the Indian farm squads to assemble at Springfield on Friday. Playing Manager Lionel Conacher and the Star-Spangled troupe will meet at New Haven next Monday. The first few days in both camps will be devoted to setting-up exercises and by the time the ice is ready the players will be in shape to put on skates.

The training period this year assumes unusual importance because of the change in the playing rules adopted by the National Hockey League, which may require certain realignments, since men who fitted into the old scheme may be excelled by others in the more open game under the so-called Western regulations.

Many Regulars on Squad.

Both the Rangers and the Americans have virtually all of last year's regulars again, though in certain instances a little dickering remains to be done before terms are agreed upon. The most notable absentee is Taffy Abel of the Ranger defense, who is now with the Chicago Black Hawks, but Patrick again will have Frankie Boucher, the two Cooks, Ching Johnson, Leo Bourgault, Sparky Vail, John Ross Roach and Murray Murdock. Russ Oatman of last year's squad also will be missing, having been returned to the minors.

The most likely candidates from whom Rangers may be developed are Yip Foster, Buddy Maracle, Goldy Goldsworthy of the Indians and Leo Quenneville of the defunct Newark Bulldogs.

However, it is understood that Patrick intends to scramble Rangers and Indians indiscriminately during the early training stages and then pick his major team from those who are best suited to the new style of game.

Conacher Is Confident.

On the other hand, Conacher apparently seems pretty well satisfied that his men will accommodate themselves readily, though this is no guarantee that new faces will not replace the regulars.

Apparently there have been few deals by the American management, but this seeming inactivity may prove merely a cloak. Colonel John S. Hammond, to the contrary, has been exceptionally busy lining up new men, most of whom probably will wind up on the Indian squad, the farm team having slipped last year from two successive championships in the Can-Am League to fourth place.

MENDES KNOCKS OUT COOK.

Australian's Claim of Foul in New Bedford Bout Disallowed.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Oct. 21 (AP).—Jimmy Mendes of this city scored a knockout over George Cook of Australia in the fourth round of a ten-round bout here tonight. Cook went down from a left hook to the body and claimed a foul, which was disallowed.

Two doctors examined Cook and found no indications of a foul. He was ordered to resume fighting, but refused, and the bout was awarded to Mendes on a knockout. Cook's money was held up by the deputy commissioner. Cook weighed 191, Mendes 177.

Knocks Out Rival in Second Round in Sioux City Bout.

ALEKHINE EXPLAINS OPENING VARIATION

MOVE PARTIALLY BLOCKED

Bogoljubow Met Some Success on Twelfth Move of Sixteenth Game at Berlin.

By Dr. ALEXANDRE ALEKHINE, World's Chess Champion.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES. All Rights Reserved.

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—The sixteenth game of my match with Bogoljubow was especially noteworthy because of the treatment of the opening.

As I was not wholly satisfied with the results obtained in the previous game as a player of the black pieces in the opening stages, I decided upon a different rotation in moves by endeavoring to force the subsequent advance of P—K4 in order to obtain a variation which my late fellow-countryman, Tschigorin, often applied with satisfactory results.

Bogoljubow Tries Counter.

Bogoljubow sought to counter this intention by playing QKt—Q2 instead of to B3. As a result he had to content himself with the temporary blocking of his queen's bishop, and on the twelfth move he, nevertheless, played P—K4. Black was well fortified for such a play when he answered it with a painfully disturbing use of the hostile knight on Q—B4.

Apparently surprised by this sortie, Bogoljubow did not find the most effective reply, which was K—Q2, on the thirteenth move. Even after P—QB4 black's game would have been preferable. The move selected (thirteenth) Kt—K5 only resulted in a depreciation of white's centre pawn position and the establishment of a preponderance of pawns on black's queen side, which presaged victory.

Game Definitely Settled.

After white's rescue variation—nineteenth—QxKtP, PxB; twentieth, QxKt foundered on B—R4, the fate of his king's pawn and, incidentally, the game was definitely sealed.

Although the end of the game suggested no technical difficulties, nevertheless it presented a few piquant moments. White was even permitted to provide itself with a new queen, whereupon he was apprised of a mate in five moves.

The last of the Berlin series of match games was played today and the match will be resumed at The Hague on Saturday.

ALEKHINE TRIUMPHS IN 17TH CHESS GAME

Beats Bogoljubow in Wind-up of Berlin Series—Play to Be Resumed in Holland.

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—By winning the seventeenth game of his championship match with E. D. Bogoljubow of Russia at the Café Koenig on Unter den Linden today, Dr. Alexandre Alekhine of Paris wound up the Berlin series with a lead of 8 to 4, with five drawn. The next six games will be played in Holland, the eighteenth being scheduled for Saturday at The Hague.

Dr. Alekhine, with the white pieces, played the queen's pawn opening today and Bogoljubow met it up a king's side fianchetto defense. Establishing a strong centre, the champion forced his opponent's knights out of play. Thereupon he advanced his queen's rook's pawn to the sixth row, in spite of which Bogoljubow castled on that side of the board.

At his twentieth turn the champion made a move which threatened checkmate and Bogoljubow, rather than retreat, sacrificed one of his knights for two centre pawns. Dr. Alekhine castled quite late on the king's side of the board and then, after sacrificing a pawn, brought all of his forces to bear upon black's castled king. The offer of a knight had to be declined by the challenger, who lost a pawn on the thirty-second move. His position then became untenable and he resigned one move later.

POLYDOR TRIUMPHS; SETS TRACK RECORD

Clips Fifth Second Off 1:42 3-5 Mark for Mile and 70 Yards in the Fearnaught.

GENIE AND BOOM FOLLOW

By BRYAN FIELD.

Those short followers who had not recovered from the week-end upsets on the gridiron were knocked further away by an extraordinary performance which took place in the Fearnaught Handicap at Empire City yesterday.

William Ziegler Jr.'s Polydor, a famous sprinter these several years past, was asked to run longer than a mile for the first time in his career and against a tested route horse. Polydor not only beat the route horse, but he set a new track record doing it, and was eased up crossing the finish line.

The race was at a mile and seventy yards, and Polydor's new figure of 1:42 2-5 lowers by a fifth of a second the old mark that Joseph E. Widener's Shuffle Along set in 1923. But Shuffle Along carried only 102 pounds, while the Ziegler champion galloped under top weight of 126 yesterday.

It was a great performance for the 4-year-old son of Golden Broom and Poly Ann, and it was thrown into higher relief when he beat Gifford A. Cochran's Genie by two lengths, with V. P. Noyes's Boom a distant third and last.

Three Horses in Field.

When only three horses came out for the Fearnaught it made for several nice distinctions. Boom was a horse of fair form on outside tracks and Genie was a son of Man o' War known to run his best in the Fall and over a route. Polydor was known as a speed king which had never run over a mile and also on several occasions had shown signs of stopping at that distance.

Genie is a notorious post actor and Boom was in under 117 pounds, in receipt of eight and nine pounds from the others, and you have the ingredients. But the players made Polydor a 4-5 favorite, Genie a 9-5 second choice and Boom a 9-2 outsider. They ran just the way the betting indicated, with Charles Kurtzinger rushing Polydor to the front immediately and staying there for the entire route.

Boom attempted to close ground on the far turn, but the others were too speedy; then Genie tried to draw near in the stretch, but Kurtzinger was looking back all the way down the alley and was easing his horse at the end. The value of the purse was $1,150, and the fractional times were: 24 1-5, 48, 1:12 4-5, 1:38 4-5 and 1:42 2-5.

Distance Race Keenly Fought.

Ordinarily, distance races are ones which see victories by big margins, but the Stamina Purse at a mile and a quarter saw a close and thrilling finish that was as keenly fought in the last stride as any five-furlong sprint.

Seven went to the post and Negopoli from the Alton Stable was made the 9-to-10 favorite. He just failed to win, Willie Smith getting F. X. Campbell's Spectacular home by a nose in the most spectacular kind of a drive. Three lengths behind the pair which battled it out for the victory finished James Butler's Vacation.

John Cavanagh was the leader the first time the field dashed past the grand stand, but Spectacular was rated close to him all the way through the backstretch and went up fast on the turn. Negopoli, held under restraint all this time, went to the outside and closed on the leaders. Spectacular took command and was several lengths to the good when Jimmy Burke started his stretch charge with the favorite. Negopoli gained with every stride, but the rush came a little too late, for Willie Smith roused Spectacular and held him together to win by a nose in 2:06. He returned 5 to 1 to his backers.

Burke Misses Straight Double.

Burke just missed scoring a consecutive double when he lost out with Negopoli, as he was the rider of Benjamin Block's Mortana, winner of the first race. Here Burke had nothing more to do than stay on his horse, for the son of Morvich spreadeagled the field and won easily by six lengths.

Mortana was the 11-to-10 favorite and wasted no time in setting his supporters at ease. He broke smartly and Burke got him out to a long lead in no time. For the rest of the five and a half furlongs he just kept galloping. Oberon, a 25-to-1 shot, ridden by Tommy Malley, got up to be second, half a length before Francis Seymour, a 50-to-1 shot, but paid 10-to-1 to be third.

The Algonquin Purse, for all ages, furnished the spectacle of a 2-year-old filly being heavily backed to beat older horses. The youngster was T. H. Wilson's Attamart, which opened at 10 to 1 and was backed down to 6 to 1.

Speedy Shaw went to the post a 13-to-10 favorite, but the juvenile failed to get in the money, as Speedy Shaw carried the Canyon Stable colors to victory over Turf Idol and Carloman.

Post and Paddock.

The death of Mars Cassidy caused many expressions of regret at the Empire City track yesterday. Although one of the most criticized men in racing, there is no doubt that Cassidy was also one of the most popular figures on the American turf. His son George, named assistant starter last year, started the fields yesterday.

That he should do this was in keeping with the wishes of his father, who gave George his instructions in characteristically blunt manner one day last week. When his father's illness became serious, George decided to stay at home with him and telephoned to Empire City saying he didn't think he could be up to start. Mars overheard the conversation and called from his sick bed: "Either you go up there and start those horses or I will."

There is a good deal of shipping going on to and from the Hilltop track. Some owners are sending horses up from Maryland and others are doing the reverse. Still other owners are shipping to Cuba, Florida and the West. It became known yesterday that William Ziegler Jr. will race a string in Cuba this Winter.

KULAMAN IS HOME SECOND

Trails the Victor, Which Pays $4.52 for $2, by Five Lengths—Bellsmith Finishes Third.

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 21 (AP).—Rainy weather greeted the regulars who turned out today and the muddy track caused numerous scratches. It was necessary to substitute a new event for the original fifth, which was badly depleted through withdrawals.

J. W. Parrish's 3-year-old Dr. Parrish found the going to his liking and had an easy time winning the White Fence Farm Purse, best number on the program. Away advantageously, he opened a big early lead and was never in any danger, going by the finish line five lengths in front of Kulaman, which raced evenly in second place throughout.

Bellsmith finished third and Retort was fourth. The Southerner, only other starter, did not relish the muddy going and raced in last place all the way.

Dr. Parrish negotiated the six furlongs in 1:14 4-5 and rewarded his followers at $4.52 for $2.

KOPECK CAPTURES FEATURE AT LAUREL

Defeats Finite by Nose, With Crystal Domino Next, in Hagerstown Handicap.

Triumphs Over Autumn Bells in Furious Finish—Ascot Stable Claims Shan Tung.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 21 (AP).—The Hagerstown Handicap, a dash of six furlongs which was provided as an attraction today, furnished one of the most exciting contests run at the meeting. The winner was Kopeck, from the Canadian Mount Royal Stable, which beat George D. Widener's Finite by a nose. Crystal Domino was third and Mud fourth.

Kopeck and Finite raced like a team the entire journey, with Finite having a slight advantage. Kopeck was on the inside. Quattlebaum put up one of the best finishes of his career, and Kopeck, hanging on with splendid courage, outlasted the Widener horse in the final drive. The winner ran the six furlongs in 1:11 4-5, the fastest time for the distance run at the meeting.

Naishapur, a candidate for the $25,000 Washington Handicap, to be run on Saturday, was worked out a mile and a quarter, which he covered in 2:07 3-5.

Mr. G. Bostwick rode to a desperate finish in the steeplechase on Autumn Bells and it was no fault of the rider that his horse was beaten by a nose by Author.

The Rancocas Stable lost another horse via the claiming route when the Ascot Stable claimed Shan Tung out of the third race for $5,000.

AURORA, Oct. 21 (AP).—The fourth race on today's card developed into a spirited contest between E. B. Moss's Governor Seth and Omareen, D. Garrity's 3-year-old colt. Governor Seth proved his superiority, however, and in a drive through the stretch passed Omareen to win by half a length. Omareen was first away and led to the stretch.

Braggadocio was slow to start, but finished with a rush to take third place, with Salona, favorite, fourth. Governor Seth covered the mile in 1:39 and paid $16.72.

GODMAN REPLACES HICKOK OF YALE

MARTING NOT BADLY HURT

Tackle's Foot Only Sprained—Three Days of Hard Scrimmage Ordered for Squad.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 21.—No reorganization of the Yale eleven will take place as a preparedness move before the Army game next Saturday. Head Coach Mal Stevens, in opening the week's practice today, used the same playing combination which fought Brown University to a 14 to 6 conclusion on Saturday, except that Johnny Godman, who succeeded Dan Hickok at left end when Hickok was injured, was continued in the position today.

Godman has been Hickok's understudy this Fall and played a versatile substitute end rôle last season. Hickok was on the sidelines today. There is little chance that he will be used against West Point, but he expects to resume practice next week.

The coaches received an agreeable surprise on learning that the injury to Frank Marting, veteran left tackle, was less severe than was feared when he was compelled to leave Saturday's game. An X-ray examination today disclosed that he did not suffer a broken bone in his foot, but merely a sprain. Marting reported in uniform and ran through signals. Although he will be kept out of severe scrimmage this week, it is now believed certain that he will be able to play against the Army.

Truxton Hare Jr., son of the former University of Pennsylvania star, will be alternated with Fred Loeser at left guard, according to present plans, and Phillips and the veteran Arthur Palmer will be used at centre.

Jim Stewart, first substitute guard, who was injured in practice three weeks ago, was in uniform for the first time and will resume light practice this week. It is doubtful whether he will play until after the Army game. Today's practice was divided between an hour's blackboard talk, in which Coach Stevens reviewed Yale's weak points in offensive and defensive tactics in the Brown game, and an hour's signal rehearsal, in which the eleven which had remained intact for three weeks, was sent through its strongest plays, with Godman at left end.

Charley Snead played nearly forty minutes at left halfback, Albie Booth replacing him for the final quarter-hour. Stevens has ordered three days of rugged scrimmaging beginning tomorrow.

NEBRASKA TO RESORT TO AERIAL OFFENSE

Coach Bible Stresses Forward Pass for Use Against the Missouri Eleven Saturday.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 21 (AP).—Nebraska Alumni, who through many seasons have seldom seen the Cornhuskers use the forward pass except to vary the monotony of their crushing line plays, may be startled Saturday when they watch the 1928 Big Six champions against Missouri in Columbia. The Huskers have taken to the air.

The touchdown scored Saturday against Pitt came through a pass, one of many thrown by Claire Sloan, in an effort to score. The winning touchdown against Syracuse was accomplished through the air, with Sloan also on the throwing end. Nebraska is using the open game extensively for the first time and all because its new coach, Dana X. Bible, believes a versatile attack will accomplish more than continuous line plunging despite the Huskers' success with that type of offense.

Indications are that Nebraska will need all its strategy and all its assortment of plays to beat Missouri, which has piled up 39 points to none for its opponents in two games and appears to have everything a team needs, including a full team of capable reserves. In Captain John Waldorf, quarterback, it has as capable a football player and as clever a leader as has been seen in valley football for several seasons.

Three times since 1925 Gwinn Henry's Missourians have nosed out the Nebraskans and each time the proverbial dope so favored the Corn Huskers, the result had football statisticians dizzy trying to figure it out. Ability to beat Nebraska gave Missouri several titles in the old Missouri Valley Ten Team conference. Last year Nebraska avenged three straight defeats with a crushing 24 to 0 victory.

Fans are agreed the winner of Saturday's game—the most important of three conference games that day—will be the 1929 champion of the Big Six.

FOOTBALL PLAYER, 21, DIES OF BROKEN NECK

Succumbs in McKeesport (Pa.) as Result of Gridiron Accident—Lived 38 Days With Injury.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 21.—Elmer Drury, 21, former football star of Elizabeth High School, died in the McKeesport Hospital today after living thirty-eight days with a broken neck.

The fatal injury was received in a practice scrimmage last month on Friday, the 13th, when Drury, who graduated last year, sought to help this season's team shape into form. A scrub eleven was organized to oppose the high school and Drury volunteered to play. He was kicked during the scrimmage.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Pa., Oct. 21.—There was no practice session for the Lafayette football squad today. Albert Soccolow, Brooklyn Manual Training High School boy, has a dislocated shoulder and will be out of the line-up for at least two weeks.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 21.—The guest of honor at the Yale-West Point football game Saturday will be James W. Good, Secretary of War. He will arrive in this city with Mrs. Good and the Army football squad Saturday morning. Secretary and Mrs. Good will be the guests of President and Mrs. James Rowland Angell of Yale University during their stay here.

General Jay Johnson Morrow, brother of Ambassador Dwight Morrow, and former Governor of the Panama Canal Zone, will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Whitehead for the week-end of the game.

THREE PLAYERS GAIN POSTS IN ARMY LINE

Price, Hillsinger and Lazar Promoted for Their Work in Harvard Game.

Coaches Confer on This Phase—Sasse Works With Cagle and O'Keefe on Kicking.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 21.—As a result of their play in the Harvard game, the first-team line-up hereafter will include Price, left tackle; Hillsinger, right guard, and Lazar, center, according to the coaches today. The other positions never have been in question. This set of linemen worked with the varsity team throughout the light signal practice today.

Aside from a few bruises, the entire army squad reported to Captain Biff Jones in good condition for the usual light Monday workout, comprising signal drills, passing and punting, together with a talk on errors.

Army coaches are trying to improve the offensive play, along with increased protection to army forward passers. Line Coach Stokes and Assistant Ellinger held a long conference on this phase today.

Major Ralph Sasse worked with Cagle, O'Keefe and Gelattly in trying to improve the extra point kicking.

3 BIG TEN LINE-UPS LIKELY TO BE CHANGED

Shifts of Michigan, Indiana and Wisconsin Players Indicated as Result of Defeats.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21 (AP).—Big Ten football squads put in the usual Monday afternoon of "oral" practice today. In at least three camps, Michigan, Indiana and Wisconsin, which took beatings Saturday, changes in battlefronts were indicated.

At Michigan Coach Kipke was fairly well satisfied over the improvement in the play of his line against Ohio State, but after a limbering-up drill he set about making room for Willie Heston Jr. in his back field. Willie made an excellent showing Saturday.

Indiana's squad learned that changes in the front line-up may be expected when the Hoosiers meet Ohio State Saturday. Coach Page indicated that Bauer, halfback; Antonini, guard, and Jaros, quarterback, will see service.

Four Wisconsin regulars, Hardt, Linden, Baer and Gantenbien, were absent because of injuries received in the Notre Dame game, while Lusby and Rerholz, halfbacks, found Oman in the halfback post they have been dividing. Oman's play stood out as the redeeming feature of Wisconsin's last performance.

Minnesota came through the Northwestern game in good condition and worked on new plays today.

Beginning preparation for Purdue, Coach Stagg learned that Red Burgess, veteran halfback, and Horwitz, guard, who were injured in the game with Indiana Normal Saturday, may not be available this week-end. The Maroon squad took a light workout on signals and new plays.

Illinois's somewhat surprised crew had a long drill on plays with Yanuskus working with the third team. Iowa received a batch of new stuff to prepare for the invasion of Wisconsin, with Leeka tossing passes.

Ohio State, happy over the Michigan victory, also got off with a minimum of work, but Purdue, which had little trouble with Depauw Saturday, received a regular mid-week practice.

CHANGES AT GEORGETOWN.

Coach Little Puts Bordeau and Bozek in Back Field.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Still seeking to strengthen the Georgetown back field, which in early season games has lacked drive at crucial moments, Head Coach Lou Little today inserted Buddy Bordeau and Johnny Bozek in the varsity back field lineup. Bordeau, weighing 185 pounds, is an aggressive type, while Bozek, 150, is exceptionally elusive and quick in getting under way. This pair has performed with the second string heretofore.

Several Changes in View Before Game With Canisius.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWTON, Mass., Oct. 21.—A light workout today for the Boston College team which made the Dayton trip last week-end indicated several first-string line-up changes are to be made for the Canisius game Saturday. George Colpert is the new first-string quarterback, Harry Downes has recovered enough from early-season injuries to replace Anderson at centre, and Bud Corman, another early-season cripple, has been promoted to right guard, replacing Mooney.

Glenn Warner—Inventor of the Wing-Back Formation

By ALLISON DANEIG.

GLENN WARNER.

NEW YEAR'S DAY, 1925, is a date that deserves to be encircled in red in football history. It was in the game played on that day between Stanford and Notre Dame at Pasadena that the double wing-back formation was used exclusively for the first time by a Warner team.

This formation, which has caught the fancy of the coaching fraternity this season to a greater degree than the Heisman, Minnesota or Notre Dame shifts ever did, has a history dating back almost fifteen years. It was not, however, until Stanford came to New York last year to reveal its manifold possibilities in a convincing demonstration against Army that Eastern coaches saw the light, though a few of them had experimented with it before then.

His Colleagues Interested.

A month later, when Warner attended the football coaches' convention in New Orleans, his colleagues swarmed around him in the manner they had been accustomed to surround Knute Rockne. Whereupon the Stanford sachem and quail shooter, from whom autographed diagrams of his plays may be obtained by his rivals for the asking and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, discoursed in detail on his famous A and B formations. The result has been that there is hardly a major team in the East that is not using the Warner formation or a variation of it.

It was while he was at Pittsburgh that Glenn Scobey (Pop) Warner arrived at the idea of placing both of his halfbacks outside of his ends. He had been using a single wing-back, with the three other carriers in Z alignment, his Carlisle formation, and the new formation was designed to add greater variety and deception to the attack.

His Stars at Carlisle.

When Warner, who had played football at Cornell in the early '90s, was at Carlisle the game began to open up, and any of the teams that opposed the Indians when Thorpe, Guyon, Calac, Bemus Pierce, Dillon, Mount Pleasant, Exendine and Redwater were riding high and wide will bear witness that there was nothing of the Neanderthal vintage about the Warner teams.

Because of his long connection with the Carlisle School and the affectionate regard he had for his Indian charges, the mistaken idea has been entertained by some that Warner is an aborigine himself and recently a statement was made to that effect in print.

The fact is that he comes from New England stock and can trace his ancestry back to Revolutionary days. In Portsmouth, N. H., is a brick house built by the Warners upon which Benjamin Franklin put up lightning rods, and from that house Warners went out to fight the Indians during the Colonial wars.

In view of all the comment that the Warner wing-back offense has called forth this season, a few words in explanation of this formation will not be out of place.

Has Two Varieties.

There are two varieties of the formation, the A and B. They are the same, so far as the halfbacks are concerned. The essential distinction between them lies in the position and assignments of the quarter and full backs.

In formation A the quarter is a yard behind the line, between the right guard and tackle, and the fullback is four yards behind the line and a trifle to the right of centre. In formation B the quarter is three yards back and to the right of centre, while the fullback is six yards directly back of centre.

From both formations spinner plays, passes, reverses and runs are executed, with the fullback as the key man for spinners and reverses in formation A and the quarter in formation B. The latter formation is better suited for passes and quick kicks.

The quarter, in addition to handling the ball on spinners and reverses, must also do the line plunging, but as he has no interference ahead of him formation A is the better one for the close order attack.

On this formation the fullback, being close enough to the line, carries the ball on straight bucks, with the quarter leading him through the hole.

A definite type of player is required for the successful operation of the Warner formations. The type runs not to the shifty back but to the powerful, hard running plunger with a lot of drive and speed who can be depended upon consistently to get three or four yards each down rather than to break loose for long sweeping runs.

After the Army game last year Warner was inclined to place less stress upon the size of the men on the Coast than upon their maturity.

Advantage for Coast Teams.

"I think," he said, "that the Far West has an advantage in maturity that is probably due to climatic conditions. I have an idea that a boy of 20 from out there is as mature as a boy of 21 here in the East."

Another vital factor in the successful exploitation of the wing-back formation is ideal weather conditions. On a muddy field tricky plays are more likely than not to prove a boomerang unless they are shelved for straight football.

"When I was at Pittsburgh," said the contemplative, even dispositioned old campaigner of thirty-five seasons, "I knew what it was to work up a lot of trick plays, with the ball sometimes going through three or four pairs of hands behind the line, only to strike a rainy day and a drenched field and not be able to use them at all.

"That probably has something to do with the fact that the East has remained somewhat conservative in its football. On the fast dry fields of the Far West I have an opportunity to develop an offense that is designed to gain ground steadily and consistently by a series of varied and tricky thrusts. That type of play wears down your opponent and is pretty likely to have a demoralizing effect."

Kerr Agrees With Him.

Andy Kerr, who grew up in the Warner system as the associate of the Stanford sage at Pittsburgh and on the Coast, echoes the sentiments of his former chief.

He holds that the use of the wing-back formation, with the premium it puts upon perfect timing of plays, is a gamble in the East, where inclement weather may ruin a wide open offense on any Saturday in the season. Kerr is teaching that formation at Colgate, but he is not putting all his eggs in one basket, and he is of the opinion that any coach who does so in this part of the country is taking a big risk.

GERVIN, PENN END, OUT WITH INJURY

Has Torn Arm Ligaments, Suffered in California Game—Unable to Face Lehigh.

YOUNG GIVES SQUAD REST

Coach Will Take Lehigh Contest in Stride, but Will Point for Clash With Navy.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21.—Pennsylvania came out of its hard game with California with only one injury of consequence, but that will keep Dixie Gervin, regular left end, out of the line-up when Lehigh visits Franklin Field Saturday.

Gervin suffered torn ligaments in his right arm below the elbow in the clash with the Golden Bears. A fracture was feared, but X-ray photographs disclosed none. His arm is badly swollen, however.

The coaches hope Gervin will be available for the game with Navy, which follows the Lehigh contest. In the meantime he will be replaced by Raffle or Tanseer, probably the former. Tanseer has an ankle injury.

The field was deserted today. The game with the Bears took much out of the Red and Blue, and Coach Lou Young declared a holiday.

"We'll just have to take Lehigh in our stride and hope for the best," he said. "Navy is going to be a tough foe, and I will have all I can do to get the team in shape for that game."

LEHIGH IN SECRET DRILL.

Team Prepares for Contest With Penn on Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 21.—Behind closed gates today, the first strictly secret sessions held this season, Coach Austin Tate started to drill his Lehigh team in preparation for the University of Pennsylvania game in Philadelphia on Saturday.

The game will mark the first invasion of a Brown and White team to Franklin Field since 1905. In the choice of the starting varsity there might be some changes on the line, but these will hardly be effective in the back field. Davidowitz, veteran halfback, is almost certain again to direct the team.

Long Session for Swarthmore.

Special to The New York Times.

SWARTHMORE, Pa., Oct. 21.—Swarthmore College's football squad started a hard week's drill today in preparation for the game with Franklin and Marshall Saturday. Coach H. Leroy Mercer put the squad through a long session in signals.

Four Sport Captains Included On Penn State Football Squad

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 21 (AP).—Penn State's football team has plenty of captains. Of six seniors on the squad, four are varsity leaders. They are Jack Martin, football; Marty McAndrews, boxing; Neil Stahley, basketball, and Tony Panaccion, golf.

CORNELL POINTING FOR COLUMBIA FRAY

Coach Dobie Sends First Team Through Light Drill—Open Date on Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Cornell's first team earned a rest today, but the team that defeated Princeton Saturday was not entirely released from practice. Coach Gilbour Dobie held an indoor session with the first team and then staged a light drill.

The assistant coaches took charge of the reserves and put them through a stiff drill. The second and third string players will see plenty of action during practice for the next two weeks. Cornell has an open date on Saturday and the team is now being pointed for the Columbia game here Nov. 2.

The eleven which played against the Tigers came out of the contest without serious injury. Handlemann, who was the only back to be replaced, sustained bruises, and he will be given several days of rest.

Hunt, guard, and Alexander, end, who started against Princeton after two weeks of idleness, will also work lightly for a day or two. The rest of the team is in good shape and ready for the battle with the Morningside Lions.

TO RESUME FOOTBALL PLAY

Passaic High to Continue Card Canceled at Death of End.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., Oct. 21.—The Passaic High School football team will resume its schedule, cancelled following the death of Thomas (Tabby) O'Shea, star end, meeting Paterson East Side at the Passaic school stadium Saturday.

This decision was made by the athletic council of the school at a meeting today after a conference with Head Coach G. Raymond Pickett.

Amherst Squad Has Day's Rest.

Special to The New York Times.

AMHERST, Mass., Oct. 21.—Coaches Wheeler and Stallings ordered another Monday afternoon rest today for the Amherst College football squad, but will put the entire group through a heavy workout tomorrow as preparations are being made for the Wesleyan invasion here Saturday.

DARTMOUTH STARTS DRIVE FOR HARVARD

"GHOST" BALL IS USED

Crimson Lateral and Tackle Plays Receive Attention—1,000 Ticket Applications Refused.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 21.—Dartmouth proceeded with its preparations for Harvard by holding a long workout today, in which the "ghost" ball appeared for the first time this year. It was dark when practice was concluded.

Due to their hard work in the Columbia game all of the first eleven and four men of the second team were excused from outdoor practice. These men, however, were present at the preliminary chalk talk and remained inside long after the rest of the squad were on the field, while Coach Cannell reviewed the Columbia contest.

A scrimmage was held for the second and third teams. Last Saturday's weaknesses were stressed and defense against Harvard plays executed by Swede Youngstrom's Greys was also part of the drill. Harvard's lateral and tackle plays received considerable attention.

Bill Britten, right halfback, received a lot of the coaches' attention. He will support Shep Wolf and Aarne Frigard and is considered to be about equal to them in defense work.

For the rest of the week the team will work against Harvard plays and a scrimmage will probably be held Wednesday.

The Athletic Council reported today that more than 1,000 ticket applications have been refused.

The majority of the student body will be present for the game Saturday, as Dartmouth has declared an athletic holiday beginning Thursday noon.

HOLY CROSS MEN IN SHAPE.

Few Injuries Reported From Fordham Game—Drill Is Light.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 21.—The Holy Cross players came through the Fordham game with few casualties and were out in force today. Ted Himmelberg, the veteran tackle, complained of a back injury and was not in uniform.

The coaches went over the mistakes made against Fordham and then excused all players who got in against the Maroons. Three teams were sent through a light signal drill.

HARVARD REGULARS HAVE DAY OF REST

White Only First-Rank Player to Participate in Scrimmage With the Scrubs.

ALL TO BE FIT SATURDAY

Same Players Who Faced Army to Be Available for the Game With Dartmouth.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 21.—It was pretty much an off day for Harvard's first and second string varsity football players today. Only such men as the coaches thought did not have enough work in the game with the Army were required to report.

Bernie White, the starting fullback, was the only player of the first rank who took part in the scrimmage session with the scrubs. Others who drilled today after participating in Saturday's game were Koehn and Upton, tackles; Burns, end; Batcheider, back, and Talbot and Newhart, guards.

Some of the regulars looked on, but most of them took a complete day off.

The Harvard doctors agree that on Saturday the team will have all the men who were used against the Army. There were no severe injuries. At the same time it is a question whether Coach Horween will have any hard scrimmaging this week.

Wally Harper was on the field and will be in togs tomorrow, but there is practically no chance he will be able to play against Dartmouth. Douglas will rejoin the squad Wednesday, but this first-string end has had no recent work and in all probability will not do much hard playing until Harvard is getting ready for its trip to Michigan.

Levin, a promising tackle, will be ready for work some time this week.

The first team will practice tomorrow.

COLGATE'S VARSITY ENJOYS DAY OF REST

Squad, in Good Condition After Victory Over Indiana, Will Resume Practice Today.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Colgate's varsity, unscathed but road weary after its victory over Indiana, received a day of complete rest today.

The entire squad attended a short lecture by Coach Kerr and then the second and third teams had an hour and a half of the hardest kind of work including forty minutes of scrimmage, while the ranking players went to a picture show.

Facing home games with Providence and Hampden-Sidney, on the next two Saturdays, Colgate will resume training tomorrow with a prolonged formation drill.

Hamilton Squad Avoids Drill.

Special to The New York Times.

CLINTON, N. Y., Oct. 21.—As a let-down from Saturday's strenuous game with Amherst, Coach Winters merely gave a blackboard talk to the Hamilton College varsity today. Special stress was laid on the new formations and the weaknesses of the offensive game.

Miss Hitomi, Japanese Girl, Sets World's Broad-Jump Mark

SEOUL, Korea, Oct. 21 (AP).—Miss Kinuye Hitomi, competing for Japan in a track and field meet against Germany, broke her own world's record for the broad jump today with a leap of 19 feet 10½ inches today. Earlier in the competition Miss Hitomi lowered the world's records for the 100-meter and 60-meter sprints.

The accepted world's record for the running broad jump for women is 5.68 meters or about 18 feet 7½ inches, set in London last year by Miss Gunn, an English athlete. Miss Hitomi's request for recognition of her record of 5.98 meters or approximately 19 feet 7½ inches was returned because the application bore only four signatures instead of six, as required by the regulations of the Federation Sportive Feminine International.

INGRAM UNDECIDED ON NAVY'S LINE-UP

Fine Showing of Players Against Duke Makes Selection for Princeton Uncertain.

SHORT PRACTICE IS HELD

Kohlhas and Chapple Are Kept Out of Drill, but Will Be Ready for Princeton.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 21.—Every moment of the short practice period available at the Naval Academy this afternoon was used by Coach Bill Ingram and his helpers for direct preparation for the game with Princeton next Saturday.

Frequent changes in the line-up during the game with Duke Saturday minimized the chances of injured players, and none of them received any hurts which will keep them out of the Princeton contest. Kohlhas, back, and Chapple, guard, however, were slightly bruised and they remained out of the practice.

Clifton, the powerful fullback, who did not play against Duke, took part in the full practice, as did Hagberg, one of the leading tackle candidates. Gannon, one of the Navy's best backs, was on the field and did a lot of fine passing, but he is not likely to get into the Princeton game.

Lloyd, the big, fast back of last year's varsity, and Weichel, regular quarterback, joined B squad today and, with the others, were drilled in some of the Princeton plays.

Ingram and his assistants conferred today in regard to the make-up of the team which will start against Princeton. So many players were used in the line and back field Saturday and made good showings that the final selection is much in doubt. Hughes, centre, and Swan, guard, are the most certain of the linemen, and there is little doubt that Clifton and Joe Bauer will be in the back field.

Columbia Fall Regatta Advanced.

The annual Fall regatta of Columbia crews, scheduled to be held on Nov. 1, has been put forward to Oct. 30, it was announced yesterday by Manager Fred Platt. This event will conclude the pre-season drills of the Lion crews.

MOORE AND MESTRES TO AID PRINCETON

MANY SHIFTS BY ROPER

Frequent Substitutions in Drill Indicate Possible Revamping of Line-Up for Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 21.—Coach Bill Roper today put the Princeton football team through a hard drill to begin preparation for the encounter with Navy next Saturday. Frequent shifts were made in the Tiger line-up, while Barfield, Yeckley, Blackistone and Bunde were excused from the afternoon workout. An hour and a half of signal practice and dummy scrimmage followed a short drill in punting and fundamentals.

At the opening of the signal drill the varsity line-up was composed of Pendergast and Byles, ends; Hockenbury and Whyte, tackles; Mestres and Moore, guards; Caldwell, centre; Scarlett, Lowry, Wittmer and Levick, back field. Barfield was excused because of his hard work against Cornell, which left him with a bad cut over the eye. As Princeton's bulwark in the line, he is sorely needed in the game with the midshipmen.

The return of Moore and Mestres to the team has been hailed here. Their presence is expected to result in more formidable opposition for the Navy.

Following signal drill this afternoon, the team ran through dummy scrimmage against a mixture of scrubs, men on the second team and Coaches Wittmer and Keck. Frequent substitutions were made, as Roper appeared to be working on a possible revamping of the eleven.

HARDY ELEVENS REMAIN FOR TENNESSEE SQUAD

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 21 (AP).—Tennessee is off to a running start for the Southern Conference championship, but it is a long way from being in. Five more conference opponents remain to be played. Vanderbilt and Kentucky are the rough spots on the Volunteers' schedule.

In addition to Tennessee, Vanderbilt and Kentucky, four other teams are undefeated and have a chance to come through. They are Clemson, Tulane, Louisiana State and Georgia.

Vanderbilt, to win, must bowl over Alabama, Georgia Tech and Tennessee in a row. Kentucky must dispose of Clemson, Alabama and Tennessee.

Saturday will find Sewanee against Alabama at Birmingham, Virginia Poly against North Carolina at Chapel Hill and Maryland against Virginia Military at Richmond. Two conference teams will crusade abroad, Duke going to Philadelphia to meet Villanova and North Carolina State playing Michigan State at Lansing.

Cavanaugh Rehearses Fordham's Running Plays for Davis and Elkins

FORDHAM PREPARES FOR NEXT HARD TEST

SEVERAL STARS INJURED

But Maroon Mentor Is Cheered by Recovery of Kloppenburg, Pieculewicz and Janis.

Coach Cavanaugh's Fordham eleven, one of the few undefeated and untied teams in the East and which shares with Dartmouth the honor of being one of the two teams whose goal line is still uncrossed, began preparation yesterday for its third major game of the season with Davis and Elkins on Saturday. It is doubtful if the Maroon mentor will hold any scrimmage in preparing for the contest with the undefeated Southern eleven, since several of the Fordham stars are out with injuries.

Frank Foley, valuable tackle, is out with an injured foot, while Bill McMahon, speedy halfback, has an injured knee. McMahon was one of the most effective Fordham players in the game against Holy Cross and if he is not able to start against the Southern team on Saturday he will be missed greatly.

On the other hand, the Maroon coach was cheered by the news that his giant end, Kloppenburg, will be ready for service on Saturday, while the shoulder injury that has been bothering Charlie Pieculewicz intermittently during the season has disappeared almost completely. The injury to the shoulder of Johnny Janis, who scored the Fordham touchdown in the final three minutes of last Saturday's game, is also completely healed.

Major Cavanaugh was pleased with his eleven's defense against Cleo O'Donnell's team but he is still far from satisfied with the running attack. Yesterday Cavanaugh started the drill by sending his men through every running play in their repertoire and followed this by a long punting practice with Frank Bartos, Jack Fisher and Walter Tracey doing the kicking. Cavanaugh was particularly anxious that his punters should show more speed in getting off their boots.

Previous to the practice the Maroon coach gave his men a long lecture, going over the mistakes of the Holy Cross contest.

88,000 TO SEE CLASH ON COAST SATURDAY

Southern California and Stanford, Undefeated in Conference, Will Meet on Gridiron.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 21 (AP).—The trails of two giants of Far Western football will cross next Saturday, the thus far unmatched power of Southern California's Trojans and Stanford's Cardinals being pitted in one of the classics of the season.

Travelers of separate and triumphant paths, their wake strewn with the victims of early gridiron engagements, these flashy elevens will battle to continue undefeated in the Pacific Coast Conference race.

Stanford Stadium is expected to resound to the roars of approximately 88,000 persons.

Although the Southern California-Stanford encounter will claim most of the attention next Saturday, two other conference tilts are listed, with Washington battling Oregon and Oregon State meeting Idaho.

In non-conference games, Washington State takes on Whitman, Montana opposes Montana State and U. C. L. A. meets Pomona.

The standing of the teams in the conference follows:

	W.	L.	Tie.	Points For.	Points Agst.
Southern California	3	0	0	145	7
Stanford	3	0	0	130	14
California	1	0	0	14	0
Oregon	1	1	0	41	40
Idaho	1	1	0	32	34
Washington State	1	1	0	20	27
Montana	0	1	1	6	25

Oregon State	0	2	0	14	61

NOTRE DAME TEAM RESTS.

Coach Rockne Still at Home With Injured Leg.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 21 (AP).—From coach to shock troops, the Notre Dame football squad rested today before beginning preparation for the invasion of Carnegie Tech's stronghold at Pittsburgh Saturday.

Coach Knute Rockne remained at home on the advice of his physician, who urged complete rest for his ailing leg. Kassis, second-string guard, who was carried from the field during the Wisconsin game Saturday, was on crutches and will not be in shape for the trip East.

WEST VA. STARTS PRACTICE.

Bartrug Out of Line-Up as Squad Drills for Oklahoma A. and M.

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 21.—With Eddie Bartrug, halfback and star punter of the West Virginia University squad, as the only major loss after Saturday's victory over Washington and Lee, the Mountaineers practiced today for the game Saturday with Oklahoma A. and M. College.

The performance of Larue in Saturday's game has practically assured him a berth in the starting line-up for Saturday's game.

REST FOR W. AND J. SQUAD.

Men in Good Shape Following Hard Carnegie Tech Game.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 21.—Having engaged in two strenuous games in succession, Coaches Ride and Amos permitted the Washington and Jefferson College squad to enjoy somewhat of a rest today, although the men were out on the field for a limbering-up practice. The undefeated Presidents came through the hard, scoreless struggle with Carnegie Tech in good physical shape.

Sports of the Times

By JOHN KIERAN.

IT was enlightening to sit in with coaches, scouts, officials and veteran observers as they were discussing the games they saw last Saturday and the prospects for the coming week-end. Here are some of the questions and answers that were tossed about in the general conversation:

"Has Yale given up that Warner wing back stuff?"

"Well, they were playing those backs pretty close up. Looks to me as if they were going back gradually toward their old style."

"Who was at Philadelphia? I thought Penn would run those California ends. Yes, sir, I thought Penn was hiding in the grass for this game. What was the matter?"

"Nothing was the matter. Those California boys just knew how to take care of themselves."

"How did Lom look? And Riegels?"

"They were all right, but the guy who played a great game for California was a bird named Schwartz, a guard. Man, oh man! He was a guard."

Echoes from the Stadium.

"That Myers must have played a great game for N. Y. U. He hits hard, doesn't he? How did Bezdek's boys look?"

"Great. I figure they had a little the best of it in every way except in scoring. That Edwards is a sweet end, and that boy Diedrick is a fine back."

"If N. Y. U. had beaten Fordham, they would have lost to Penn State by four touchdowns. They would have been tightened up to protect their record. Losing to Fordham snapped the tension, and they played a great game. I'll bet it was one of the best games either college has played in a long while. Say, State plays Lafayette next Saturday. How will that go? Who was at that Lafayette-Bucknell game?"

"I was, and I want to tell you when it was all over, I put my arm around the shoulders of that Lafayette fullback—what's his name?—yeah, Woodfin—and I said 'Lad, it was a fine game even if your team did lose, and you're a great football player.' He says 'Thank you, sir,' and runs off. I wasn't kidding him. He's the kind that falls forward when tackled and twists and squirms to get that last inch with the ball."

"How will State go against them?"

"Well, from what you fellows tell me about State, I guess they should win, but it won't be a five-o'clock tea or a waltz or anything like that."

The Baker Field Report.

"Were you up to see Columbia and Dartmouth?"

"Yeah. Marsters got away early, and that was all there was to it. I like some of those Dartmouth sophomore backs as well as their first-string runners except Marsters."

"How did Hewitt do?"

"Never had a chance. Why, say, they were through on him so fast, it's a wonder he wasn't tackled with the ball when he went to punt. He's a good player, though. He'll prove it yet. Fast as the wind, but when they grab you before you can start, speed doesn't help much."

"Did Dartmouth forward pass much?"

"They opened up a little in the second half, but I guess they weren't trying all their tricks then, the score being what it was. Maybe they're saving that for Harvard. Who's going to win that one, by the way?"

"I see Dobie finally beat Princeton. I thought it would go the other way. Princeton has lost two games now, and the Navy is coming up at them. Bill Roper's been sick, too. They aren't having much luck down there this year, are they?"

Technicalities.

"Say, how about those Cornell and Princeton short forward passes behind the line? They're screened passes. You can't get away from it."

"Sure, but they're behind the line. That makes it all right."

"Here's one for the book. A defensive team on the 15-yard line is penalized for holding. The ball goes to the 1-yard line. But if the defensive team on the 15-yard line is penalized for slugging, the ball goes to the 7½-yard line. The greater crime gets a smaller penalty."

"That will be all ironed out when they get the rules simplified and straightened out for next year."

"Is that so? Know any more jokes?"

"What was that penalty in that Notre Dame-Navy game for? Because the water boy came out on the field?"

"Nay, nay! Signaling from the bench."

"Boys will be boys."

Nothing to Inspect.

"Didn't Bezdek say something about watching for screened passes by N. Y. U?"

"Sure, but N. Y. U. threw only one pass in the whole game."

"Yes, and that one was grounded, giving N. Y. U. a perfect record in passes for the last two games. Not a single one was any good. The next N. Y. U. lad who tried a forward pass will be shot down in his tracks."

"Oh, they'll have to throw a few now and then to keep those secondaries back where they belong."

"How about that off-side penalty on Holy Cross right down by the goal line?"

"Well, it was our funeral. The official was right. The man was off-side. That Siano is a good boy for Fordham, isn't he?"

"You said it."

Scattering Shots.

"How did Booth look at Yale?"

"He did plenty of running, and the funny thing is that he doesn't get hurt. Being such a little guy, you'd think he'd be all broken up after a few games, but he's still going strong."

"That bird who threw that last pass at Cambridge and then kicked the extra point to tie the Army must be a nervy lad."

"Barry Wood? I should say he is. Great all-around athlete. He'll be shortstop of the varsity next Spring. Swell hockey forward and tennis player, too. Just a sophomore. Tag him for a big star in the future."

"They tell me the Army has a great plebe team. Beat the varsity in a practice game, I hear. The Army is sure to take some lickings with this schedule. It's too tough."

"And what about that Notre Dame schedule? Rock told me he must have been crazy when he made it up."

"Well, you couldn't prove it by the scores so far."

And so it went, far, far into the night.

LIGHT WORK RULE IN COLUMBIA CAMP

TYS STILL A CASUALTY

Veteran Tackle to Be Idle Until Cornell Clash—Signals, Kicking and Passing Occupy Men.

Columbia's football squad received the lightest Monday workout of the season yesterday. After the hard game with Dartmouth, Coach Crowley believed it wise to give his men a rest before heavy preparations for the game with Williams.

Concerning the Dartmouth contest Crowley said: "We were beaten by one of the best teams in the country."

With the exception of Remy Tys, veteran tackle, Trainer Barrett expects to have all of the Lion players in condition for the game with Williams on Saturday. Tys was not at his best when he faced Dartmouth, and it is probable that the coaches will hold him on the side lines in order that he will be at top form for the Cornell encounter on Nov. 2.

Preceding yesterday's workout Crowley gave a detailed blackboard lecture in the locker house, going over the plays that were used against the Green and commenting on the various mistakes of the Lions.

The practice consisted mainly of limbering up exercises, passing and kicking. There were no changes in the line-up for the signal practice and Crowley did not indicate whether he planned any revisions this week.

Meanwhile the Williams game is looming up as another difficult contest for Columbia. The Massachusetts outfit has won four consecutive games this season and the ability of the Purple is highly regarded by the Morningside aggregation.

INJURIES HAMPER WILLIAMS.

Stevens and Stuart May Be Unable to Face Columbia.

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Oct. 21.—Doubt was expressed whether Stevens or Stuart, varsity centre and tackle, respectively, would be able to face Columbia Saturday as the Williams football team started a week of practice today. Both were obliged to leave the Hobart game on account of injuries. Schwartz and Miller, two other veteran linemen, also received injuries Saturday, but may round into shape by the end of the week.

PARKER GIVES LECTURE ON C. C. N. Y. MISTAKES

Criticizes Tackling and Has Line Practice Blocking—Schlesinger Has Punting Session.

Determined that the losing streak of the City College football team shall end with the George Washington game scheduled at the Lewisohn Stadium next Saturday, Coach Harold J. Parker started work yesterday to bolster his line-up for the contest with the Colonials.

In a long lecture Parker outlined the mistakes which his players have been making right along this season. He criticized the tackling by his men.

After the blackboard talk Coach Parker sent his men on the field and the players who did not take part in the Drexel game opposed the junior varsity in a scrimmage.

In a dummy scrimmage the varsity back field was instructed in breaking up an enemy passing attack, while the linemen were instructed to try to break through and block the plays in their inception.

Whitey Schlesinger did most of the punting for the varsity in the drill, and it appears as if the former Brooklyn City College player is scheduled to take care of the kicking for the Lavender for the remainder of the season.

CANADIANS TO PLAY HERE.

Dominion Soccer Team to Face Hakoah at Ebbets Field.

International soccer will hold the spotlight over the coming week-end when the Canadian National team of Montreal, champions of Canada, faces New York Hakoah, champions of the United States, at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn.

Negotiations are under way to make the event an annual affair between the title-holders of the two countries for a trophy to be put up for competition by the governing bodies here and across the border. Only a few of the leading Canadian teams have been seen in action upon American soil, but those that have made the trip have thrilled the crowds with great cleverness.

Next Sunday's visitors are heralded as worthy foes for the United States champions. A great game should be seen between two clever teams.

Allison and Miss Edith Cross of San Francisco defeated Van Ryn and Miss Midge Gladman of Santa Monica, Cal., 6-3, to avenge yesterday's defeat. Allison and Van Ryn engaged in a two-set singles match, with each copping one set at 9-7.

INJURED STARS BACK IN MANHATTAN FOLD

Burke, Lepis and Power Return, Ready to Take Old Posts After 2 Weeks' Absence.

POINT FOR ST. JOHN'S GAME

Aerial Game and Formations Used by Coming Opponents Will Be Tested in Practice.

The stock of Manhattan College's football team received a considerable boost yesterday when three stars who had been out of the game for two weeks reported for duty. The men were Leddy Burke, star halfback; Lou Lepis, tackle, and Blake Power, halfback. They were fully recovered from their injuries.

With this encouragement the team forgot the disastrous result of last Saturday's game with St. Francis and stepped into the workout for Saturday's game with St. John's College, Brooklyn, with zeal.

The freshman teams are busy working on the St. John's plays and formations, particularly the passing game, as the varsity displayed a glaring weakness in this form of attack against St. Francis. These formations will be employed against the varsity in two scrimmage sessions, a long one today and a shorter one tomorrow.

ST. JOHN'S WORKS HARD.

Coach Lynch Eager for Victory Over Manhattan Saturday.

Head Coach Ray Lynch sent the St. John's College football squad through an intensive scrimmage at Dexter Park yesterday afternoon in preparation for the Manhattan game Saturday. The St. John's coach is not discouraged by the poor showing his charges made against Lehigh last week and is drilling them hard, as he is anxious to win the Manhattan clash, which probably will give the Red and White the metropolitan championship of the Little Three, in which City College also is included.

Harry Meyers, regular quarterback, and Al Gallo, halfback, who played at fullback last week, were not out for yesterday's practice on account of minor injuries they suffered Saturday. However, they probably will be in condition by tomorrow.

YORKSHIRE CUP DRAW MADE

LONDON, Oct. 21 (Canadian Press Cable).—The draw for the second round of the Yorkshire cup participated in by Rugby League teams was made today. The matches, to be played on the ground of the first named teams, follow:

West Va. to Play Duquesne in 1930

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 21.—Duquesne University has been signed as a West Virginia University opponent for the 1930 season it was announced today by Athletics Director E. J. Stansbury of West Virginia. Duquesne will be played in the opening game of the season, Sept. 30, probably at Forbes Field, Pittsburgh.

PRACTICE RESPITE GIVEN N. Y. U. TEAM

SCRIMMAGE SLATED TODAY

Coach Works Out Reserves and Freshman Squad for Drill Against Varsity.

Satisfied with the showing of the New York University football team in its game with Penn State last Saturday, Coach Chick Meehan ordered a holiday yesterday for the first-string men, excusing them from the usual Monday practice session for the first time this year.

Coach Meehan, however, busied himself with a group of reserves and the freshman team at Ohio Field for more than two hours, teaching the Violet cubs Butler formations which they will use against the varsity in a scrimmage today as well as preparing them for their contest with Dean Academy to be played as a preliminary to the Butler-N. Y. U. game Saturday at the Yankee Stadium.

The N. Y. U. coach admitted that the contest with the Nittany Lions was one of the hardest in which a Violet team has ever played at the Yankee Stadium and he believes the experience the eleven received in this battle will be used to advantage in later games. No changes in the varsity line-up is contemplated.

BUTLER SQUAD PREPARES.

Drills for N. Y. U. Game—Booz and Hinchman Rejoin Team.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 21.—Kenneth Booz and 'Curly' Hinchman, regular back field men who have not been in uniform for two weeks, rejoined the Butler squad today, thus assuring fans that the Bulldogs would be in condition to use their full strength against New York University next Saturday at the Yankee Stadium.

Cavosie and Captain Hosier also have recovered from minor injuries and will complete the starting line-up for the Hoosiers.

Practice today was devoted to a lecture on faults of the linemen in the Haskell Indian game Saturday. Scrimmage is on the program tomorrow, however, and there will be no let-up in the drill until the squad entrains for New York Thursday night.

BROWN LOSES FOGARTY FOR SYRACUSE GAME

Star Back Ordered to Take Week's Rest—Second Team Beats Third in Drill.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 21.—Brown University will face the Syracuse eleven on Saturday without the services of Lincoln Fogarty, its triple-threat back, who has been ordered to take a week's rest until he has recovered from an illness antedating the opening of the season. It is expected that Andy Rotelli, substitute fullback, will take the halfback position, while Captain Edwards may be shifted to Fogarty's No. 4 post.

In today's practice Coach McLaughry sent the second-string men against the third team in dividing his replacements, the latter squad triumphing, 10—0. Intercepting a forward pass, Moulton ran sixty yards for a touchdown, then with a drop-kick added the extra point. Shortly afterward a drop-kick from the field by Moulton added the three other points.

A lengthy blackboard drill comprised the second session of the team tonight. The Syracuse offense was explained by Dr. W. H. Snell, scout for the squad, while the defense was outlined by McLaughry.

GUARD TITLE BOUT TONIGHT

Massey to Meet Sankey at 22d Regiment Armory.

A National Guard featherweight championship battle will be he stellar attraction tonight of the weekly boxing show at the Twenty-second Engineers Regiment Armory. The principals will be Lou Massey, defending champion, and Harry Sankey, recognized challenger. They are scheduled for twelve rounds. Georgie Ward, west side lad, is scheduled to battle Benny Britt, Philadelphian, in the eight-round semi-final.

Charley Raymond and Pete Herman, rival featherweights, will furnish the action tonight in the feature bout of eight rounds at the Twenty-seventh Division Train Armory, Brooklyn. The semi-final of eight rounds will bring together Frankie Minerva and Willie Rose, bantamweights. A heavyweight encounter of eight rounds between Joe Vosdick and Dave King is another attraction.

NAVY GAME ABROAD SOUGHT

Anglo-American Baseball Club in London Asks Contest.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 21.—The Naval Academy has been asked to take part in international athletics through the request of the Anglo-American Baseball Club of London that it send its midshipmen's baseball nine across the Atlantic for a game with the team of that club.

Lieut. Commander F. G. Reinicke, graduate manager of athletics, has replied that the only chance of such a game lies in the practice cruise of the midshipmen going in that direction next Summer. If that is the case, the game probably will be arranged.

HAGENLACHER WINS TWICE.

Defeats Cochran, 300-166, and 300-150, at Balkline Billiards.

In the afternoon Hagenlacher won, 300 to 166, in nine innings. The winner had a high run of 118, while Cochran's best effort was 49. At night, Cochran lost, 300 to 150, in nine innings. The victor had a cluster of 124, and Cochran one of

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 21.—Toby Roberts, substitute back, who scored the second Rutgers touchdown against St. John's of Annapolis Saturday, called signals for the varsity during today's scrimmage. Greenberg, regular quarter, was shifted to halfback and Waldron went to the second team. Les Horton is rapidly developing as a forward passer and shared honors with Grossman in tossing to Greenberg and Roberts.

LEADS IN NATIONAL SCORING

Let your feet congratulate your pocketbook—

Feet just naturally have that expensive feeling in Coward Shoes. Such comfort as this . . . such smart appearance . . . such absolute luxury—that must cost a whole lot!

"Don't worry, pocketbook," reply your cheerful feet—"in fact, I congratulate you. You didn't pay any more for these shoes than you've been paying all along. And when shoes are as perfectly fitted on me as these are, there'll be even wear all over. It'll be a long, long time before I'll ask you to buy me a new pair—but when I do, remember, they've got to be Cowards. I won't walk on pebbles after walking on velvet!"

Odd Lots

By purchasing 20 shares of stock of the leading companies in 5 diversified industries, greater margin of safety is obtained than by purchasing 100 shares of any one issue.

Adverse conditions may arise in which any industry might be affected, but it is unlikely that the five industries would be affected simultaneously.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Yesterday's stock market did not witness the recovery in prices which even despondent Wall Street had expected, after Saturday's convulsive fall in prices and the halt of Sunday to take breath. Apparently, the dead weight of selling orders on account of shattered margins was too great for any supporting influence to resist. A brief spell of irregularity was followed by such renewal of pressure on the market that prices of many active shares fell 5 to 14 points, with total transactions of the day running to 6,091,870 shares, an aggregate reached on only two other days in the previous history of the Stock Exchange—by the 8,135,000 shares of Dec. 7 and the 8,246,000 of March 26.

Several highly speculative stocks which had led the uprush of prices earlier this year, had lost yesterday 20 to 43 per cent from the highest valuations of 1929, and many of them closed at or near the lowest. It was still possible to say that most of them, even so, were quoted higher than the earlier low prices of the year; a consideration which may be looked upon in two very different ways. Taken as a whole, the character of the market left Wall Street both bewildered and frightened; with a feeling that some abrupt recovery in prices cannot be long delayed after so protracted and violent a collapse, and that its failure to materialize quickly would leave the market groping in the dark.

That the Stock Exchange call-money rate should have returned to 5 per cent was no very surprising result of the loan reduction which must have accompanied the throwing overboard of speculative accounts with exhausted "margins." The money rate contributed its part to a further movement of foreign exchange against New York. All of the cables testify to withdrawal of European capital on a very extensive scale from Wall Street; partly because the recent 1 per cent rise in London discount rates has occurred along with a 2 per cent fall at New York, even in rates for collateral time loans, but also because of heavy selling of American stocks by Europe. Sterling in particular moved upward yesterday, to a rate only a small fraction under the normal gold-export point from New York to London.

Gold exports to London at this time of year, with the heavy payments for our produce shipments accruing, would be a rare financial anomaly. Even in 1927, when our Autumn money rates were barely 4 per cent and when our market was about to lose $600,000,000 gold on export, none went either to London or Paris in October or November. Nevertheless, yesterday's sight rate of $4.87¼ for the pound sterling compared with a range of $4.87¼ to $4.88 in May of last year, when we sent $20,000,000 gold to England, and yesterday's rate of 3.93¾ cents for the franc was practically equal to that of the same month, when France took $42,000,000. If New York were actually to export gold to Europe, this month or in November, it would break all ordinary rule, but ordinary rule has already been broken by this year's wild bidding of Wall Street speculators for Europe's money, and reaction from such extravagances is apt to give as abnormal a color to the picture as the preceding performances themselves had given.

Nobody watched the outside news from Wall Street yesterday. It comprised one interesting statement; the fall of motor-car production, as reported to September, to almost exactly the total of last year, whereas the output of the eight preceding months had run beyond 1928 by 38 per cent. The September showing was not unexpected, in view of the plain assertions of one company's president regarding recent production in relation to consumers' capacity. The present general agreement is that the steel trade as a whole is working at 80 per cent of capacity, as compared with an output of 90 per cent in this week a year ago.

Hungarian Saving Bank Gains.

The Hungarian General Saving Bank, Ltd., of Budapest reports increases of deposits of 5.9 per cent from Dec. 31, 1928, to June 30. On the latter date the deposits translated into dollars totaled $16,737,913. Loans and discounts amounted to $17,972,203, an increase of 7.8 per cent and mortgage loans were $7,510,846, an increase of 15.9 per cent. These advices have been sent to J. & W. Seligman & Co. and John Nickerson & Co., Inc.

A. V. Wainwright in New Post.

A. V. Wainwright, formerly president of the California Consumers Company and before that president of the Inland Power and Light Corporation, has been elected chairman of the board of directors of the United States Engineering Corporation. He succeeds Earl F. English, recently resigned to join the Standard Oil Company of California.

Surplus Freight Cars Fewer.

Class I railroads on Oct. 5 had 111,456 surplus freight cars in good repair and immediately available for service, the American Railway Association announced yesterday. This was a decrease of 7,065 cars, compared with Sept. 30.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

Selling became overwhelming and aggressive on the Stock Exchange yesterday, and "perpendicular declines" occurred in many parts of the market before any real show of resistance developed. Rallying tendencies were in evidence here and there shortly before the close, and perhaps most active stocks ended the day somewhat above the low levels. But in spite of this late demonstration, mostly in some of the volatile issues, the general list closed with wide losses. The sharpest declines were in American Waterworks, General Electric, Commercial Solvents, American Bank Note, Santa Fe, Père Marquette, Underwood-Elliott-Fisher, Standard Gas and Stone & Webster. Most stocks which passed through the widest reaction in the morning and early afternoon picked up in the last hour.

Indications of Support.

Shortly before the close yesterday the stock market community was stirred by a report, said to have come directly from the floor, that a broker known to have acted frequently in the past for banking interests had orders to buy 40,000 shares of United States Steel at 210. At the time the order is supposed to have been put into the broker's hands, the stock was selling around 210½. It turned out later that the 40,000-share figure was an exaggeration, but it was established that an order did come in for 10,000 shares at prices close to 210. The order was evidently all executed, because the stock closed below that price. The significance of the transaction, as Wall Street saw it, was that important figures in the financial community were supporting the market.

Heavy Margin Calls.

Margin calls went out of the Wall Street district again last night in distressing quantity; indeed, about the busiest persons in brokerage offices during the last few days have been the margin clerks. Thousands of margin traders have been hanging on to their stocks, so to speak, by the thinnest of eyebrows, and thousands of them saw their stocks sold "at the market" yesterday when they could not instantly answer the calls made upon them.

The Ticker's Lag.

If ever the inadequacy of the present ticker service was demonstrated, it was in yesterday's trading. From the first ten minutes of trading both the Stock Exchange and the Curb tickers fell behind the markets, and at one time in the early afternoon the lag for the Exchange ticker was 76 minutes. At the close the Exchange ticker was 101 minutes behind, with the Curb tickers showing about the same sort of lag. So far as trading from the tape was concerned, the ticker prices gave no indication whatever of the state of the market on the Exchange floor, and even the prices flashed at intervals on the bond tickers were at times far away from the actual market.

Bull Market in Bonds and Exchange.

The bears have not had it all their own way lately. While the stock market has been suffering under the onslaught of the grizzlies, prices of listed bonds have been slowly but steadily advancing and "shorts" in foreign exchange have been scrambling to cover just as speedily as did shorts in common stocks a short time ago. The bull market in bonds and foreign exchange is largely the result, bankers pointed out yesterday, of the bear market in equity securities. Frightened investors are hastening to place their funds in the lately neglected safe harbor provided by bonds, while European capital, turning from its recent plunge into Wall Street, is hastening home to spheres more profitable than those offered by declining stock prices and easy call money.

"Box Account" Selling.

One of the day's developments that attracted much attention in the financial district was one which seemed to indicate that, in some directions, a point of "real" liquidation had been reached. Many persons who may yet be termed investors, or at least "semi-investors," were apparently going into their boxes yesterday and selling their stocks. One commission broker yesterday summed it up thus: "There are thousands of people in the market who have had profits of 25, 50 and even 100 points in their stocks. They were willing to carry them through minor reactions, when a few points was sheared off these profits; but when the market got down to the point where only a small profit or no profit at all existed, then the natural inclination of very many of them was to sell out and get out of the market, saving whatever of their reduced profits that such action could preserve for them."

No Move by Investment Trusts.

One of the greatest disappointments to the market on Saturday and yesterday was the failure of investment trusts to stem the break. In the last year or two the trusts had come to be looked upon as a stabilizing force, and many experts had expressed the opinion that sustained and violent reactions such as stocks now are undergoing were not likely to occur again. Several of these observers have not revised their opinions. One of them said yesterday that the importance of the investment trusts as "stabilizers" had been grossly overestimated, in view of the fact that their total resources did not exceed $2,000,000,000 or $3,000,000,000, whereas the value of securities listed on the New York Stock Exchange alone at the end of September was more than $85,000,000,000. There was also some remark on the possibility that people may have overlooked the fact that even investment trusts prefer to buy at lowest prices, and not when a break in stocks is proceeding unchecked.

Some Postponed Deals.

It was learned yesterday that at least three pending transactions affecting the natural gas industry in this country have been postponed until market conditions shall have improved, indicating the difficulty of effecting mergers or acquisitions of various sorts in the face of an uncertain market and collapsing stock values. Certain pieces of senior financing by utilities, however, are not expected to wait much longer, but will be put out with but little delay.

MONEY.

Monday, Oct. 21, 1929.

As a result of continued heavy offerings of money the undertone of the market was easy. However, business was on a small scale, since demand nowhere measured up to the supply. Stock Exchange day loans were renewed at 6, followed by a cut to 5 for new money and to 4½ in counter trading. In time money three-four months' loaned at 7½ and shorter dates at 7¼@7½. Acceptances and commercial were quiet and unchanged in discount.

Keeping Pace With Sound Investment Trends

A Wise Navigator Reads the Signs

AN experienced navigator can read in certain signs a forecast of future sailing conditions and chart his course accordingly. In much the same way shrewd investors are now watching the securities trend and mapping their investment programs to take advantage of these conditions.

The present time offers splendid opportunities for sound, conservative investing. Bonds are now selling at prices which may not again prevail for years. Many high grade investment stocks which have been overlooked by the speculatively inclined public may today be bought at prices which will undoubtedly show handsome returns if purchased for the "long pull."

It is the opinion of Caldwell & Company that investors who purchase such sound stocks and bonds on an investment basis at this time will be amply rewarded for their foresight.

Representatives and officials of Caldwell & Company will be glad to confer with investors regarding securities which they consider to be in a sound position at present. This company maintains a well equipped statistical department, the advice and recommendations of which are available to any investor, large or small, at no charge whatever.

The stability and tremendous resources of this national investment house are a distinct asset to any investor and should be utilized freely.

P. R. R. TO ELECTRIFY LINES IN BALTIMORE

BIG TUNNELS ARE PLANNED

Clearance Will Be Provided for Largest Locomotives and Unusual-Sized Freight.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21. Successful conclusion of several years of negotiation between the Pennsylvania Railroad and the city of Baltimore, announced here today, has paved the way for electrification of the Pennsylvania's line from New York to Washington, including the tunnels.

The enlarged project was forecast about a year ago when General W. W. Atterbury, president of the railroad, in announcing a $100,000,000 electrification project, embracing the lines between New York and Wilmington, Del., indicated that ultimately electric trains would be operated as far as Washington.

The completed project will give the Pennsylvania a total of 709 miles of line and 2,750 miles of track electrically operated.

A period of five to six years is allowed in the agreement for completion of the $122,000,000 Baltimore project, and by that time it is expected the electrified lines from New York to Wilmington will be in operation.

Electric trains are now running between Philadelphia and Wilmington. The North Philadelphia-Trenton project is about one-third completed and the contract was let recently for electrification of the New Brunswick-Manoa (Trainer) section of the New York division at a cost of about $6,000,000.

The agreement with Baltimore covers extensive station platform and track improvements in the city and the construction of two new double track tunnels within the city limits, increasing considerably the capacity of both passenger and freight lines, it was announced.

The work will be started immediately.

One of the new tunnels, about two-thirds of a mile in length, will parallel the existing Union Railroad tunnel east of Pennsylvania Station. The other, about one and five-eighths miles long, with its top averaging eighty feet below the street level, (Begin illegible) construction by tunneling instead of the open-cut method, will almost parallel the existing Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington tunnel southwest of the station.

The new tunnels will permit the Pennsylvania Railroad to operate a four-track main line all the way through the city from the eastern to the southwestern boundary, a distance of six miles, with ample clearance for the largest and heaviest cars and locomotives, as well as unusual sized shipments, such as turbines, generators and other large machinery shipped in special cars.

Large freight warehouses, centrally located, will be constructed adjacent to Calvert Station, which will be rebuilt.

The railroad company, in its announcement, declared that the electrification program would make possible important improvements in both passenger and freight service and "the various communities served will be given the advantage of practical elimination of locomotive smoke, in favor of the Pennsylvania Railroad is concerned."

BEGINS ELECTRIFICATION.

Lackawanna Sets First Transmission Tower on Montclair Branch.

Work on the electrification of the Erie and Lackawanna Railroad's Montclair branch was started when the first electric power transmission tower which will carry the overhead wires was set at the east end of the Glen Ridge station platform yesterday. The task was completed within twenty minutes by a picked crew of bridgemen of the Lackawanna force.

ERIE OPENS NEW STATION.

President Denny and Other Officials Attend Bloomfield Ceremony.

Charles E. Denny, president of the Erie Railroad, was among twenty officials who attended the opening of the road's new freight station at Bloomfield, N. J., yesterday. The Chamber of Commerce of Bloomfield was among the organizations represented.

Under the guidance of Mr. Denny, officers and directors of the Erie will make their annual inspection of the road, beginning at Jersey City, Oct. 22, and concluding at Chicago on Oct. 24. The inspection will include the new terminal at Cleveland, now nearing completion. Among those who will accompany Mr. Denny will be George F. Brownell, George H. Mimot, D. L. Gray, R. E. Woodruff, Carl Howe, R. C. Falconer, J. M. Condon, J. C. Patterson and George F. Weston. General managers and superintendents will accompany the train over their respective districts and divisions.

Report by Briggs & Stratton.

For the nine months ended on Sept. 30 the Briggs & Stratton Corporation reports net earnings of $1,234,91; after all charges, equivalent to $4.18 a share on 300,000 no par shares, against $673,826 earned during the corresponding period last year. STANDARD OIL CUTS CALIFORNIA PRICES

Reduction of 50 to 75 Cents a Barrel Attributed to Big Overproduction.

OTHERS TO FALL IN LINE

Shell Company Announces It Will Meet New Rates—Union Oil Expected to Act Also.

Because of the "long-continued, unrestrained overproduction" in the flush fields of California, the Standard Oil Company of California announced yesterday a drastic reduction in crude oil prices. The price cut averages between 50 and 75 cents a barrel. In some instances more than 50 per cent of the former prices was lopped off.

Prices paid by the Standard of California, the principal purchaser in that State, in the past have varied according to differences in the gravity of the oil. Under the new schedule a flat price basis is established. The prices now in effect compare with the former sliding scale as follows:

	New Price (Per Barrel).	Former Price (Per Barrel).
Santa Fe Springs—
21 to 28.9 degrees gravity	.40	.89 to $1.10
29 to 39.9 degrees	.60	1.15 to 1.65
Signal Hill—
19 to 24.9 gravity	.40	.80 to 1.01

The reductions at Santa Fe Springs average between 70 and 75 cents a barrel, at Signal Hill 50 to 60 cents a barrel and at Seal Beach about 50 cents a barrel.

"Since the first of January," the statement by the Standard of California said, "there has been added to storage more than 40,000,000 barrels of oil and the present overproduction is 200,000 barrels a day. In addition, there is being blown into the air in California at the present time 800,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily. This is more than twice as much natural gas as is now being used for industrial and domestic purposes in the State. In terms of fuel oil this quantity of gas is equal to 132,000 barrels a day.

Law to Conserve Gas.

"The last Legislature of California passed an act prohibiting the waste of natural gas. On June 26, 1929, the authorities charged with the enforcement of this law notified the oil industry that the law would be put into effect at midnight Aug. 31, 1929. The enforcement of this law will not only stop the waste of natural gas, but will result in a material curtailment in the production of crude oil. Anticipating that the law would be enforced, this company refrained from reducing its offered price for crude oils in the fields mentioned, although it had been evident for several months that economic conditions justified a drastic cut.

"Since Sept. 1, 1929, there has been continued opposition to the State conservation law on the part of those controlling a small percentage of the production of the fields affected, which opposition continues to delay the operation of the law, thereby prolonging the indefensible waste of great quantities of natural gas and a resulting overproduction of crude oil in the fields in question.

"Within the last few days the Corporation Commissioner of Oklahoma, with the unanimous support of the operators and royalty owners, has curtailed the production in the flush and semi-flush fields of Oklahoma, so as to balance supply and demand. Similar cooperative effort has in the past successfully controlled and is now controlling overproduction in Texas. Cooperative effort in California to control flush pools has failed, notwithstanding the fact that in one of our flush pools it had the support of 85 per cent of the production.

"It is the established policy of the company to offer producers currently such prices for crude oil as conditions warrant. Present conditions do not justify the offering of a price which will encourage continued overproduction."

Shell Will Follow Suit.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 21 (AP).—Drastic price cuts for crude oil faced the California industry today when it became known that the Shell Oil Company would follow the action of the Standard Oil of California in marking down bids roughly 50 per cent.

Executives of the Shell company said the schedule set by Standard would be followed by Shell as a matter of course. The Union Oil Company also was expected to announce a schedule of price cuts affecting fields not dominated by Standard.

The remaining purchasers were expected to fall into line, with the result that many small independents would be forced to limit output sharply.

Necessity of checking the rate of production of crude grew from piling up of stores which taxed storage facilities, and placing supply steadily above demand, thereby giving the industry a touch of "acute economic indigestion."

Pearless Oil Acquired by Richfield.

The Richfield Oil Corporation of New York has acquired the properties and business of the Pearless Oil Company operating in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, it was announced yesterday.

Warns of Stock Sellers Posing As Benefactors of the Poor

Salesmen of securities who urge poor investors to buy stock which is in reality worthless on the ground that most of the wealthy men of the present gained their positions through confidence in new companies are the targets of this week's campaign of the National Better Business Bureau.

The poster quotes the Secretary of the Treasury to the effect that the rich man can afford to speculate, while failure of a speculation to the poor man means disaster. It urges the small investor to make use of the investigation services of the bureau before buying from salesmen who pose as benefactors of the poor in order to dispose of what is often totally worthless stock.

PARAMOUNT LASKY PLANS EXPANSION

Proposes 2-for-1 Stock Split and Increase of Authorized Shares to 15,000,000.

Prospects of an early expansion in the properties and operations of the Paramount Famous Lasky Corporation are seen in the action taken by directors of the company yesterday in calling a meeting of stockholders for Dec. 10, to consider a plan to split the capital stock on a two-for-one basis and to increase the authorized capital from 3,000,000 to 15,000,000 shares.

With 6,000,000 split-up shares outstanding, the balance of 9,000,000 shares authorized would remain to be used from time to time for expansion of business and increasing of assets, according to the directors. Among the assets which the company may acquire are the Warner Brothers moving picture company, although the terms for any deal of this nature have never been revealed by either company.

The directors did not take any dividend action on the new split-up shares and did not consider that the matter of dividends was important at this time in view of the fact that the new stock will not be delivered until after Jan. 1, 1930. Dividend action of the company for the December payment is usually taken at the November meeting of the board, and it is not expected that there will be any change in the regular rate of $3 a share annually at that time.

The closing price for Paramount Famous Lasky shares yesterday was 69 on the New York Stock Exchange, making the new stock worth about 34½ a share.

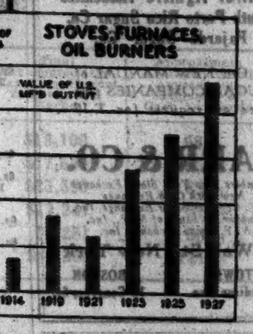
MICHIGAN INDUSTRIAL GIANT



UTILIZING FIRE-MAN'S GREATEST FRIEND

Three score years . . . . . from base burners to modern motor driven, oil-fed furnaces . . . . . a record of consistent leadership.

IN 1860 the first Michigan-made stove, a crude four-place range, followed by the historic burnside and the more ornate "parlor stove"—marked the beginning of the State's third largest industry. Today Michigan stoves and furnaces heat the homes of a nation and bring new world comfort to many foreign lands.

Detroit has the largest stove manufacturing plant in the world. Michigan's output in stoves and furnaces, not including oil burners, is valued at more than $57,405,828.00 annually. Wages and salaries of this industry total more than $10,000,000.00 yearly.

Through common stock investments the public participates in the growth of American industry. Careful study and long association with many types of financing place Keane, Higbie & Co. in a position to render expert counsel; both to industry requiring new capital and to those seeking sound investments in securities of the Middle West.

In New York State—

the City of Utica has remarkable advantages in its location. The Mohawk Valley is the great east and west transportation route—50 miles north are the Adirondack Mountains from which come water and water power in abundance; 100 miles south are the Pennsylvania coal mines. Situated on the main line of the New York Central Railroad, it is in direct communication with Chicago and the great markets to the west; to the east is the New England market, and to the southeast the shipping port of New York City opens up the markets of the world.

Manufacturing is well diversified, the principal industries being textiles and clothing, metal products and kindred lines.

Utica is a City of homes, with an extensive park system. Due to its strategic position it enjoys the best of railroad, electric power, water, gas and other public utility facilities. Excellent trolley service in all directions carries passengers from five to eight miles for a single fare.

The City has a population of well over 110,000, having increased nearly 100% since 1900.

The Consolidated Water Company of Utica, N. Y.

(now an Operating Unit of the General Water Works and Electric Group) was incorporated on November 13, 1899, and furnishes water to the City of Utica and certain contiguous smaller communities of an estimated population in excess of 135,000. The Company operates without competition in its territory and has satisfactory relations with its public.

The recent acquisition of this Company—an evidence of the sound, progressive policy of the General Water Works and Electric Corporation management—is part of the program which has already contributed to the rapid expansion shown in the following tabulation:

ADVANCE CONTINUED IN LISTED BONDS

Upward Price Movement Led by the Government Issues and Railroad Group.

FOREIGN LOANS IRREGULAR

But Gains Outweigh Losses—Tone of General Market Strengthened by News of New Issues.

Listed bonds yesterday continued the advance maintained all last week under the leadership of the government issues and the rails. All government securities traded in on the New York Stock Exchange showed gains for the day, the advances ranging from 2-32 to 20-32.

Further ease in call money, which dropped to 5 per cent, equal to the lowest levels of the year, together with news of a number of new issues being offered or shortly to be offered, helped the tone of the market. The activity among leading houses in bringing out straight investment issues at this time has been taken to indicate that the period during which all bond offerings had to be "sweetened" by a convertible feature is drawing to a close.

Among the rails the best gains of the day were made by Atchison adjustment 4s, Baltimore & Ohio 4s of 1941, Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s, Nickle Plate 4½s, Pere Marquette 5s, Missouri Pacific 5s of 1965 and Union Pacific 4s of 1968.

The foreign issues were irregular, but gains on the whole outnumbered losses and were generally of greater extent.

Controller Approves Part of Claim Against War Department.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP).—The payment of $134,442 of a $152,442 claim of the Public Service Coordinated Transport of Newark, N. J., against the War Department for damages received during the war by removal of railroad facilities was recommended today to Congress by Controller General McCarl.

The Public Service Coordinated Transport is the successor by consolidation to the Public Service Railway Company of Newark. The War Department removed certain railroad facilities during the war to establish the Woodbury Ordnance Reserve depot and bag loading plant near Camden, N. J., and failed to restore them after the war.

80,000 SHARES TRADED IN ONE DEAL ON CURB

Cities Service Stock, Unusually Active Throughout Session, Declines Sharply.

An opening transaction involving 80,000 shares of common stock of the Cities Service Company furnished some excitement in the initial dealings on the New York Curb Exchange yesterday. This block of stock, the second largest ever transferred in one trade on the Curb, sold at 65¾, which represented a decline of ¾ point, as compared with Saturday's close.

Trading was uncommonly heavy throughout the day and the stock fell sharply, closing at 53¾, with a net loss of 6¾ points. More than 936,000 shares changed hands during the five hours of trading, the stock accounting for a large part of the total trading on the Curb.

The break in Cities Service was ascribed to short selling and to profit-taking. The stock has had a sustained advance over a period of some months.

T. M. GIRDLER JOINS EATON STEEL GROUP

Resigns Presidency of Jones & Laughlin to Work on "Plans Affecting the Industry."

MERGER MOVES EXPECTED

Thomas M. Girdler has resigned the presidency of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation and associated himself with the Otis-Eaton-Mather steel interests of Cleveland, which are said to be the largest holders of steel stocks in the United States. The Otis-Eaton-Mather group is dominant in the Republic Iron and Steel Company and other steel enterprises.

Although it was said that Mr. Girdler would not have an executive position with any steel company but would be "actively engaged in the development of plans affecting the iron and steel industry," it was indicated that his association with the Otis-Eaton-Mather interests was a development of major importance that foreshadowed new steps in the expansion of this group's activities.

It is believed that Mr. Girdler will devote himself to the merger plans which Cyrus S. Eaton of Cleveland and associates have in mind. For some time it has been understood in Wall Street that Mr. Eaton was working on a consolidation of independent steel companies with Republic Iron and Steel as the nucleus. The Central Alloy Steel Corporation, the Inland Steel Company, the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, the Otis Steel Company and the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation are mentioned as units in the proposed consolidation. Should the proposed amalgamation take in all of these companies there would be set up a unit rivaling in size the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, which is now the second largest company in the country, ranking next to the United States Steel Corporation.

Mr. Girdler was born on a farm in Clark County, Indiana. He attended high school in Louisville, Ky., and was graduated from Lehigh University in the class of 1901 with the degree of mechanical engineer. He then became connected with the Buffalo Forge Company. Later he went to London, where he was in the heating and ventilating equipment business. Returning to the United States, he became connected with the Oliver Iron and Steel Company of Pittsburgh. He was with that company three and a half years, after which he joined the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company. Still later he became superintendent of rolling mills for the Atlanta Steel Company, advancing within six months to the general superintendency of the company. He went with the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation in 1914 as assistant to the general superintendent of the Aliquippa works, advancing steadily until he became president in January, 1928.

Mr. Girdler is a trustee of the Equitable Trust Company of New York, director of the Union National Bank of Pittsburgh, trustee of Lehigh University, director of the Petroleum Corporation of America and a director of the American Iron and Steel Institute.

COLUMBIA DEAL LIKELY BY U.S. STEEL THURSDAY

Acquisition of $40,000,000 Company Expected to Be Authorized at Special Meeting of Board.

Acquisition by the United States Steel Corporation of the $40,000,000 Columbia Steel Company of California will be authorized at a special meeting of directors of United States Steel on Thursday, it is expected in Wall Street.

The calling of the special meeting of United States Steel directors was believed to foreshadow such action, since the option to acquire Columbia Steel will expire a week from today and the regular meeting of United States Steel directors will not take place until that time. For this reason, action on the Columbia Steel acquisition will have to be taken before Tuesday.

The terms of the transaction with Columbia have not been disclosed, but it is expected that the properties will be acquired through an exchange of stock. United States Steel has sufficient authorized and unissued stock to carry out such an exchange.

Although no intimation was given at the Steel Corporation's offices as to what matters were to be considered on Thursday, it was considered possible that another announcement besides that of the acquisition of Columbia Steel might be made. For some time United States Steel and the Bethlehem Steel Corporation have been negotiating for a settlement out of court of the $250,000,000 patent infringement suit which the latter brought early this year against the former.

TIRE PRODUCTION IN AUGUST

Tire manufacturers in the United States produced 5,805,804 pneumatic casings during August, according to estimates of the Rubber Manufacturers' Association. Production of inner tubes was estimated at 5,846,402, and that of solid and cushion tires at 42,518. Inventories on Aug. 31, were estimated as 14,225,820 for all pneumatic casings, 14,156,770 for inner tubes and 156,410 for solid and cushion tires.

The tire industry is estimated to have consumed 60,644,800 pounds of crude rubber and 21,070,370 pounds of cotton fabric during August. The association's estimates are based on reports furnished by manufacturers of 75 per cent of the output in the United States.

HAILS FAST GROWTH OF INSURANCE TRUST

SEES NEW RECORD FOR 1929

$2,000,000,000 in Life Policies Will Be on Deposit by End of Year, R. A. Lewis Jr. Tells Meeting Here.

The life insurance trust is regarded as the fastest growing form of trust service in existence today, according to Reuben A. Lewis Jr., executive manager of the trust company division of the American Bankers' Association, who spoke at the opening session of the Trust Development Conference at the Hotel Astor yesterday. This conference, which is being held under the auspices of the Equitable Trust Company of New York, will continue through tomorrow.

"Two national surveys were made to determine the amount of insurance deposited under trust agreement," he declared. "The first was conducted in the Spring of 1928, and returns to the questionnaire were made by more than 1,500 banks and trust companies. The total amount of insurance reported deposited for 1923 was $28,842,954 and for 1924 $32,907,801. It was in 1925 that the movement started showing real results, as $64,795,650 was reported for that year; $138,005,667 for 1926 and $276,785,000 for 1927.

"The second annual survey disclosed that more than $700,000,000 in life insurance had been deposited under trust agreements during 1928, and it is believed that the results for 1929 will be even better than for the preceding year. From these figures, it may be estimated that more than $2,000,000,000 in life insurance will have been brought within the protection of trust agreements by the end of the present year."

Participants in the conference were welcomed at the forenoon session by Arthur W. Loasby, chairman of the Equitable Trust Company, who expressed the opinion that there should be more frequent meetings at which representatives of trust companies and life insurance companies might discuss the question of estate conservation, in which they are mutually interested.

"In the last ten or fifteen years," said Mr. Loasby, "the trust companies have made great progress in the handling of estates. It seems to me that this is the beginning of a great movement for the creation and the conservation of wealth. See what it will mean if through efforts of this kind trust officers throughout this land can understand the insurance man's business and, not for direct profit but for the benefit of the whole cause, urge the purchase of life insurance, and the insurance man in turn urge the creation of life insurance trusts. It will lead to great development and the great conservation of wealth."

Other speakers on the program yesterday were: M. Babcock, vice president, Equitable Trust Company; Roger B. Hull, managing director, National Association of Life Underwriters; Thomas I. Parkinson, president, Equitable Life Assurance Society; Ethelbert I. Low, president, Home Life Insurance Company, and Nathaniel H. Seefurth, president, National Service Publications, Inc.

EMPLOYMENT GAINS IN PARTS OF STATE

TREND HERE IS IMPROVED

Fall Activity in Clothing and Related Trades Brings Gain of 4 Per Cent in Payrolls.

ALBANY, Oct. 21 (AP).—Perceptible improvements in employment conditions in the clothing, canning and allied industries and a gradual weakening in some of the metal industries were noted in the latest report of the State Labor Department.

The downward trend left since March in New York City was reversed by Fall activity in the clothing and related trades, employment gaining 2 per cent and payrolls 4 per cent. On the other hand, general losses were reported in New York City in sheet metal and hardware firms and in the automobile and airplane factories.

Changes were irregular in the Buffalo district, a small loss in workers and a gain of more than 1 per cent in payrolls being noted. Most of the metals continued to reduce forces, but increased operations in railroad equipment and repair shops offset this decline. Operations expanded generally among producers of furniture and musical instruments, shoes and chemicals.

Payrolls increased among producers of flour and cereals, meats and baked goods, although most of the food industries reduced the number of workers. For the most part the stone, clay and glass firms reported greater activity.

In the Try-City district, Albany, Troy and Schenectady, most of the railroad equipment and repair shops increased payrolls, but corresponding increases in employment were not always noted. Payrolls also were greater for some pig iron and rolling mill plants, but a 25 per cent decrease in employment was reported by knit goods makers. Printers lost ground because of reduction of forces in one plant, but most paper goods producers were busier.

Employment in the Utica district was lower than a year ago. Payrolls decreased 2 per cent, but were 3 per cent higher than at the same time last year.

Continued improvement was noted in the Rochester district, canneries and shoe factories reporting most of the increases. Employment was 8 per cent and payrolls 12 per cent higher than at the same time last year.

In the Syracuse district most of the metal firms showed a downward tendency, but men's clothing shops increased payrolls, while having fewer workrs. Dullness was reported among clay producers and the canneries were the only food industry reporting increases.

Employment in the Binghamton district was 13 per cent better than at the same time last year, with a higher wage basis.

Reliance International Reports.

The Reliance International Corporation, affiliated with the Reliance Management Corporation, reports that 82 per cent of its total assets was in cash and call loans at the close of business on Oct. 19, while only 18 per cent represented investments, including commitments, of which 12¾ per cent was in stock and 5¼ per cent in bonds.

SELLING MOVEMENT HITS COUNTER STOCKS

Bank and Insurance Shares Decline Sharply—Most Others Dull and Lower.

Selling predominated on the Over-the-Counter market yesterday. Bank and Insurance stocks declined severely, with no attempts at rallying evident at any time. National City was a heavy loser and other bank stocks showing declines were First National of New York, United States Trust, Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, Manhattan Company old and new, Guaranty, Corn Exchange and Bankers.

New York Fire, Bronx and Merchants and Manufacturers were among the many insurance issues which sustained losses.

Chain stores were quiet and weak, with Fishman preferred, Metropolitan and J. C. Penney lower. I. Miller and Schiff held firm. Communication stocks, bonds and aeronautical were dull, while utility common stocks were weak in sympathy with the whole range of the market. Utility preferred stocks were strong and active.

MARKETS IN LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN

FRENCH STOCKS DECLINE

Government and Bank Securities Hardest Hit—Prices Irregular on German Bourse.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Following Saturday's break in Wall Street prices, the London Stock Exchange was very weak and generally lower today. So many British shares are now quoted in New York that the effect of the Wall Street decline was seen in nearly every section of the London Exchange. A general feeling of nervousness was evident, the decline in prices being accentuated by settlement day.

Further strength in sterling kept the gilt-edge section firm; the 3½ per cent conversion loan advancing to £73 11-16 and the war loan to £102. Industrials were governed by the New York decline and home realizations. Courtaulds fell from £3¼ to £3 7-32, Rolls-Royce from 51s to 50s, Associated Electric from 34s 3d to 31s and General Electric from 51s 6d to 48s.

His Master's Voice Graphophone declined from £6⅛ to £5 15-16 and Columbia Graphophone from £11¼ to £10⅝. Margarine Union fell from £4⅝ to £4 9-32 and Margarine Unie declined to £4 11-32 from £4 11-16. Hydro-electric dropped to 60 from 65½. Holding sold at 7⅞ after 8⅝ and International Nickel declined to 50½ from 53.

Although reports continue conflicting in regard to the Horne group, there was some improvement in the shares today. Apart from a decline by White Star preference to 14s 7½d, there was little change in shipping. Royal Mail 5 per cent preference was dull at 47, while the 6½ per cent preference hardened to 47½.

Royal Dutch Oil at 236⅝ sustained a heavy fall, due to New York selling. Other oils also were lower. The mining market generally was dull.

The credit supply was good in Lombard Street. Day-to-day loans were obtainable at 5 per cent. Discounts were quiet, apart from a demand for new treasuries at 6⅛ down to 6 1-16. There was further strength in sterling on New York, the rate advancing to $4.87½-$4.87 17-32.

Prices Lower in Paris.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 21.—Saturday's landslide of prices on the New York Stock Exchange exerted a depressing influence on the Bourse today, causing all quotations to open low. The effect was particularly noticeable in government securities and stocks of leading banks. Following a slight increase in demand, some stocks recovered a little toward the close, but the general trend was weak all day.

French rentes failed to resist the downward movement, closing as follows: The 3 per cents, 78.34; 1917 4s, 95; 1918 4s, 93.80; 1920 amortizable 5s, 124.50; 1928 5s, 103.80; 1920 6s, 105.50; 1927 amortizable 6s, 106.90.

Early Gains Lost in Berlin.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—The Boerse began the new week slightly firmer and there was improvement during the first hour. Conspicuous gains were made by International Holding and Dessauer Gas in connection with reports of an impending merger between these groups. Schuckert advanced 7 points, Gesfuerel 4 and Dessauer Gas 6 points.

Mining shares, which were sought from the Rhineland, Holland and the United States, also improved sharply, stimulated by firmness in Kloeckner shares, which gained 8 points. Department stores were firm and Dyestruit slightly improved.

At the beginning of the second hour Holland began to unload artificial silk shares, which was the cause of a general decline, and with few exceptions the day's advances were completely lost. Glanzstoff dropped 16 and Bemberg 11 points. Siemens shares of the electricals fell 5 points after an earlier gain of 2 points.

The money market was easier, call loans being 7½ to 9½ per cent.

WHEAT PRICES RISE AS TRADING CLOSES

SHIPPING DEMAND IS SLOW

Closing of Spreads Between Corn and Wheat Sends the Former to Higher Close.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Pressure, due to the weakness in the stock market, was in evidence in the wheat market early today. The buying on the decline was of a better class than the selling, strong commission houses taking the May. Toward the last local shorts started to cover freely, and ran prices up sharply, the finish being 1 to 1¼ cents higher. March sold at a new low on the crop early, and the other deliveries at a new low on the present movement, but there was comparatively little selling on stop loss orders.

Winnipeg closed at net gains of 1⅜ to 1⅞ cents. Buenos Aires was ¼ to ⅝ cent higher in the face of further reports of rains, but the effect of the latter was more than offset by frost reports from Western Buenos Aires and the Pampas. Heavy rains and wind in Entre Rios were said to have caused much grain to dislodge.

Sentiment after the close was less bearish than for several days. Shipping demand during the day was slow, with sales of 300,000 bushels in all positions. Official reports on September rainfall during that month of 1.07 inches, the smallest with two exceptions in the past ten years, and compared with a normal of 1.70 inches.

Liverpool was easy and ⅞ to 1⅛ hence lower for the day. Confirmation has been secured of liberal American buying in Liverpool and sales here by spreaders, and the difference between the May deliveries in the two markets was around 8¾ cents at the time the former market closed, against 3 cents over recently.

The domestic visible supplies increased 229,000 bushels for the week and is 192,796,000 bushels against 192,567,000 bushels the previous week, and 129,763,000 bushels last year.

Primary receipts today 1,885,000 bushels; week ago 2,562,000 bushels; last year 4,765,000 bushels. Shipments 766,000 bushels; week ago, 1,131,000 bushels; last year 1,334,000 bushels.

Closing of spreads between corn and wheat, the former being bought, gave the market a strong undertone, and the finish was 1 to 1⅞ cents higher. Cash houses bought December to remove hedges against shipping sales, and 275,000 bushels were reported sold to the East, including 150,000 bushels Saturday. Charters were for 200,000 bushels to Buffalo. The spot basis was ½ to 1 cent lower on old, and 1 to 2 cents lower on new.

The visible supply decreased 44,000 bushels for the week and is 3,894,000 bushels against 3,938,000 bushels the previous week and 2,146,000 bushels last year.

Primary arrivals of corn today aggregated 1,208,000 bushels; week ago 1,076,000 bushels; last year, 1,043,000 bushels. Shipments 371,000 bushels; week ago 508,000 bushels; last year 463,000 bushels.

Cash and commission houses were fair buyers of oats while locals sold, but the finish was about the top with net gains of ⅛ to ⅜ cent. Country offerings were light and shipping sales 50,000 bushels. Trade in rye was light and prices closed ¼ to ⅜ cent higher.

Prices for the principal grains were as follows:

Furniture Men Favor Institute.

A suggestion that a furniture institute for the discussion of problems facing jobbers and retailers in the industry be held at New York during the seasonal openings of new lines is gaining favor among producers who exhibit here. Such institutes are held at other markets in the country, but were not considered for New York until recently. Authorities on merchandising, credit control and other problems of the trade would be asked to address the sessions here, it was stated. While there is little likelihood of arranging such an attraction for the January showings, it is expected the plan will be carried out at the July opening.

Dress Demand Is Steady.

Aside from an increasing trend toward flat crêpes in popular-priced dresses, there is not much change from the situation of the last week or two. Satins are strong, and there is also a continued demand for frocks of canton crêpe. The latter, however, seem to be moving less freely in many quarters than earlier in the season. Reports of sales of tweed effects are less optimistic than a month ago. Deliveries are slowly improving. In the higher-priced houses attention is being turned to Winter resort lines, but indications yesterday were that makers of less expensive dresses would go into that season this year quite a little later than usual.

Suit Alterations Numerous.

That consumers are not accepting the new lengths in suits as freely as in dresses is indicated by reports received in this market from out-of-town stores regarding the number of alterations demanded. A tabulation made in one authoritative quarter indicates that fully 40 per cent of the skirts purchased in suits are being altered for length. In about 25 per cent of sales the new lengths are accepted without comment, the tabulation shows, while in the remaining 35 per cent alterations of length are avoided through clever selling of the new lines by saleswomen. These figures are taken by the tabulator as definite proof that extreme lengths in suit skirts should be avoided by manufacturers.

Shows Handwoven Coatings.

A group of handwoven sports coatings of loose "lacey" construction, showing bright-colored rayon nubs, are a feature of the Spring lines of women's wear fabrics opened yesterday by J. C. Milne & Co., Inc. These cloths are shown in ten colors and in both 54 and 36 inch widths. Sports fabrics are predominant in the line which includes suitings, ensemble fabrics and coatings. The patterns are small, colorings including both bright and soft pastel effects. The coatings feature new panel effects, brushed woolens and camel's-hair cloths. The line is priced from $1,17½ to $4.50.

Will Watch Coat Buying.

Buying of women's coats this week and next will be closely watched by manufacturers. Further duplicating by retailers in an important way will indicate sufficient acceptance of new styles by consumers to presage a successful season. Failure to receive substantial orders may mean a pile-up of stocks and season-end sacrifices. At present there is little merchandise available. This is especially so in medium and popular priced houses, where surpluses might normally be expected to exist in a season as uncertain as this. The biggest factor in this uncertainty is length, due to the disposition of many women to let their dresses show below their coats this season.

New Shoe-Millinery Containers.

To solve the problem of keeping shoes and hats in the most convenient place in the home, new types of compartment boxes are being placed on the market here. The boxes are of artistic design, covered with a patterned washable paper and are light enough in weight to be easily portable. The interior is arranged to provide an individual unit for each pair of shoes and a large-sized one for millinery. The boxes are available in different sizes and are priced to retail at popular figures.

Light Jubilee Helps Sales.

Manufacturers of table and floor lamp stands for the home expect a substantial increase of interest in and sale of their products as a result of the "Golden Jubilee of Light" celebration at Detroit. The publicity attendant upon the event, it is claimed, has had a good effect on sales already. All electric household appliances will benefit also, it is felt. Lamp manufacturers are now busy filling holiday orders which are reaching their peak. Deliveries on many of the better lines are now on a basis of three to four weeks from the date of order.

Camel's-Hair Vogue in Spring.

With new records set up this Fall for the use of camels'-hair fabrics in women's, men's and children's garments, the indications are that the vogue will also be a strong feature of the early Spring (1930) season. Most mills are including the fabrics in their new lines, either in 100 per cent or mixture types. At the moment the demand for the cloths, both in the flat and the pile version, is extremely strong and difficulty in obtaining delivery is remarked. Buying of the camel's hair for making yarns has been active in the primary export markets, but no marked shortage is reported.

Statuettes of Animals Popular.

Animal subjects are popular leaders in buyer's selections of book-ends, statuettes and similar novelty gift items for the holiday trade. Orders for these objects and for desk sets and smoking stands were numerous in the market yesterday. A special smoking stand of bronze finished in pastel shades is being offered as a specialty for women. The stands, approximately two feet in height, are intended for boudoirs and will retail around $9. Smoking stands for men follow the conventional designs of last year and are featured in bronze or with a bronze finish.

Gray Goods Trading Light.

Several factors combined to keep business limited in the local gray goods market yesterday, not the least of which was the unsettled situation in Wall Street. Trading in print-cloths was based on 39-inch 68-72s at 8¾ cents and 38½-inch 60-48s at 6¾ cents. Business in 37-inch 48-square, four-yard sheetings was done at 8½ cents, and there was trading in 36-inch 56-60, four-yard goods at 8½ cents. Eastern makes of 37½-inch 4.37-yard sateens sold in a small way at 11¼ cents. In the fine-yarn cloths little was done. Prices were based on 11½ cents for 40 inch 88-80, 8.50-yard combed lawns.

RUBBER FUTURES DECLINE.

Heavy Tone on Exchange Here Due to Speculative Selling.

Speculative selling imparted a heavy tone to crude rubber futures on the Rubber Exchange yesterday, and the market closed with losses of 10 to 20 points on the day. The turnover was 697¼ long tons.

GARMENT CENTRE GROUP TO DISCUSS CONGESTION

Conference at Meeting Today Will Also Take Up Problem of Rental Concessions.

The Garment Centre Realty Owners Association, recently organized, will meet this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Hotel Pennsylvania to discuss street congestion, coordinated deliveries, abolition of dummy tenants involving rental concessions, and other problems of the garment trades area, according to Tobias A. Kepplier, counsel of the association.

The association also hopes to attract kindred trades to the district.

"Before this section was improved," said Henry I. Cohen, chairman of the membership drive committee of the association, "it was customary for property owners to give inducements or concessions to tenants renting premises on lease. This took the form of one, two or three months' occupancy without rent and was considered sound business at that time. Today the custom still survives in this section to a great extent and is exhibited by a type of tenant that the Garment Centre Realty Owners Association would prefer to see elsewhere.

"The concession seeker is usually incorporated with dummies and is out to obtain a year's occupancy for eight months' rent. This unwholesome and uneconomic condition is retarding the development and expansion of the garment centre area, and one of the purposes of the association is to abolish concessions altogether."

Oils and Fats Cheaper.

Quotations on animal, vegetable and fish oils, fats and greases had a downward trend during the week ended on Oct. 19, according to the Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter. The index number of prices was 130.8 for the week, based on 100 in August, 1914, compared with 131.2 a week earlier and 146.3 a year ago. The demand was fair, but for moderate quantities.

POR

COTTON MARKET UP AS OTHERS DECLINE

Futures Here Advance as Well as in New Orleans and Chicago.

GAINS MADE IN LIVERPOOL

Local Prices Rise 5 to 8 Points on the Day—Peak of Marketing Believed Passed.

Considering the action of both the stock and grain markets during the greater part of the day, prices on the Cotton Exchange displayed decided resistance yesterday and not only steadied but improved a quarter of a cent at one time. When compared with the volume of hedges sold each day last week, there was a material decrease in operations of this character, while predictions of frost in northern sections of the cotton belt last night caused covering on the part of a professional short interest. Final quotations showed a gain of 5 to 8 points on the day. Spot sales at Southern markets aggregated 64,000 bales, against 43,000 a year ago.

Although a further decline in Alexandria brought the level of Egyptian cotton more than 6 cents below prices of a year ago, quotations for American contracts in Liverpool improved and the contract markets here and in New Orleans and Chicago recovered slightly following last week's steady decline.

With port receipts for the first two days of the week less than those last week as well as less than a year ago, a general impression prevailed that Friday's record-breaking into-sight figures represented the peak of this season's marketing movement.

Reports from Memphis indicate that the brilliant prospects in central regions of the belt have been bettered since Oct. 1, and while the crop is turning out poorly in North Carolina, conditions in eastern sections show little important change. On the other hand, returns from Texas and Oklahoma, particularly western parts of those States, are poorer in quantity and quality than indicated a month ago.

Yesterday's quotations here follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Day.
Oct. (n.)	17.98	17.94	17.82	17.82	17.79-
Dec.	17.98	18.13	17.98	18.02-03	17.95-95

July	18.84	18.93	18.83	18.83	18.75-78

The local market for spot cotton was quiet, 5 points decline to 18.05c for middling upland; sales, 900 bales.

Southern spot markets were: Galveston, 18.10c, 10 points advance, sales 2,015 bales; New Orleans, 17.81c, 11 points advance, sales 11,372 bales; Savannah, 17.58c, 9 points advance, sales 1,120 bales; Augusta, 17.63c, 7 points advance, sales 911 bales; Memphis, 16.65c, 5 points advance, sales 10,584 bales; Houston, 17.90c, 10 points advance, sales 11,474 bales; Little Rock, 16.72c, 10 points advance, sales 3,650 bales; Dallas, 17.05c, 10 points advance, sales 13,901 bales.

Yesterday's cotton statistics were:

Tenants Take Over New House.

The new fifteen-story and penthouse cooperative apartment, known as 40 Fifth Avenue, on the southwest corner of Eleventh Street, the first of its kind on lower Fifth Avenue, has just been turned over to the tenant-stockholders, Douglas L. Elliman & Co., selling and managing agents, announce. There are seventy-three apartments in the building, sixty-one of which have been sold.

SPINNING ACTIVITY LARGER.

The Department of Commerce announces that according to preliminary census figures 24,643,998 cotton spinning spindles were in place in the United States on September 30, 1929, of which 20,037,922 were operated at some time during the month, compared with 20,226,880 for August, 20,397,190 for July, 20,631,800 for June, 20,937,182 for May, 20,911,416 for April, and 28,209,094 for September, 1928.

The aggregate number of active spindles reported for the month was 7,881,178,700. During September the normal time of operation was 24½ days (allowance being made for the observance of Labor Day in some localities), compared with 27 for August, 25 for July, 25 for June, 26½ for May, and 25 2-3 for April. Based on an activity of 8.88 hours per day the average number of spindles operated during September was 35,225,311, or at 104.0 per cent capacity on a single shift basis. This percentage compared with 97.7 for August, 100.3 for July, 104.8 for June, 110.9 for May, 110.3 for April, and 90.1 for September, 1928. The average number of active spindle hours per spindle in place for the month was 226.

Building Cost Rate Increases.

Building contractors throughout the United States are receiving 13 cents more a square foot for floor area this year than last year, according to the National Home Study Council of Washington, which finds also that in 1920 the average contract cost of all types of construction was $5.67 per square foot of floor space, while in 1929 it was $6.88, an increase of $1.74 a square foot. The rise during the past year reflects in part, it is said, an increase in the proportion of the more expensive types of structures, such as office buildings, factories and public works. This type of work has meant also a demand for more highly skilled labor and at increased wages, the council reports.

Adds to Radburn Development.

The City Housing Corporation has bought a twenty-acre tract in Fairlawn, N. J., from Fennix Brocker, who has owned the property for more than forty years. The tract is east of the Erie Railroad between Broadway and Berdan Avenue, in the industrial section of Radburn, a "town for the motor age," which the City Housing Corporation is developing. Borg, Rusch & Boyd, Inc., were the brokers.

New York Central Increases 11th Avenue Holdings—Deal on Central Park West.

Forecasting a possible commercial improvement for the Fifty-sixth Street block between Madison and Park Avenues, the two private residences at Nos. 78 and 80, fronting 33 feet by 100, have been purchased by the operator, Bernard Kempner in association with Maurice L. Stone. The house at 78 was bought from Dr. Robert Holmes Greene, who has owned and occupied it for forty years. The adjoining house at 80 was bought from Charles Boston, the international lawyer, who has occupied it for several years.

The property is within 66 feet of the southwest corner of Park Avenue and adjoins the seventeen-story apartment house there which covers the block front between Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth Streets. The same operators recently acquired the house at 53 East Fifty-first Street, 75 feet from the Park Avenue corner.

A movement has been started to rezone Park Avenue from Fifty-first to Fifty-seventh Street for business with an extension of 100 feet on the side streets and purchases have been actuated by the belief that such a change will be authorized in the near future. Theens & Flaunlacher were the brokers in the present transaction.

Samuel Barkin & Sons increased their east side holdings by purchasing the four-story tenement at 1,071 First Avenue, 25 by 75, being 75 feet from the northwest corner of Fifty-eighth Street. They own in that vicinity the property at 347-351 East Fifty-eighth Street and the recent deal gives them a plot of about 8,000 square feet surrounding the corner of First Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street. Fass & Wolper were the brokers.

Additional property on Eleventh Avenue for the New York Central Railroad as announced by Brown, Wheelock: Harris, Vought & Co., who report that they have sold to the New York State Realty and Terminal Company, in whose name the railroad realty is held, the northeast corner of Eleventh Avenue and Thirty-sixth Street for the Marlborough Trading Corporation. The property includes the parcels at 438-448 Eleventh Avenue and 563 West Thirty-sixth Street, fronting 128.5 on the avenue by 100 feet on the street.

On the west side the old seven-story apartment house known as the Cayuga, on the south corner of Central Park West and Ninetieth Street, 50 by 100 feet, was sold by David E. McLoughlin to the F. R. B. Realty Company. The brokers in the deal were the Real Estate Management Company and Rice & Hill. It is in a section which is being rapidly improved with high-class apartment houses overlooking the park.

Close to the Times Square area a new hotel operation has been started on the south side of Forty-seventh Street between Broadway and Eighth Avenue. Wreckers are tearing down four old structures there from 228 to 248, covering a frontage of 217.5 feet. Among them are the four-story building occupied for twenty years or so by the American Express Company, fronting 100 feet and the old Morgan warehouse adjoining, eight stories in height.

The property was recently acquired from the Shubert interests by the M. J. Kramer Company. Herbert J. Krapp, architect, has prepared plans for improving the site with a twenty-five story hotel of 250 rooms, costing approximately $5,000,000. It is expected to be ready for occupancy late in 1930.

Recreation and Office Centre Planned by Church in Harlem

A six-story recreation centre and office building is to be erected at the northwest corner of Lenox Avenue and 123d Street by the Reformed Church of Harlem, of which the Rev. Edgar Tilton Jr. is pastor, according to plans filed with the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings yesterday.

The building will have a frontage of 100.11 feet and a depth of 168 feet, and, according to the architect, Eugene De Rosa, Inc., will cost $250,000.

MUST VACATE FLATS FOR BRIDGE APPROACH

Tenants in Three Blocks Near Hudson River Span Ordered Out by Nov. 30.

Tenants in three blocks of apartments doomed to make way for the construction of the Washington Heights approach to the new Hudson River Bridge have been given notice to vacate by Nov. 30, H. S. Quigel, land agent for the Port of New York Authority, announced yesterday.

A score of buildings will come down for the bridge approach, and demolition work is scheduled to get under way Dec. 1, Mr. Quigel said. The houses are in the blocks from Fort Washington Avenue to Haven Avenue, between 178th and 179th Streets. One or two buildings on the west side of Haven Avenue also will be destroyed. Bids will be sought within two weeks on the wrecking job in order that it may proceed as soon as all the tenants have vacated. Nearly 3,000 persons are being forced into new quarters by the bridge work, it was said. Most of them already have moved.

Tenants in the block between Broadway and Fort Washington Avenue will be given another year or more before work on the bridge plaza will necessitate the destruction of these houses also.

FAVORS BROOKLYN AS SITE OF BIG PIERS

SEES BAY TRAFFIC IMPEDED

William C. Redfield, Secretary of Commerce under President Wilson and now active in civic and banking affairs in Brooklyn, urged South Brooklyn as the site of the port's pier development yesterday, at a luncheon of the special committee which has been gathered by the New York Board of Trade to consider the problem of suitable piers for 1,000-foot liners.

"Manhattan must get rid of its superiority complex on this matter," he said, "and realize that Brooklyn is the controlling borough and is prepared to state the facts. We are at the core rather than the rim of the city and our population is 4,000,000. Every reason from the availability of piers to the benefit of our location which would serve in diverting traffic from Manhattan can be cited for the Brooklyn piers."

A transatlantic liner, he said, must travel eight miles beyond the South Brooklyn piers to get to the Manhattan piers, and it must pass across the routes of nine ferry lines in addition to the transient harbor traffic. If the development of the State Barge Canal as favored by Governor Roosevelt is carried out, he added, the traffic that will come down the Hudson River will create a situation that will not without grave danger permit movement of transatlantic vessels to Manhattan piers.

"An argument advanced for Manhattan is that the piers must be near the large hotels," said Mr. Redfield. "We have seen that hotels are not stable and their centre is always moving. Where are the Waldorf Astoria, the Holland House, the Knickerbocker and the Manhattan Hotels? The factor in locating these piers should be their use in diverting traffic from the crowded areas to those that are less crowded.

Sees Traffic Jams Eased.

"With the completion of the triborough bridge and the vehicular tunnel connecting Staten Island and Brooklyn, passengers arriving at Brooklyn piers could reach all the other boroughs without touching Manhattan. There are trains within 500 feet of the pier landings to take passengers to any part of the country. Then, too, the cost of Manhattan piers is 150 per cent the cost of Brooklyn piers."

Mr. Redfield pointed out that river and harbor traffic is not treated fairly by the transatlantic liners which upset the even movement of such traffic when they come through the harbor and up the river to their piers on the west bank of Manhattan.

The case for Brooklyn was also advanced by S. C. Blackiston, vice president of the Bush Company. He cited the five piers ranging in length from 1,198 to 1,739 feet, between Twenty-eighth and Thirty-sixth Streets, Brooklyn, as meeting the requirements of the Atlantic lines. The rental of the longest pier, he said, is only $100,000 a year and the city must get $500,000 a year from its Manhattan piers.

Pleads for Staten Island Piers.

A break came in the luncheon program when Max Thaten, a lessee of a municipal pier at Staten Island, speaking for that district, admitted that passenger steamers could not be accommodated but that freight ships are well cared for there. Mr. Thaten was followed by J. P. Magill, special representative of the Maritime Association, who charged that Mr. Thaten did not want the passenger ships to go to Staten Island because he would be forced out of his lease by such traffic. He asked that Mr. Thaten's status be entered in the record as a lessee who sought to protect his interests. Mr. Thaten asked for opportunity to reply, which was refused by W. J. L. Banham, president of the Board of Trade and chairman of the committee.

Mr. Banham emphasized that the committee held no brief for any section of the port district in reaching its agreement as to the site of the proposed piers. He said that the committee will be taken on a boat trip to all sections of the port at its next meeting, to permit close study.

LAST OF TANK FLEET SOLD.

Two Ships Bring in Excess of $70 a Ton for Agwi.

The Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies Company yesterday sold two tankers, the last of the fleet of fourteen which once was maintained by the line when it controlled oil property in Colombia and Mexico. The Agmars was sold to the Beacon Oil Company and the Agwaworld was sold to the Hawaiian Steamship Company. The price was in excess of $70 a ton, it was announced by Franklin D. Mooney, president of the Agwi group.

Mr. Mooney said that the line now has formally left the oil business and will devote its time and funds to the upbuilding of its passenger and freight lines.

The New York office of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha was notified yesterday of the launching of two new motorships in Japanese yards as part of the $40,000,000 building program which the line has undertaken. They are the Hikawa Maru, first of a trio being built for the Seattle-Orient service, and the Heiyo Maru, which will be added to the Orient-California-South American West Coast service.

RIVAL LINES SEEKING BREMEN RATE RISE

North Atlantic Conference to Consider Plan to Reduce Passenger Competition.

The success of the North German Lloyd liner Bremen has caused rival lines in the North Atlantic Passenger Conference to seek a higher rate differential for that ship as a means of diverting traffic to their ships, it was learned yesterday.

The conference will meet Oct. 31 in Paris to consider this and other matters. The Bremen was classed alone by the conference because of its speed and size. Her minimum passenger rates are $5 in excess of those for liners such as the Leviathan, Majestic, Olympic and Ile de France.

The Bremen's minimum first-class rate in the Winter season is $277.50 and in the Summer and intermediate seasons when traffic is heavy and most of the liners are crowded it is $325. The Bremen has carried close to capacity crowds, leaving at times with 1,500 passengers, while a rival ship has carried 500.

The rival lines, it is explained, do not object to the Bremen's traveling with heavy loads in the Summer months, but now that traffic is lighter they have suffered and believe they can get some of the Bremen's crowds if they have a lower rate of fare. Any action by the passenger conference to increase rates must have unanimous approval of all member lines, which creates an obstacle in this case.

WOMAN SUES C. A. PITMAN.

Asks $89,730, Saying He Broke Agreement to Pay Her as Companion.

A suit for $89,730 against Clarence A. Pitman, for some years American representative of Sir Isaac Pitman & Sons Co., of London, director of the New York and Toronto branches and nephew of Sir Isaac Pitman, originator of the Pitman shorthand system, was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by Louise C. Dixon for breach of an engagement. The plaintiff, who is said to be a scenario writer and was employed in the Pitman household in Scarsdale for some years, alleges that Mr. Pitman agreed in 1920, shortly after the death of his first wife, to pay her $300 a month for life on her promise to devote her attention solely to him, give him her love and affection, and to remain single unless she should marry him.

The complaint alleges that the payments were made in full until the middle of 1925, after which the defendant paid $275 a month until August, 1927, and thereafter $250 monthly to November, 1928, since which time, the plaintiff alleges, she has received nothing. She declares she has fulfilled her part of the contract and asks for the value of the $300 monthly payments based on her expectancy of life.

Mr. Pitman, who was married in 1927 to Clara Newell, granddaughter of John R. Voorhis, Elections Board head and Grand Sachem of Tammany Hall, denies the alleged agreement and asserts that the plaintiff was married at the time she says she agreed to remain single. Although the papers were served on Mr. Pitman at 10 Wright Place, Scarsdale, on May 23, they were not filed until yesterday. Mr. Pitman is a member of the National Republican Club.

NOTED HORSEWOMAN KILLED

Mount Tramples Mrs. M. S. Owens to Death in Maryland.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 21.—Mrs. Marie Simpson Owens, aged 26, accomplished horsewoman, who a year ago sought a jockey's license, was killed last evening when she fell from her horse on a bridle path near Towson, Md.

Gilbert Twilley and John Sheffer Jr., who were following, picked her up. They did not see her fall, as she had rounded a curve in the path ahead of them. She had been thrown and trampled to death by her mount. Sadie Simpson, a relative in San Antonio, Texas, was notified.

Mrs. Owens was a native of Alabama, but as a young child had moved with her parents to Texas, where she learned to ride.

When she applied for a jockey's license a year ago she explained that she had been riding since she was 4 years old and was confident she could handle a racing horse. She said she saw no reason why her sex should interfere with the granting of a license.

Small and slender, Mrs. Owens was the ideal size for a jockey, and, dressed in mannish habit, she looked the part. Although the license was not granted, she continued her interest in riding.

LINDBERGH FLIES BIG PLANE

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, who for the last three days has been testing out the flying and aquatic qualities of a new Fokker amphibian, took up yesterday the new Fokker Giant, the four-engined thirty-two passenger transport recently completed at the Fokker plant at Hasbrouck Heights, N. J. The Colonel took off from Roosevelt Field in the amphibian and, with Mrs. Lindbergh and E. T. Todd of the Fokker Company as passengers, flew to the Teterboro Airport.

The Colonel then climbed into the pilots cabin of the big transport, which is likely to be placed on the Los Angeles-Kansas City line of the Western Air Express. With a short take-off and all four Hornet motors nearly "full out" the big plane climbed at a steep angle. The Colonel, accompanied by Mrs. Lindbergh, flew it for an hour back and forth across Bergen County. They crossed over the estate of Mrs. Lindbergh's father, Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, at Englewood in one of their circles.

After landing, Colonel Lindbergh said that the plane had performed well.

NAVY PILOT SAVED BY PARACHUTE LEAP

Seligman Drops 4,000 Feet When Plane Fails to Come Out of a Spin.

WAS IN AIR FOR AN HOUR

Ballast of 800 Pounds Shifted While Lieutenant Was Testing It—He Lands Safely.

Lieutenant N. B. Seligman, U. S. N., left his plane by parachute yesterday while flying over Freeport, L. I., at an altitude of about 4,000 feet. The navy pilot had taken off from Mitchel Field to test the spinning proclivities of the plane, a two-seater Corsair, according to reports at the field.

The plane, built especially for high manoeuvrability, is required by navy specifications to spin under certain conditions, and Lieutenant Seligman found that it answered the controls when he shoved it over and down into the spin.

He had been testing it for more than an hour, it was said later, and had several times spun the plane both to the left and right successfully. Besides the pilot, the plane carried 800 pounds of ballast, and in some way this ballast shifted, the pilot said, throwing the machine just enough out of trim to produce what approached a "flat spin" and from which it seemed impossible to recover.

Lieutenant Seligman came down safely about three miles from the Freeport incinerator in the meadows near which the plane crashed and was badly wrecked.

The pilot escaped with a wrenched ankle and returned to Mitchel Field by train.

Six persons were shaken up yesterday after landing in the Hudson near Croton in an amphibian belonging to Bernarr Macfadden, the publisher, and piloted by A. E. Redmond, who was returning from Ithaca and the Cornell-Princeton game. The pilot, it was said, brought the plane to the water through a thick haze which prevented him from seeing a partly submerged rock. The heavy amphibian alighted safely, but the hull was damaged in striking the rock.

Four Nations Now Rivals in the Antarctic; Britain, Norway and Argentina Follow Byrd

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 21.—The beginning of Spring in the Southern Hemisphere finds four nations, the United States, Great Britain, Norway and Argentina, engaged in Antarctic expeditions designed to carry their flags as far as possible into the unknown wilds surrounding the South Pole, or, as in the case of Argentina, to reassert territorial claims which are likely to be subject to international disputes in the future.

Sir Hubert Wilkins spent today here to address a Rotary Club luncheon and returned tonight to Montevideo, where he is waiting for the steamer which will carry his expedition to the Falkland Islands. From there he will proceed to Deception Island in the South Shetlands to establish a base for his aerial expedition into the Antarctic regions.

Another British expedition under Sir Douglas Mawson, who accompanied the late Sir Ernest Shackleton in 1907, has just left Cape Town on the steamer Discovery and is towing two Norwegian vessels which plan to establish their base on lonely little Bouvet Island, the ownership of which is disputed between Norway and Britain.

The American expedition under Commander Byrd has gained a considerable time advantage over the other expeditions by braving the hardships of the Antarctic Winter and remaining at its base, Little America.

Meanwhile Argentina has quietly sent a small expedition to South Georgia to endeavor to solve the riddle, in which a large part of the world is now interested of what is becoming of the disappearing whales. Argentina claims South Georgia and the South Orkneys, but her claim is disputed by Britain. The Argentine expedition is using South Georgia as a base and will study the life and habits of the whales and other cetacean mammals to endeavor to determine if there is any way to prevent their ultimate disappearance from the waters in which Argentine companies are now engaged in the whaling industry.

Argentina claims all the Antarctic territory lying within the two meridians touching her eastern and western borders and is especially interested in any exploration of fishing grounds in which Sir Hubert Wilkins is said to be interested, because Argentina remembers that it was a fishing dispute between the United States and Argentina, which eventually led to the British occupation of the Falkland Islands, which Argentina still claims.

DECREE TO BLANCHE SWEET

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 21 (AP).—Blanche Sweet, film star, today obtained a divorce from Marshall Neilan, noted director, on grounds of cruelty.

The actress testified she had been unhappy since she married Neilan June 8, 1927 and that on their honeymoon in New York, he deserted her at a nightclub, spending the evening with another woman.

Miss Sweet said she left Neilan last Jan. 15, when he brought a party of intoxicated men home after midnight and demanded that she help entertain them.

A property settlement was made out of court.

MORGAN LIBRARY AIDS VISITING NURSE DRIVE

Several Stores Also Will Help During Week to Acquaint Public With Work for the Sick.

About 150 persons visited the Morgan Library of literary manuscripts, first editions and rare books, at 33 East Thirty-sixth Street, yesterday at the invitation of the Henry Street Settlement, in connection with its Visiting Nurse Service Week program, designed to acquaint the public with this service. Through the courtesy of J. P. Morgan, the library will be open to invited guests of the settlement on Thursday and Friday from 2:30 to 4 P. M.

The library is never open to the public, but groups of students from various universities are frequently permitted to visit it. The library is mainly used by research workers.

No funds will be solicited this week by the settlement, its purpose being to widen the usefulness of the nurse department by informing middle-class persons that the service is not only for the poor but also for the ailing who need part-time nurse help and can pay for it.

Various large stores have arranged programs in cooperation with the settlement committee in charge of the week's program. There will be fashion shows and window displays explaining the activities of the nurses.

JERUSALEM, Oct. 21 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency)—Safed, scene of one of the massacres during the recent Arab outbreak, was visited by an earthquake Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The Jewish colonies, Rosh Pinah and Machnayim, also felt the tremor. Ayelet Hashachar which is close to the Machnayim colony did not feel the shock.

Cut Jail Term for Raditch Slayer.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Oct. 21 (AP).—The Superior Court today reduced to thirty-three years and eight months the sentence of sixty years and four months imposed on Pumitza Ratchitch for the murder of the Croat leader Stephan Raditch.

But when so many owners add a second and a third Isotta Fraschini, you may conclude that there is something so unusual about this car that all others soon appear mediocre when subjected to daily comparison.

Won't you drive in an Isotta Fraschini yourself, and discover why it is such a tremendously good buy for everyone who can afford its necessarily high price?
